PREFACE.

This issue of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book contains not only the usual statistical and other matter, revised and brought down to date, but considerable information of special interest and importance. Mention may be made, for example, of the following:

The presidential campaign in the United States, resulting in the defeat of the hitherto dominant political organization and the birth of a new national party. Details of the national nominating conventions are given and the national party platforms are published in full. Election returns from every county in the union are presented.

The enactment by the American congress of laws establishing a parcel post system, giving veterans of the civil war service pensions and providing for the permanent government and operation of the Panama canal, now nearing completion. Under the title "Work of the 63d Congress" summaries of many other acts of almost equal importance will be found.

The successful war waged by Bulgaria, Servia, Greece and Montenegro against Turkey, promising radical changes in the map of southeastern Europe and possibly solving the intricate Balkan problem.

Progress of the revolution in China leading to the abdication of the Manchu dynasty and the establishment of a great republic on an apparently firm basis.

Sinking of the Titanic, the world's largest steamship, with the loss of more than 1,500 lives, constituting the greatest tragedy of its kind in the world's history.

Attainment of the south pole by Roald Amundsen, the discoverer of the northwest passage.

Capital punishment and its effect on homicides.

The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book is indebted to city, state, national and other officials for the bulk of the facts and figures presented herewith.

ERAS OF TIME.

The Gregorian year 1913 corresponds to the following eras:
 From July 4th the 138th year of the Independence of the United States.
 The year 7421-22 of the Byzantine era; year 7422 begins Sept. 1.
 The year 8022 of the Greek church, beginning Jan. 14.
 The year 5673-74 of the Jewish era; year 5674 begins at sunset Oct. 1.
 The year 1331-32 of the Mohammedan era; year 1332 begins Nov. 30.
 The year 6626 of the Julian period, and Jan. 1, 1913, is the 2,419,769th day since the beginning of that era.

CHRONOLOGICAL CYCLES.

Dominical letter..... E Lunar cycle or golden number 14 Roman Indiction..... 11
 Epact (moon's age, Jan. 1)... 22 Solar cycle..... 18 Jewish Lunar cycle..... 11

EXPLANATORY NOTE—The Dominical letter or letters (two for leap year), or Sunday letters, indicate the day of the year on which the first Sunday occurs, the first seven letters of the alphabet being used. Thus, for 1910, the Dominical letter is B, the second letter of the alphabet, and hence the second day of the year will be the first Sunday of the year. In leap years two letters are used, the first being for January and February, and the latter, being the preceding letter, answers for the last ten months, in order to maintain the cycle. The rule for obtaining the Dominical letter for any year is somewhat complicated and for that reason is omitted here. The Golden Number is that number of a cycle of nineteen years which shows how many years have elapsed since the new moon fell on Jan. 1, for in nearly nineteen years the solar and lunar years nearly come together. The chief use of this cycle is in fixing the date of Easter, and in this same connection is used the Epact. The Solar Cycle is the number of years that have elapsed since the days of the week fell on the same days of the year, or when there will, therefore, be a recurrence of the Dominical or Sunday Letter. This would be the case every seven years but for leap year, hence four times seven is the cycle, or twenty-eight years. It is the remainder found by adding nine to the year and dividing the sum by twenty-eight. The Roman Indiction is a cycle of fifteen years and is of no utility except to chronologers. It is the remainder found by adding three to the year and dividing by fifteen. The Julian Period is a cycle of 7,980 years and is the product of the three cycles, Golden Number (19), Solar Cycle (28) and Roman Indiction (15), and hence shows the time when these cycles will coincide, or begin at the same time. The first of this cycle will be completed in the year 2267; it is the year + 4713. The Dionysian Period is a cycle of 532 years and is called the great Paschal cycle, being the product of a completed solar and lunar cycle (28×19). It is the remainder found by adding 457 to the year and dividing by 532, and with the Julian Period is chiefly used by chronologers. The Jewish Lunar Cycle is always three less than the Golden Number and is used by the Jews in fixing the time of their festivals.

NOTE.—To ascertain any day of the week first look in the table for the year required and under the months are figures which refer to the corresponding figures at the head of the columns of days below. For example: To know on what day of the week July 4 was in the year 1895, in the table of years look for 1895, and in a parallel line, under July, is figure 1, which directs to column 1, in which it will be seen that July 4 falls on Thursday.

*1752 same as 1772 from Jan. 1 to Sept. 2. From Sept. 14 to Dec. 31 same as 1780 (Sept. 3-13 were omitted).—This Calendar is from Whitaker's London Almanack, with some revisions.

CHART OF THE HEAVENS.

EXPLANATION—The chart of the heavens shows all the bright stars and groups visible in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba and Hawaii. Stars of the third magnitude are sometimes shown in order to complete a figure.

If a bright uncharted body be seen near the "ecliptic circle" it must be a planet. To locate the planets or moon refer to the tables "Position of Planets" and "Moon's Place" in the almanac pages, find the proper signs on the chart on the "ecliptic circle" and an inspection of that part of the heavens, comparing with the chart, will serve to identify the planet and all the surrounding objects. Of course there must be somewhat of distortion south of the equator, but not sufficient to be confusing or to prevent the use of the pointer system. For instance, an extension of the west side of the square of Pegasus three times as far south will come close to Fomalhaut.

Because of the earth's motion from west to east (opposite to the direction of the arrow in the chart), the stars rise 4m. earlier each day or 30m. per week, or 2h. a month. The chart shows the position at 9 p. m. Then if the position for any other hour be desired, as for 7 p. m., count back one month, or ahead one month for 11 p. m., and so on for any hour of the night.

A circle described from the zenith on the "zenith circle" for the desired latitude with a radius of 90° (see graduated meridian) will show about what stars are above the horizon. Thus Capella is near the overhead (zenith) point on latitude 40° north Jan. 15, 9 p. m., as will be Algenib in the handle of the Big Dipper at 3 a. m. Then from Capella or Algenib all the surrounding visible groups can be identified. The "pointers," being 5° apart and always in sight, may be used as a convenient unit of measure; also when visible the Belt of Orion, bearing in mind that to the right is west when facing south and east when looking north.

Explanation: By the absolute scale of magnitudes stars brighter than Aldebaran and Altair are indicated by fractional or negative quantities, thus Vega 0.2 and Sirius -1.4. As the magnitudes increase the brilliancy decreases, each increase of a unit being equal to a decrease of about two and one-half in brightness.

To ascertain when any star or constellation will be on the upper meridian add the number opposite in the column "For Meridian Passage" to the figures in the following table "Sidereal Noon," taking note whether such figure be "Morn." or "Eve." If Morn. and the sum is more than 12h. the result will be Eve. of same day; if "Eve." and the sum is more than 12h. the result will be Morn. of the next day. Having found the time of meridian passage, for the rising subtract and for the setting add the numbers opposite the star in the column headed "For Rising and Setting" and observe the direction as to Morn. and Eve, given for the meridian passage. Those marked (.....) in the last columns are circumpolar and do not rise or set in the latitude named in the head of that column. Stars having an asterisk (*) in the last column are only to be seen in the far south and then when near the meridian, as the vapors of the horizon will prevent seeing them when they rise or set. To tell how high up from the nearest point of the horizon a star will be at its meridian passage, subtract the star's declination from 90° and if the result is less than the latitude of the place of the observer that star will neither rise nor set, but is circumpolar, and the difference between that result and the latitude shows the star's altitude above the north point of the horizon or below the southern horizon. Or (90°—Dec.)—lat. = alt. or elevation of the star above the nearest point of the horizon at meridian passage for stars of a south. dec. Examples:

Sidereal noon, Oct. 30, 9:28 p. m.

Fomalhaut "In Merid." col., 22:48

Subtract, 24:00

8:16 p. m. of the 31st, time of meridian
passage.

Fomalhaut ris. and set. col. add 4:00

12:16 = 9:16 a. m. of
Nov. 1, the time of setting.

Or by subtracting = 4:16 p. m. = rising.
Fomalhaut dec., 30° s. 90°—30° = 60°—40° = 20°. Altitude of Fomalhaut in latitude 40° at its meridian passage. To measure celestial distances with the eye keep in mind that one-third of the distance from the zenith to the horizon is 30°. For smaller measurements use the "pointers" in the "big dipper," which are nearly 5° apart—a convenient celestial yardstick because always to be seen. In the case of a star whose dec. is such as to bring it nearer to the zenith than to a horizon at meridian passage, it will be more convenient to use its zenith distance as a means of locating it. The difference between the latitude and dec. is this zenith distance. If the dec. is greater than the latitude then such difference is to be counted northward, otherwise southward from the zenith.

FACTS ABOUT THE SUN AND PLANETS.

Name.	Diameter, Miles.	Distance from sun. Miles.	Period of rev. days.
Sun	865,000
Mercury	3,030	36,000,000	88
Venus	7,700	67,200,000	225
Earth	7,918	92,900,000	365
Mars	4,230	141,500,000	687
Jupiter	86,500	483,300,000	4,333
Saturn	73,000	886,000,000	10,759
Uranus	31,900	1,781,900,000	30,687
Neptune	34,800	2,791,600,000	60,181

The sun's surface is 12,000 and its volume

1,300,000 times that of the earth, but the mass is only 332,000 times as great and its density about one-quarter that of the earth. The force of gravity at the surface of the sun is twenty-seven times greater than that at the surface of the earth. The sun rotates on its axis once in 25.3 days at the equator, but the time is longer at the higher latitudes, from which fact it is presumed that the sun is not solid, at least as to its surface.

THE EARTH AND THE MOON.

Earth—The equatorial diameter of the earth is 7,926.5 miles and the polar diameter 7,889.5 miles; equatorial circumference, 25,000. The linear velocity of the rotation of the earth on its axis at the equator is 24,840 miles a day, or 1,440 feet a second; its velocity in its orbit around the sun is approximately nineteen miles per second, the length of the orbit being about 560,000,000 miles. The superficial area of the earth according to Encke, the astronomer, is 197,108,580 square miles, of which two-thirds is water and one-third land. The planetary mass is about 256,000,000 cubic miles.

Moon—The moon has a diameter of 2,162 miles, a circumference of about 6,800 miles and a surface area of 14,685,000 square miles. Her mean distance from the earth is 238,840 miles. The volume of the moon is about 1/49th that of the earth and the density about 3/25 that of water. The time from new moon to new moon is 29 days 12 hours 44.05 minutes. The moon has no atmosphere and no water and is a dead world.

Light travels at the rate of 186,300 miles per second. It requires 8 minutes and 8 seconds for light to come from the sun to the earth.

NOTE—By the use of the Chart of the Heavens in connection with above table the reader can locate any of the above-named planets at any time. In the chart the right ascension is given in even hours by the roman numerals on the marginal circle and the parts of an hour can be easily estimated. The declination is given on the XIIth meridian from which it will be easy to estimate with the aid of the desired declination. Example: Venus on July 1 will be in R. A. III $\frac{1}{2}$ and 15°+, which will be just south of the Pleiades, 7 stars or seven sisters

[Copyright, 1909, by Berlin H. Wright, De Land, Fla.]

EXPLANATORY NOTE—The figure shows at a glance when all of the major planets are brightest and whether east of the sun (evening stars) or west of him and morning stars, at the time. It also shows the relative duration of visibility and brightness as to the superior planets, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. With Venus, the light shaded portion simply is the approximate measure of duration and place of visibility and not of brilliancy, while of the others it (the light portion) shows both the duration and brilliancy. Thus, Jupiter will be brightest the 5th of July, and then will shine equally in the morning and evening; the last of December he will decrease almost to invisibility. It will be seen that Mars does not attain his maximum degree of brilliancy within the year. Venus, being an inferior planet, between the earth and sun, can never be seen opposite the sun, as in the case of the others on the chart, nor is she at her greatest brilliancy when farthest (in angular distance) from the sun, as shown.

From this it will be seen that the light portions represent the comparative angular distance of the planets from the sun. Then each of the twelve spaces will be one hour spaces of 15° each, when the day and night are equal, and more when the night is more than twelve hours' duration.

Of course the chart can only show an approximation as to the boundaries of the light portion. It will, however, prove a valuable aid to the average person who is not an astronomer in understanding the movements of the planets and definitely settling the question of what constitutes evening and morning stars.

ITINERARY AND CONJUNCTIONS OF THE PLANETS.

MERCURY (♿), when brightest as a morning star, Jan. 1-3, will be in ♍ with the bright red Antares about 15° above or west of him and in ♊ with ♄ Jan. 9, ♄ being the one farthest south, and Dec. 5-10 in ♎ being at greatest angular distance (21°) west of ♄ Dec. 10 and 1° 35' north of ♄ Dec. 2. When brightest as an evening star, March 2-7, he will be near the prime meridian of the heavens and on the ecliptic circle or earth's path and sun's apparent path, and pointed at 15° north by the two bright stars which form the east side of the square of Pegasus, being at greatest angular distance (18°) east of ♄ March 11, and Nov. 5-10 in ♈ about 10° north of Antares. The most favorable time of the year for seeing him will be from Feb. 25 to March 10. When brightest he will rise about one hour fifteen minutes before the ♄ when a morning star and set about one hour and twenty minutes after the ♄ when an evening star. At such times he cannot easily be mistaken for a star because of his heavy steady red light. Mercury passes through all the phases of the moon, the same as Venus, in the course of a revolution about the ♄ but because of his nearness to the ♄ they cannot be well observed as in the case of ♄. See figure under Venus. He will appear nearly as in the half-moon phase as at B or F in the following figure.

VENUS (♀) will be one of the most attractive celestial objects throughout almost the entire year, being at her very brightest aspect the evenings of the latter part of March and in the mornings of May and June (see "Planets Brightest," etc., and table of rising and setting of the planets, also the chart "Visibility of the Planets"). Both ♀ and ♂ will cast a shadow when brightest in the absence of the Moon. Those possessed of small telescopes or good field glasses will find much pleasure in watching her as she passes through all of the phases shown in the annexed cut, and increases or decreases in apparent size as she decreases or increases her distance from the earth, as shown at A or E and D or H.

Explanation:

- A—About fifteen days before superior ♂ with ☉ or latter part of December, 1913.
- B—At greatest elongation west of ☉ July 3, 1913.
- C—When brightest as a morning star, May 25 to June 5, 1913.
- D—Just after inferior ♂ with the ☉ or about May 1, 1913.
- E—About fifteen days after superior ♂ with ☉ or about February 23, 1914.
- F—At greatest elongation east of ☉ February 12, 1913.
- G—When brightest as an evening star about March 15-25, 1913.
- H—Just before inferior ♂ with ☉ April 15 to 20, 1913.

At the beginning of the year ♀ will be in eastern ♉ (sign =) as an evening star and nearly midway between Fomalhaut 15° to the S. and the A in = 15° north and about 15° west of the line joining them. She passes the prime meridian of the heavens in her eastward course past the stars Feb. 2-3, and at greatest elongation (46° 43') east of ☉ Feb. 12. March 5-8 she will pass the boundary line between the constellations ♋ and ♊ and will be just south of the three brightest stars of ♊ in the Head of the Ram. She continues to advance eastward but more and more slowly until Feb. 3, when she becomes stationary in ♊ 35° west of the Pleiades and Hyades, having passed her point of maximum brilliancy March 19. After remaining apparently stationary for a few days she will begin to move slowly back westward past the stars (Retrograde) with increasing speed, passing the sun April 24, becoming a morning star, until the middle of May, when she will again come to a halt in ♊ and then soon again assume her forward eastward march past the stars, reaching the vicinity of the Pleiades and Hyades the latter part of June and the first of July when at greatest angular distance west of the ☉, passing about midway between those splendid asterisms, and the last of July she will be in ♋ about midway between Capella on the north and the Belt of Orion on the south. The latter part of August she will be in ♋ with the brilliant stars Castor and Pollux north of her and Procyon, in Canis Major south, with the great sun Sirius still farther south. She will enter the constellation ☉ the first of September and pass just to the south of the great cluster of dim stars known as Praesepe, reaching the beautiful Regulus in ♈ at the end of the Handle of the Sickle about the 25th, and the boundary line between ☉ and ♈ the last of September; crosses the equinoctial colure at the point of intersection of the celestial equator and ecliptic Oct. 20, entering the constellation ♏, reaching Spica Virginis about Nov. 5; enters ♏ about Nov. 8 when very close to the bright star Beta Scorpii, the middle star of the three in the Head of the Scorpion; reaches a point about 5° north of Antares the middle of December and at the close of the year she will be entering the constellation ♏ and be very close to the ☉.

The following are her conjunctions: With the ☉, Jan. 11, Feb. 10, March 11 and April 8; with the ☉, Inferior, April 24. Then on the other side of the sun, in the morning May 4, June 1 and 30, with ♀ July 21, ♀ being 1° 18' south; with the ☉ again July 30, Aug. 23 and with ♀ Aug. 29, ♀ being 18° south of ☉ with the ☉ Sept. 27, Oct. 27, Nov. 26 and Dec. 26. Her ♂ with ☉ Dec. 2 was mentioned at the beginning of this sketch.

MARS (♂) begins the year in east ♏; advancing past the stars, he passes into ♏ on the 10th and on the 15th will be close to the star in the end of the Handle of the Milkmaid's Dipper and passes just north of the bottom of the Bowl of said Dipper, which is bottom up, Jan. 20-25. He enters ♂ Feb. 20-25, when he will be about 5° south of the group of three stars which mark the Head of the Goat, and the only conspicuous stars in that constellation. Still farther (25°) north the observer will quickly catch the neat diamond-shaped asterism known as Job's Coffin, in the Dolphin, and the trio of bright stars of Aquila, the Eagle, with Altair, the lucida, midway between, while farther to the north is Lyra, the Harp, which has Vega as its lucida or brightest star, and the Great Cross with Deneb at its head and its long arm in the Milky Way. From the middle of April to May 10 he will be passing 15° below or south of the Great Square of Pegasus, crossing the prime meridian of the heavens on the 7th of April and entering the constellation ♏ formerly sign ♏ enters the constellation ♏ the middle of June; reaches the Pleiades or 7-Stars July 20-25, passing about 5° south of them, and toward the end of July will be on a line joining Aldebaran in the Hyades and the Pleiades. By the end of August he will be about midway between Capella on the north and the "Eel and Yard" or Orion's Belt, on the south and in the midst of the most beautiful stars of the heavens. He will cross the line between ♋ and ♌ the middle of September and arrive at western ☉ Oct. 2. By the last of October he will be between Castor and Pollux on the north and Procyon, in the lesser dog (Canis Minor) on the south, near which point he becomes stationary the latter part of November, after which he retrogrades or moves back westward up to the close of the year, when he will be nearly at his brightest and an "all-night" star. See chart.

His conjunctions will be as follows: With the ☉ Jan. 5, Feb. 3, March 4, April 2, May 2 and 31, June 29, July 23, Aug. 26, Sept. 23, Oct. 21, Nov. 18 and Dec. 15; with ♀ Jan. 9, 16° south; ♀ Jan. 13, 47° south; ♀ Feb. 25, 26° south; ♀ Aug. 24, 1° 9' north; at west. ☉ or 90° west of ☉ Oct. 2.

JUPITER (♃) will be found on the boundary line between ♏ and ♏ at the beginning of the year and will be very dim because of the near by sun. The middle of February he will be just above (north) of the bottom of the Milkmaid's Dipper in ♏. His apparent motion among the stars is at no time rapid enough to make it interesting to follow his course past them, but he reaches his stationary point in his orbit where his direction of motion is in line with our line of vision about the first of May, having past his western ☉ April 6. Then he majestically swings back almost to where he was at the beginning of the year by September, and then advances the balance of the year, being then in line with Deneb at the head of the Great Northern Cross and Altair the central star and brightest of the three conspicuous stars in a line in Aquila, the Eagle. His conjunctions will be as follows: With the ☉ Jan. 5, Feb. 2, March 2 and 29, April 26, May 23, June 19, July 16, Aug. 12, Sept. 9, Oct. 6 and Nov. 3 and 30, in all of which the ☉ will pass about 5° south of ♃; ♃ ☉ July 15, when he will be 180° from the ☉, rising at sunset.

SATURN (♄) at the first of the year is slowly retrograding in ♏ or that part of the constellational figure ♏ which represents the shoulder of the Bull, and which lies within the astronomical limits of the constellation Aries, being about 5° south of the Pleiades. About Feb. 1 he will begin to advance and April 1 will be in on the line joining Aldebaran, in the Hyades, and Alcyone, the lucida of the Pleiades, when he will be very dim because of his nearness to the sun, being in ♉ with the ☿ May 29, and will be practically invisible for a month before and after that date. When next nicely visible he will be considerably to the eastward and by Sept. 10, when at western ☿ he will be almost in line between Elath and Aldebaran (see chart) and will vary but slightly from that position during the remainder of the year.

His conjunctions will be as follows: With the ☿ Jan. 18, Feb. 14, March 13, April 10 and May 7, in all of which he will be about 6° south of the ☿; also July 1 and 29, Aug. 26, Sept. 22, Oct. 19, Nov. 15 and Dec. 12, in all of which the ☿ will pass about 6° north of ♉. He will be at western ☿ Sept. 10 and ♉ Dec. 7, when he will set at sunrise (see chart and table).

URANUS (♅) may be found near the middle of ♉, but with no bright star near by to aid in his identification. He will be at ♉ to ☿, rising near sunset and brightest in July and August. A south-west diagonal through the square of Pegasus, produced somewhat more than twice as far again, will serve to locate him approximately, where he will appear as a dim star, in the absence of any considerable amount of moonlight.

NEPTUNE (♆) may be found in ♋ when brightest in January a little west of an extension of a line joining Castor and Pollux and about 10° south of the latter, being near the center of a small square of dim stars. Only in the entire absence of the ☿ and with the aid of a good glass can this the outermost of our system be seen.

All of these planets with our sun, the earth, satellites, asteroids (about 700) and comets, constituting this system of worlds, have a common orbital motion toward the constellation Lyra, near Vega (see Chart of the Heavens), which point is known as the "Apex of the Heavens."

THEATER DISASTER IN VILLAREAL, SPAIN.

Through the explosion of a cinematograph machine at a theater in Villareal, Spain, May 27, 1912, eighty persons were killed and 100 persons injured, many fatally. In the fire following the explosion nearly every person in the assemblage was either killed or seriously hurt. Practically every family in the little town, which is near Castellon de la Plana, was affected by the disaster.

NUMBER OF THE STARS.

According to the best astronomers the number of stars that can be seen by a person of average eyesight is only about 7,000. The number visible through the telescope has been estimated by J. E. Gore at 70,000,000 and by Profs. Newcomb and Young at 100,000,000.

ECLIPSES IN 1913.

There will be five eclipses this year, three of the sun and two of the moon, as follows:

I. Total of the moon March 22, partially visible in the United States, the moon setting with the eclipse on in the eastern states and Canada, visible in standards of time as follows:

*21st. †23d. Size 18.9 digits or nearly 7 digits more than total as shown in the cut.

The next recurrence of this eclipse will be April 2, 1931, when it will be total again.

II. Partial of the sun April 6, on the northern limb. Visible on the Pacific coast of the United States as far south as latitude 36°. The eastern boundary line of the area of visibility extends from near Carson City, Nev., to a point just east of Boise, Idaho, through Choteau, Mont., to Medicine Hat, Assiniboine, Canada, east of which line no part of this eclipse will be visible. Greatest size, about 5 digits, in the north Pacific. Visible in North America as follows:

	Begins.	Ends.	Size.
San Francisco.....	8:45 a. m.	9:05 a. m.	0.5 digits
Portland, Ore.	8:45 a. m.	9:30 a. m.	0.7 digits

This eclipse will recur April 27, 1931, when it will be partial also, but larger. Visible as a very small eclipse in the northern part of the Hawaiian islands.

III. Partial of the sun Aug. 31, invisible in the United States; visible in Labrador and Newfoundland.

This eclipse is dying out and on Sept. 11, 1931, will recur, but much smaller and near the north polar region. Its series began at the south pole and will pass off or close at the north pole.

IV. Total of the moon Sept. 15 invisible in the extreme eastern United States, the moon setting as the eclipse begins. Entirely visible in Alaska and the Pacific and setting more or less eclipsed in the middle and western states.

V. Partial of the sun Sept. 30, visible in the Indian ocean and south polar region, where this eclipse is beginning its history of something like 1,000 years, recurring next Oct. 10, 1931.

Partial eclipse of the sun April 6.

TO OBTAIN CORRECT TIME BY THE SUN, MOON, PLANETS OR STARS.

Table I.—Begin to watch plumb line for "A" to appear vertically below Polaris:

	About.	On line.
July 20, 3 a. m.	5:30 a. m.
Aug. 20, 3 a. m.	3:28 a. m.
Sept. 20, 1 a. m.	1:26 a. m.
Oct. 20, 11 p. m.	11:24 p. m.
Nov. 20, 9 p. m.	9:22 p. m.
Dec. 20, 7 p. m.	7:24 p. m.

DIRECTIONS.—When a plumb line matches with "A" or "B" the pole star is approaching the meridian and the true local mean time then is the time in column "On line." Interpolate for intermediate days, subtracting 4 minutes for each day after or adding 4 minutes for each day before any given date.

EXAMPLE.—July 25 begin to watch plumb line about 4:40 a. m., and Polaris will be exactly in line at 5:10 a. m., correct mean local time. To change this into local standard time add 4 minutes for each degree west of the time meridian and subtract same for stations east of the meridian. Thus at Yakutat, Alaska, being 5° degrees west of the 135th standard meridian, 20 minutes must be added to the observed time for standard time, and at Jacksonville, Fla. (8° 15' east of 90th meridian), 33 minutes must be subtracted for central standard time.

	About.	On line.
Jan. 20, 5 a. m.	5:22 a. m.
Feb. 20, 3 a. m.	3:20 a. m.
Mar. 20, 1 a. m.	1:30 a. m.
April 20, 11 p. m.	11:24 p. m.
May 20, 9 p. m.	9:26 p. m.
June 20, 7 p. m.	7:24 p. m.

A light placed back of the head will aid in seeing the plumb lines, which may be hung in a convenient window, and let the bob hang in a dish of water to prevent the wind from disturbing the line, or the observation may be made with closed window.

If a noon mark is desired use two plumb lines and connect them by a row of tacks driven in the porch floor in the range of a pillar, post or window casing that will cast a shadow and apply the "equation of time," or "sun fast or slow," or set time piece as directed in "sun at noon mark," or by meridian passage of moon, planets or stars, using an additional perpendicular on the noon mark to get the range by.

The above is only applicable between latitudes 30°+ and 60°+ because of the low altitude of pole in the first and high in the last.

THE SIGNS AND CONSTELLATIONS OF THE ZODIAC.

Until recently it was taken for granted that the present relationship between signs and constellations of the zodiac was generally understood, as all astronomical textbooks mention their disagreement and explain the cause. The numerous letters of inquiry concerning differences between the data in this almanac and certain others show the necessity for this note of explanation.

Thousands of years ago when the zodiac, that belt of the heavens about 16° in width within which move the moon and planets, was formed and divided into twelve parts or seasons called signs, each containing certain star groups called constellations; each was given the name of an object or animal which never did bear any relationship to the configuration of the stars in that group or division, but which did or is supposed to have reference to certain astronomical or other facts. Thus Libra, ♎, the scales or balance, comes at the autumnal equinox when there is an equilibrium or balance between the length of day and night the world over. Aquarius, ♒, the water-bearer, and whose sign is the Egyptian sign for running water, comes at the season of greatest rains in Egypt, and so on.

Since the time when these divisions were made and named, owing to the precession of the equinoxes, resulting from the differing polar and equatorial diameters of the earth, the signs have moved back west nearly a whole division or constellation and where ♈ was the first, ♊ now is. Hence, though the sun now enters the sign ♈ March 20, it is a month later when he enters the constellation ♈. It must be apparent, therefore, that any supposed influence or relationship which early astrologers attributed to the position of the sun, moon or planets when in certain of these divisions can no longer exist, as the sign now only represents that space or division of the zodiac where the controlling constellation was 2,000 or more years ago, but is not now. Nevertheless some almanacs still give the signs for the moon's place, which is very misleading to those who attempt to follow her in her course among the stars. Hence, this almanac gives the constellation and discards the ancient picture of the disemboweled man as relics of the age of superstition. The sign is retained for sun's place in connection with the seasons and sun's path through the zodiac each month because of its relationship to the equinoxes and solstices.

HARVEST MOON AND HUNTER'S MOON.

The full moon in September that falls near the autumnal equinox (Sept. 23) is called the harvest moon. Because at that time it is in that part of its orbit where it makes the smallest angle with the horizon it appears to rise at nearly the same hour for several nights in succession, thus giving an unusual number of moonlight evenings. The same thing occurs to a slightly less degree at the time of the first full moon after the equinox, when it is called the hunter's moon. "It is true," says Prof. George C. Comstock in his "Text-Book of Astronomy," "that on the average the moon rises and sets fifty-one minutes later each day than on the day before. But there is a good deal of irregularity in the retardation of the time of moonrise and moonset, since the time of rising depends largely upon the particular point of the horizon at which the moon appears, and between two days this point may change so much as to make the retardation considerably greater or less than its average value. In northern latitudes this effect is particularly marked in the month of September, when the eastern horizon is nearly parallel with the moon's apparent path in the sky, and near the time of full moon in that month the moon rises on several successive nights at nearly the same hour, and in a less degree the same is true for October. This highly convenient arrangement of moonlight has caused the full moons of these two months to be christened respectively the harvest moon and the hunter's moon."

DEATH OF SIR JOSEPH LISTER, SURGEON.

Joseph Lister, first Baron Lister, better known under his previous title of Sir Joseph Lister, the famous surgeon, died in London, England, Feb. 11, 1912. He was born April 25, 1827, and received his medical education at University college, London, and at Syme's clinic, Edinburgh. It was while acting as surgeon at the Royal Infirmary in Glasgow that he made his great discoveries in the use of antiseptics which greatly diminished the mortality from erysipelas, septicæmia, pyæmia, tetanus and hospital gangrene following surgical operations. With the Pasteur germ theory as a basis, Lister concluded that "putrefaction" in wounds was caused by microbes introduced from the outside and that if these microbes could be destroyed putrefaction might be prevented. The germicides which he discovered and the precautions he advised in keeping germs from entering the wounds wrought a revolution in hospital practice.

TIME AND STANDARDS OF TIME.

Various kinds of time are in use in this country: 1. Astronomical Time or Mean Solar Time—This is reckoned from noon through the twenty-four hours of the day and is used mainly by astronomical observatories and in official astronomical publications. It is the legal time of the Dominion of Canada, though "standard" and "mean" time are in general use there as in this country.

2. Mean Local Time—This is the kind that was in almost universal use prior to the introduction of standard time. This time was based upon the time when the mean sun crosses the meridian and the day begins at midnight. When divided into civil divisions—years, months, weeks, days, etc.—it is sometimes called civil time.

3. Standard Time—For the convenience of the railroads and business in general a standard of time was established by mutual agreement in 1883 and by this calculation trains are now run and local time is regulated. By this system the United States, extending from 65° to 125° west longitude, is divided into four time sections, each of 15° of longitude, exactly equivalent to one hour (7½ or 30m. on each side of a meridian), commencing with the 75th meridian. The first or eastern section includes all territory between the Atlantic coast and an irregular line drawn from Buffalo to Charleston, S. C., the latter city being its southernmost point.

The second or central section includes all the territory between this eastern line and another irregular line extending from Bismarck, N. D., to the mouth of the Rio Grande. The third or mountain section includes all the territory between the last named line and nearly the western borders of Idaho, Nevada and Arizona. The fourth or Pacific section includes all the territory of the United States between the boundary of the mountain section and the Pacific coast. Inside of each of these sections standard time is uniform and the time of each section differs from that next to it by exactly one hour, as shown on the map.

*Owing to the eccentricity of the earth's orbit and the inclination of the equator to the ecliptic, the apparent motion of the sun is retarded or accelerated according to the earth's place in its orbit. Hence, to take the actual sun as a guide would necessitate years, days and their subdivisions of unequal length. Therefore an imaginary or "mean sun" was invented. The difference between apparent and mean time is called the "equation of time" and may amount to a quarter of an hour in twenty-four hours. It is the difference between the figures in "Sun at noon mark" column in calendar and twelve hours. The figures on a correct sun dial give the apparent time.

STANDARDS OF TIME.

The following is the table of times, based upon the meridians used by the United States and Canada:

NAME OF TIME.	Degrees.	Central meridian from Greenwich.	Nearest place.
Intercolonial or Atlantic.....	60	4 hours west.....	About 3½ degrees east of Halifax, N.S.
Eastern.....	75	5 hours west.....	Between New York and Philadelphia
Central.....	90	6 hours west.....	St. Louis and New Orleans.
Mountain.....	105	7 hours west.....	Denver, Col.
Pacific.....	120	8 hours west.....	1½ degrees east of Sacramento, Cal.
Sitka.....	135	9 hours west.....	¼ degree east of Sitka, Alaska.
Tahiti.....	150	10 hours west.....	¼ degree west of the island of Tahiti
Hawaiian.....	157½	10 hrs. 31 min. west.	Near center of Moikail.

It is obvious that to express the time of rising and setting of the sun and moon in standard time would limit the usefulness of such data to the single point or place for which it was computed, while in mean time it is practically correct for places as widely separated as the width of the continent (see note at bottom of February calendar), and persons having obtained the mean time by the rising or setting of the sun or moon may easily ascertain the correct standard time of any event by making use of the following table and map:

RURAL AND URBAN CO-OPERATIVE BANKS.

RAIFFEISEN SYSTEM.

The Raiffeisen banking system was founded in Germany in 1862. Its author was Friedrich Wilhelm Raiffeisen, an economist who believed that the agricultural crisis prevailing in 1846-1847 was due to the fact that small land owners, in order to secure necessary funds, were compelled to pay ruinous rates of interest to usurers. His idea was to organize rural communities into mutual credit associations, through which the members might obtain loans at a low rate of interest. The main principles underlying the associations or "banks" which he founded were these:

1. Unlimited liability of the members.
2. A restricted area of operations.
3. Gratuitous management.

Loans given by these banks are usually on personal security, being confined to members of the association, to which only trustworthy persons are admitted. The membership being restricted, those belonging to the group are personally known to one another and, as the members are mutually responsible, it is to their interest to see that the borrower makes proper use of his money and to help him when he is in difficulties. In order to enable the associations to loan money at a very slight advance on the rate of interest which they themselves have to pay, the management must be almost gratuitous. Usually only the treasurer is paid for his services. The payment of dividends is prohibited or is limited to a small percentage. In 1909 there were 12,614 (reporting) rural banks in Germany, which had total membership of 1,163,186, or an average of 92 per bank. The total business done amounted to $1,061,563,167. The system has spread to other countries and its principles are applied, with such modifications as are found necessary, to hundreds of "banks" organized for mutual benefit purposes.

SCHULZE-DELITZSCH SYSTEM.

The Schulze-Delitzsch system of popular co-operative banks was devised by Hermann Schulze-Delitzsch, a leader in the German co-operative movement, between 1850 and 1860, and therefore antedated and furnished the inspiration for the Raiffeisen system of rural banks. These banks were established especially for the benefit of urban communities, but all occupations, including farming, were included. Like the Raiffeisen banks, they were organized for the purpose of lending money on moderate terms to the members of the association, but unlike the rural concerns they have a wide area of operation, accumulate capital, pay dividends and have paid managers. Except for the co-operative feature their business is done for the most part on ordinary banking lines. There were 93 of these banks in 1910, with a membership of about 600,000. In that year about $1,000,000 was used in making short time loans to members.

Both the Raiffeisen and Schulze-Delitzsch banks are affiliated with central institutions and general federations which supply money if required and help out in whatever directions needed.

SUIT AGAINST INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY.

The United States government instituted a suit against the International Harvester company April 30, 1912, by filing a petition in equity in the federal District court in St. Paul, Minn., under the provisions of the Sherman antitrust law. The government asked:

That the $140,000,000 corporation be dissolved on the ground that it was a monopoly in restraint of trade.

That injunctions be issued to bar from interstate commerce the products of the International Harvester company or of the International Harvester Company of America, its selling agency.

That receivers be appointed to take charge of the property and wind up the business of the defendant, if the court finds such action compatible with public interest.

The following corporations and individuals were mentioned as defendants in the petition:

International Harvester company.
International Harvester Company of America.
International Flax Twine company.
Wisconsin Steel company.
Wisconsin Lumber company.
Illinois Northern railway.
Chicago, West Pullman & Southern Railroad company.

Cyrus H. McCormick.
Charles Deering.
James Deering.
John J. Glessner.
William H. Jones.
Harold F. McCormick.
Richard F. Howe.
Edgar A. Bancroft.
William J. Louderback.

George F. Baker.
Norman B. Ream.
Charles Steele.
John A. Chapman.
Elbert H. Gary.
Thomas D. Jones.
John P. Wilson.
William L. Saunders.
George W. Perkins.

The chief charges by the government against the Harvester company were:

That the company, in monopolizing the manufacture and sale of harvesting machinery, advanced prices "to the grave injury of the farmer and the general public."

That the company controlled at least 90 per cent of the trade in the United States in harvesters or grain binders, 75 per cent of the mowers and more than 50 per cent of the binder twine.

That the company absorbed competing companies while allowing the companies still to advertise as being independent, "thereby misleading, deceiving and defrauding the public and more effectually crushing existing competitors and keeping out new ones."

That the defendants resorted to unfair trade methods by attempting to induce agents to handle only their products.

That they bought up patents to perpetuate the monopoly.

That in organizing the International Harvester company the defendants were actuated by a determination to form a monopoly.

That the company bound retail dealers by contract not to sell the products of any other manufacturer.

That the Harvester company received iron, steel and lumber from the Wisconsin Steel company and the Wisconsin Lumber company, subsidiaries, which were used to eliminate competition.

That the company used railroads which it controlled to obtain undue preference from railroads connecting with them.

The International Harvester company was organized in New Jersey in 1902. Prior to that time the government declared there were ten or twelve establishments for the manufacture and sale of harvesting implements in active competition with each other.

The alleged trust was formed through the combination of the McCormick Harvesting Machine Company of Illinois, the Deering Company of Illinois, the Plano Manufacturing Company of Illinois, Warner, Bushnell & Glessner Company of Ohio and the Milwaukee Harvester company.

The company was incorporated in New Jersey with a capital stock originally of $120,000,000. The control of the capital stock was placed in the hands of three voting trustees—Cyrus H. McCormick, Charles Deering and George W. Perkins, who issued stock trust certificates to the persons actually owning the stock.

MRS. DAVID BEACH'S LONG WALK.

Mrs. David Beach arrived at the office of The Daily News at 10:10 a. m., Tuesday, May 23, 1912, after having walked from the office of the New York Globe to Chicago in forty-two and one-half days, exclusive of Sundays, on a diet of raw fruits and vegetables exclusively. On her whole journey she ate nothing but raw vegetables, cakes made of crushed wheat, oats, raisins, dates and prunes and nuts and drank pineapple juice. Her first drink of water was taken after she arrived in Chicago. Her longest day's walk was thirty-four miles from Wheeler, Ind., to South Chicago, Ill. DEATH OF MAJ.-GEN. FREDERICK D. GRANT.

Maj.-Gen. Frederick Dent Grant of the United States army, eldest son of Ulysses S. Grant, died in New York city at about midnight April 11, 1912. He had obtained leave of absence from his post as commander of the eastern division and had made a trip to the south. He returned apparently much benefited in health, but was taken suddenly ill at the Buckingham hotel in New York, N. Y., two hours after retiring, at 9 o'clock on the evening of April 11, and died before a physician could be summoned. The cause of death was heart failure.

Gen. Grant was born in St. Louis, Mo., May 30, 1850, and was therefore nearly 62 years of age at the time of his death. He was married Oct. 20, 1874, to Ida M. Honore of Chicago. Besides his widow he left two children, Lieut. Ulysses S. Grant III, and Princess Cantacuzene-Speransky, who was Miss Julia Dent Grant. He was buried at West Point, N. Y.

PEAT SUPPLY OF THE UNITED STATES.

In a report on the uses of peat for fuel and other purposes Mr. Charles A. Davis of the bureau of mines, department of the interior, estimates that there are in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, 11,138 square miles of swamp lands having peat deposits of good quality. "Assuming," he says, "that the average depth of the peat in this area is at least 9 feet, and that the average yield will be 200 tons of salable fuel per acre for each foot of depth, the total available fuel in these deposits will reach 12,888,500,000 tons; this quantity, if converted into machine peat bricks and sold at $3 per ton, would have a value of $38,665,700,000—no mean resource, but one that would furnish heat and power for the entire country for many years."

Peat beds are found chiefly in the New England states, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Florida. The production of peat for fuel has thus far been insignificant in the United States. The total production for fertilizer uses is about 40,000 tons a year, the value ranging from $3.50 to $6 a ton.

UNITED STATES MILITARY ACADEMY.

West Point, N. Y.

The United States military academy is a school for the practical and theoretical training of cadets for the military service of the United States. When any cadet has completed the course of four years satisfactorily he is eligible for promotion and commission as a second lieutenant in any arm or corps in the army in which there may be a vacancy, the duties of which he may have been judged competent to perform.

Appointments—Each congressional district and territory, including the District of Columbia and Porto Rico, is entitled to have one cadet at the academy. Each state is also entitled to have two cadets from the state at large and forty are allowed from the United States at large. The law provides that for six years from July 1, 1910, whenever any cadet shall have finished three years of his course at the academy his successor may be admitted. The appointment from a congressional district is made upon the recommendation of the representative in congress from that district and those from the state at large upon the recommendations of the senators of the state. The appointments for the United States at large are made by the president upon his own selection. The appointment from the District of Columbia is made on the recommendation of the district commissioner and that from Porto Rico on the recommendation of the resident commissioner. Appointments are made one year in advance of admission. For each candidate appointed two alternates should be nominated. Four cadets from the Philippines are admitted.

Examinations—On the second Tuesday in January of each year the candidate select-1 for appointment must appear for mental and physical examination before boards of army officers at such places as the war department may designate. Candidates who pass will be admitted to the academy on March 1 following.

Mental Requirements—Each candidate must show that he is well versed in algebra, to include quadratic equations and progressions, plane geometry, English grammar, composition and literature, descriptive and physical geography and general and United States history.

Physical Requirements—No candidate will be admitted who is under 17 or over 22 years of age, or less than five feet four inches in height at the age of 17, or five feet five inches at the age of 18 and upward, or who is deformed or afflicted with any disease or infirmity which would render him unfit for military service. Candidates must be unmarried.

Pay—The pay of a cadet is $600 a year and one ration a day, or commutation therefor at 30 cents a day. The total is $709.50, to begin with his admission to the academy. No cadet is allowed to receive money or other supplies from his parents or from any other person without the sanction of the superintendent.

Enlistment—Before receiving his warrant of appointment a candidate for admission is required to sign an engagement to serve in the army of the United States eight years from the time of his admission to the academy.

UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY.

Annapolis, Md.

The United States naval academy is a school for the practical and theoretical training of young men for the naval service of the United States. The students are styled midshipmen. The course of study is six years—four years at the academy and two years at sea—at the expiration of which time the examination for final graduation takes place. Midshipmen who pass are appointed to fill vacancies in the lower grade of the line of the navy, and occasionally to fill vacancies in the marine corps and in certain of the staff corps of the navy.

Appointments—Two midshipmen are allowed for each senator, representative and delegate in congress, two for the District of Columbia and five each year from the United States at large. The appointments from the District of Columbia and five each year at large are made by the president. One midshipman is allowed from Porto Rico, who must be a native of that island. The appointment is made by the president on the recommendation of the governor of Porto Rico. After June 30, 1913, each senator, representative and delegate in congress will be allowed to appoint but one midshipman instead of two. Candidates must be actual residents of the districts from which they are nominated.

Examinations—Two examinations for the admission of midshipmen are held each year. The first is held on the third Tuesday in April under the supervision of the civil service commission at certain specified points in each state and territory. All those qualifying mentally who are entitled to appointment in order of nomination, will be notified by the superintendent of the naval academy when to report at the academy for physical examination, and if physically qualified will be appointed. The second and last examination is held on the third Tuesday in June at Annapolis, Md. Alternates are given the privilege of reporting for mental examination at the same time as the principals. Examination papers are all prepared at the academy and the examinations of candidates are finally passed upon by the academic board. Certificates from colleges and high schools will not be accepted in lieu of the entrance examinations at the naval academy.

Mental Requirements—Candidates will be examined in punctuation, spelling, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, United States history, world's history, algebra through quadratic equations and plane geometry (five books of Chauvenet's geometry or an equivalent).

Physical Requirements—All candidates must, at the time of their examination for admission, be between the ages of 16 and 20 years. A candidate is eligible for appointment the day he becomes 16 and is ineligible on the day he becomes 20 years of age. Candidates are required to be of good moral character, physically sound, well formed and of robust constitution. The height of candidates for admission must not be less than five feet two inches between the ages of 16 and 18 years, and not less than five feet four inches between the ages of 18 and 20 years. The minimum weight at 16 years is 105 pounds with an increase of five pounds for each additional year or fraction of a year over one-half. Candidates must be unmarried.

Pay—The pay of a midshipman is $600 a year, beginning at the date of his admission. Midshipmen must supply themselves with clothing, books, etc., the total expense of which amounts to $280.64. Travelling expenses to the academy are paid by the government.

Enlistment—Each midshipman on admission is required to sign articles by which he binds himself to serve in the United States navy eight years (including his time of probation at the naval academy).

CENTER OF POPULATION AND MEDIAN LINES

The center of population, according to the bureau of the census, may be said to represent the center of the gravity of the population. If the surface of the United States be considered as a rigid plane without weight, capable of sustaining the population distributed thereon, individuals being assumed to be of equal weight, and each, therefore, to exert a pressure on any supporting pivotal point directly proportional to his distance from the point, the pivotal point on which the plane balances would, of course, be its center of gravity, and this is the point referred to by the term "center of population" as used by the census bureau in its reports.

The median point, which may be described as the numerical center of population, is in no sense a center of gravity. In determining the median point distance is not taken into account, and the location of the units of population is considered only in relation to the intersecting median lines—as being north or south of the median parallel and east and west of the meridian.

The position of the center of population and its movement during each decade since 1790 is shown in the following table:

MEDIAN LINES.

In connection with the definition of the median point another method of presenting facts with regard to the geographical distribution of the population has been noted, involving the location of median lines. A parallel of latitude is determined which evenly divides the population so that the population north of that parallel is the same as that south. Similarly, a meridian of longitude is determined which divides the population evenly as between east and west. In calculating these median lines it is necessary, in the case of the square degrees of latitude and longitude which are traversed by the lines themselves, to assume that the population is evenly distributed through these square degrees or to make an estimated adjustment where this is obviously not the case.

The eastern terminus of the median parallel, according to the census of 1910, is on the New Jersey coast near Seagirt. In its course west this line passes through central New Jersey, leaving the state near Burlington and entering Pennsylvania a few miles north of Philadelphia, thence passing through Norristown and continuing through southern Pennsylvania and across the northern extremity of West Virginia, leaving the latter state at a point a few miles north of Wheeling. It nearly bisects Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, crossing about ten miles north of Columbus, O.; twenty-five miles north of Indianapolis, Ind., and about twenty miles north of Springfield, Ill. Through Missouri it runs about thirty miles south of the Iowa and Missouri line, thence passing through Nebraska about ten miles north of its southern boundary, and across the northern part of Colorado, passing about five miles north of Boulder City. Its location in Utah is about forty-five miles south of Salt Lake City.

There are no large towns near its course across the northern part of Nevada and California. The western terminus of the median parallel is on the Pacific coast, in Humboldt county, California, about five miles north of Point Delgada and twenty miles south of Cape Mendocino, the point of continental United States extending farthest west.

The median meridian starts at Whitefish point, on the northern peninsula of Michigan, near the eastern end of Lake Superior, thence passing south about twenty-five miles west of Lansing and through Indiana about ten miles west of the Indiana-Ohio boundary and twenty-five miles west of Cincinnati. South of the Ohio river it bisects Kentucky, crosses eastern Tennessee and leaves that state twenty miles east of Chattanooga. Through Georgia it passes close to the Georgia-Alabama line, about two miles west of Columbus, Ga., leaving the state near the intersection of the Alabama, Georgia and Florida boundary lines. It then crosses the northwestern part of Florida and terminates in the Gulf of Mexico at the city of Apalachicola. The following table shows the movement of the median lines from 1880 to 1910, inclusive:

WOMEN OF VOTING AGE IN CERTAIN STATES.

[From United States census bulletin.]

The following table shows the number of women 21 years and over in 1910 in the states where women have the right to vote in all elections. It is to be noted that it does not represent the actual number of woman voters, but only the number of those who in April, 1910, were eligible to vote from the standpoint of age alone, aside from any qualifications based upon naturalization, education, length of residence or considerations of a like nature.

IMMIGRATION FROM 1821 TO 1870.

From 1821 to 1870 natives of Germany, Great Britain, Ireland, Scandinavia and Canada together contributed substantially nine-tenths of all the immigrants to this country, but since 1870 their proportion of the total number has steadily declined—from somewhat more than four-fifths for 1871-1880 to three-fourths for 1881-1890, about two-fifths for 1891-1900 and only a little more than one-fifth for 1901-1910.

Immigrants from Austria-Hungary, Italy and Russia, on the other hand, constituted less than 1 per cent of all the immigrants from 1821 to 1870, but since then their proportion has steadily increased—from about one-sixteenth for 1871-1880 to one-sixth for 1881-1890, one-half for 1891-1900 and very nearly two-thirds for 1901-1910.

WHOLESALE PRICES, 1910 AND 1911.

While wholesale prices during 1911 showed a slight decline from those in 1910, the fluctuation from month to month was small, with a slightly upward tendency during the latter half of the year. The most important features in the movement of prices during the year were the advance in the prices of food products and the noticeable decline in those of metals and implements.

The average of wholesale prices in 1911, as measured by the prices of 257 commodities, was 1.7 per cent lower than the average for 1910, but with this decline the level was only 0.2 per cent below the high average of 1907 prices. Wholesale prices during 1911 were 17 per cent higher than in 1909; 44.1 per cent higher than in 1897, the year of lowest prices in the twenty-two year period from 1890 to 1911; 14.5 per cent higher than in 1890 and 29.3 per cent higher than the average price for the ten years 1890 to 1899.

The upward movement of prices which began in the latter part of 1905 reached its highest point in 1907 in October, from which month there was a general decline until August, 1908. Beginning with September, 1908, wholesale prices increased without a break in any month up to March, 1910; in April, May and June prices declined slightly, but from June to December, 1910, they remained at very nearly the same level. Prices in January, 1911, showed a slight decline from those of December, 1910, but through the year 1911 the fluctuation from month to month was small. Wholesale prices in March, 1910, were higher than at any other time in the twenty-two year period from 1890 to 1911, being 10.2 per cent higher than in August, 1908; 7.5 per cent higher than in March, 1909; 21.1 per cent higher than the average yearly price of 1900 and 49.2 per cent higher than the average yearly price of 1897. Wholesale prices in December, 1911, however, were 0.3 per cent lower than in December, 1910, and 3.4 per cent lower than in March, 1910, but they were still 29.2 per cent higher than the average price for the ten years 1890 to 1899 and 44 per cent higher than the prices of 1897.

Comparing 1911 with 1910, the group of commodities showing the greatest decrease in prices was metals and implements, the decrease in the group as a whole being 7.7 per cent. The other decreases were: Cloths and clothing, 3.3 per cent; fuel and lighting, 2.4 per cent; lumber and building materials, 8 per cent; housefurnishing goods, 4 per cent; farm products, 1.6 per cent, and miscellaneous, 1.4 per cent. The only increases were 2.0 per cent in food and 2.3 per cent in drugs and chemicals.

RELATIVE RETAIL PRICES OF FOOD.

The relative price, or index number, as it is technically called, of any article is the per cent which the price of that article at any certain date is of the price of the same article at a date or period which has been selected as the base or standard. The base selected for the compilation of retail prices of food is the average price for the ten year period 1890 to 1899. The average price for a number of years more nearly represents normal conditions than does the price for a single year, because of unusual conditions which may prevail in any one year. In the first section of the following table is shown for each of the five geographical divisions and for the United States as a whole the simple average of the relative prices of the fifteen articles of food specified in the foregoing tables. In computing the relative prices shown in the second section of the table the relative price of each of the fifteen articles was weighted according to the average consumption in workmen's families in the particular geographical division or in the United States as a whole. The divisions are indicated by letters: N. A., North Atlantic; S. A., South Atlantic; N. C., North Central; S. C., South Central; W., Western; U. S., United States. The average price for 1890-1899 equals 100.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

In a special message to congress March 13, 1912, President Taft transmitted the first installment of FLOOD IN THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY.

One of the most destructive floods in the history of the Mississippi valley occurred in the spring of 1912. Owing to the heavy and late snowfalls and the somewhat sudden melting of the snow in the latter part of March and the first part of April a vast volume of water was poured into the Mississippi river by its tributaries. At some places the levees were broken and at other places they were overflowed, with the result that thousands of acres of rich farming lands were inundated. At Cairo, Ill., May 4, the river stood at 53.9 feet, which was 1.7 feet above the high water mark of 1883. At Memphis the high record mark was broken by 3 feet.

At the request of the mayor of Cairo troops were sent to patrol the levees at that city April 2. The soldiers were supplemented by hundreds of railroad and other laborers and through their efforts the dikes protecting the town were strengthened sufficiently to withstand the pressure. The Mobile & Ohio levee broke April 4 and the drainage district north of Cairo was flooded, causing a damage estimated at $5,000,000. Railroad service was almost cut off being maintained in some instances only by the use of tugs where the lines were under water. April 5 the government levee west of Hickman, Ky., protecting the Reelfoot lake district of Kentucky and Tennessee, gave way and a large area of country was inundated.

April 7 it was estimated by government engineers and state levee boards that as a result of the floods, which then had continued two weeks, thirty the information collected by the department of state on co-operation and the cost of living in various European countries. The immediate result of the inquiries through the consular offices was to accentuate the fact that the increase in the prices of the common necessities of life was worldwide and that it was engaging the attention of co-operative associations everywhere. It was shown by investigation that even where there had been an advance in wages the percentage had not kept pace with the rise in the cost of food supplies. In London, for example, wages increased 11.1 per cent from 1896 to 1910, while food prices increased 19.5 per cent. The wages of railway employees during the same period had increased only 7.3 per cent. In a table prepared by the Co-Operative Wholesale society of Manchester, England, it was shown that as compared with 1898 the increased cost of living in 1910 was 13.36 per cent.

The consul at Havre, France, reported that a comparison of food prices in November, 1900, and November, 1911, showed heavy increases in all items except sugar. The consul at Lyons reported that the only commodity there that had not increased in price was fish. Reports from Germany, Holland and other countries were of a similar tenor. The consul at Southampton reported that during the last five years there had been an advance of 20 per cent in the purchase price of fresh beef, mutton, bacon, hams, butter, eggs, fruits, sugar, coffee, fuel, tin goods, women's apparel, footwear, clothing, cotton goods, bedding, furniture and underwear. With regard to co-operative associations it was found that they flourished, especially in the united kingdom. In 1862 there were 400 such societies with 90,000 members, while in 1903 they numbered more than 3,000 and had a membership of 2,700,000. The net profits from sales in 1903 amounted to nearly $55,000,000. Opposition to such associations on the part of tradesmen in general had decreased, though antagonism still existed. Most of the societies had insurance and educational departments and some of them published weekly or monthly papers.

persons had been drowned and 30,000 made homeless, that 2,000 square miles of territory had been inundated and that damage had been caused amounting to $10,000,000. Several levees on both sides of the Mississippi above and below Memphis had given way and large areas of land in Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky, Missouri, Mississippi and Louisiana were under water. In the northern part of the city of Memphis twenty-five blocks were submerged, 1,300 persons were made homeless and 3,000 were thrown out of work by the shutting down of factories. Railroad traffic was interrupted and Hickman, Ky., for a time was on the verge of a famine on account of the lack of supplies. The destitution in the flooded districts was great until relieved by federal and state aid.

In Mississippi, where the flood was at its worst about April 20, many deaths from drowning occurred. Fifteen persons were lost near Benoit in the flood that came from a break in the levee between that place and Beulah. It was reported that altogether about 200 lives were lost in Bolivar county, Mississippi. The majority of the victims were colored.

Congress, at the request of President Taft, appropriated $350,000 April 2 for the relief of the flood sufferers. May 7 congress appropriated the further sum of $1,239,179.65 for the same purpose. The money was expended for supplies furnished by the quartermaster-general and the commissary-general of the army.

DEATH OF CLARA BARTON.

Miss Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, died at her home in Glen Echo, Md., April 12, 1912, at the age of 90 years. She suffered an attack of pneumonia in February, 1911, and though she recovered temporarily her health became enfeebled and for the last few months of her life she was an invalid. The American Red Cross was founded by her in co-operation with others in 1881 and she was its president from that date until 1904. She was a nurse in the civil war and also in the Franco-Prussian war, but after the organization of the Red Cross she devoted herself to the relief of the victims of catastrophes in times of peace. She was widely known in nearly all parts of the civilized world.

ELECTRICAL UNITS DEFINED.

Ohm—Unit of resistance; represents resistance offered to an unvarying electric current by a column of mercury at the temperature of ice, 14.5421 grams in mass, of a cross-sectional area of 1.00003 square millimeters and of the length of 106.3 centimeters.

Ampere—Unit of current; decomposes .0009324 of a gram of water in one second or deposits silver at the rate of .001118 of a gram per second, when passed through a solution of nitrate of silver in water.

Volt—Unit of electro motive force; one volt equals one ampere of current passing through a substance having one ohm of resistance.

Coulomb—Unit of quantity; amount of electricity transferred by a current of one ampere in one second.

Farad—Unit of capacity; capacity of a condenser charged to a potential of one volt by one coulomb. A microfarad is one-millionth of a farad.

Joule—Unit of work; equivalent to energy expended in one second by one ampere current in one ohm resistance.

Watt—Unit of power; equivalent to work done at the rate of one joule per second. A kilowatt is 1,000 watts.

THERMOMETERS COMPARED

There are three kinds of thermometers, with varying scales, in general use throughout the world—the Fahrenheit, Reaumur and centigrade. The freezing and boiling points on their scales compare as follows:

Thermometer.	Freezing pt.	Boiling pt.
Fahrenheit	32 degrees	212 degrees
Reaumur	zero	80 degrees
Centigrade	zero	100 degrees

The degrees on one scale are reduced to their equivalents on another by these formulas:

Fahrenheit to Reaumur—Subtract 32, multiply by four-ninths.

Fahrenheit to Centigrade—Subtract 32, multiply by five-ninths.

Reaumur to Fahrenheit—Multiply by nine-fourths, add 32.

Reaumur to Centigrade—Multiply by five-fourths.

Centigrade to Fahrenheit—Multiply by nine-fifths, add 32.

Centigrade to Reaumur—Multiply by four-fifths.

MINES AND QUARRIES IN THE UNITED STATES.

[From report of census bureau, 1912.]

In 1909 in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and other outlying noncontiguous territory, 23,682 operators conducted 27,240 mines and quarries and 166,448 petroleum and natural gas wells. Of the operators 3,749 were engaged solely in development work upon which, in 1909, the sum of $31,548,736 was expended. In Alaska in 1909 there were 673 operators, who employed 8,025 persons, in the mining industry. The total expenses of these operators amounted to $13,220,200, while the capital invested was reported as $47,749,164. The total value of products was $16,933,427, of which amount $16,327,752 consisted of gold and silver. In Hawaii and Porto Rico the total value of product for the eighteen operators reported was only $26,414.

The total number of persons engaged in connection with producing mines, quarries and wells, as reported on Dec. 15, 1909, or nearest representative day, was 1,139,332, of whom wage earners numbered 1,065,283, proprietors and firm members 292 and salaried employees 44,127. In mines, quarries and wells for which development work only was carried on there were a total of 27,616 persons, of whom 21,499 were wage earners. Of the total number of persons, 1,166,948, employed in productive and non-productive mines, 1,153,775 were men 16 years of age and over, and 8,173 were boys under 16 years of age. Distributed by sex, 1,162,840 were male and 4,108 female, the latter being employed in supervisory and clerical capacities.

The total capital invested in all mining enterprises on Dec. 31, 1909, as reported, was $3,662,567,064, of which $3,380,525,841 was invested in productive enterprises and $282,001,223 in those in which development work only was carried on.

FIRE IN HOUSTON, TEX.

Houston, Tex., was visited by a fire on the morning of Feb. 21, 1912, which destroyed $7,000,000 worth of property and made several hundred persons homeless. Twenty-five squares of buildings were burned, including many manufacturing plants and a number of cotton warehouses. More than 250 structures, all in the eastern part of the city, were swept away by the flames, which were fanned by a strong and cold wind from the north. The loss on cotton alone was more than $2,000,000.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS KILLED IN WRECK.

James T. Harahan, former president of the Illinois Central Railroad company, F. O. Melcher, second vice-president, and E. B. Peirce, general solicitor of the Rock Island Railroad company, and Eldridge E. Wright, son of former Secretary of War Luke E. Wright, were killed in a wreck on the Illinois Central line at Kilmundy, Ill., at 1 a. m., Jan. 22, 1912. A number of other passengers and several trainmen were injured. Mr. Harahan and the others killed were asleep in a private car attached to the rear of an express train, which had stopped at Kilmundy to take water. While it was standing still the Panama Limited, running at fifty miles an hour, crashed into the private car, demolishing it and instantly killing the men named. Both trains were behind time. The Limited was not scheduled to stop at Kilmundy.

FEATURES OF CONVENTION.

The republican national nominating convention of 1912 was held in the Coliseum, Chicago, beginning at noon, Tuesday, June 18, and ending at 10:30 on the evening of Saturday, June 22. Details of the preceding contest for delegates will be found elsewhere in this volume under the title "The Presidential Campaign of 1912." It is sufficient to say here that the struggle was chiefly between William H. Taft, candidate for renomination, and Theodore Roosevelt, candidate for a third term as president of the United States. The former was supported by the "conservative" and the latter by the "progressive" element of the republican party. Contesting delegations were chosen in many of the states and, in order to pass upon them before the opening of the convention, the national committee met in Chicago June 6. Victor Rosewater of Nebraska acted as chairman and William Hayward of the same state as secretary. It was decided to have the hearings open to the extent of admitting ten representatives of press associations. Contests were reported from Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington and the District of Columbia. The total number of seats involved was 252, but a number of the contests were between rival sets of delegates favoring the same candidate. The seats contested by Taft and Roosevelt delegates numbered 246 and of these 233 were awarded to Mr. Taft and 13 to Col. Roosevelt, as follows:

For Taft—		For Taft—
Alabama	16	Tennessee	8
Arizona	6	Texas	26
Arkansas	16	Virginia	20
California	2	Washington	14
Florida	12	District of Columbia..	2
Georgia	28
Indiana	12	Total	233
Kentucky	17
Louisiana	20	For Roosevelt—
Michigan	6	Kentucky	1
Mississippi	18	Missouri	8
Missouri	6	Texas	4
South Carolina	2	Total	13

Before the contests were taken up it was decided that twenty votes would be necessary to demand a roll call. As the members of the committee favoring the Roosevelt candidacy did not exceed that number the roll calls were comparatively few, most of the cases being decided by voice vote. The committeemen who generally voted to seat Roosevelt contestants included George A. Knight (Cal.), T. C. Dupont (Del.), W. E. Borah (Idaho), A. B. Burnam (Ky.), Pearl Wight (La.), Frank B. Kellogg (Minn.), John G. Capers (S. C.), Thomas Thorson (S. D.), C. E. Loose (Utah), A. T. Rogers (Wis.) and Sidney Bieber (D. C.). From the start of the hearings the Taft committeemen were charged with using "steam roller" tactics in keeping Roosevelt delegates off the temporary roll of the convention. The charge was denied and the claim made that each case was decided on its merits and in accordance with republican precedent and usage.

Col. Roosevelt, whose interests in Chicago had been looked after by United States Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana and others, sent State Senator William Flinn of Pittsburgh, Pa., to assist them at the sessions of the national committee and finally came in person, June 15, to lead what he publicly said was a "naked fight against theft and thieves." In a signed statement, published June 17, he further declared that "the theft of Texas and Washington, with which the national committeemen closed a thoroughly disreputable career, marked in some respects the climax of what had been done. The theft of these two states was no worse in kind than the theft of the delegates from Arizona, California and certain other states. But more delegates were stolen in Texas and in Washington than in any of the other states." At a mass meeting of his friends in the Auditorium on the night before the opening of the convention Col. Roosevelt severely criticised the national committee and said, among other things, that "it is our duty to the people of the country to insist that no action of the convention which is based on the votes of these fraudulently seated delegates binds the republican party or imposes any obligation upon any republican."

ELIHU ROOT FOR CHAIRMAN.

Immediately after the convention was called to order by Victor Rosewater at noon, June 18, Gov. Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri made a motion to substitute for the temporary roll of the convention prepared by the national committee a roll prepared by the Roosevelt forces containing the names of ninety-two Roosevelt delegates in certain contested cases. James E. Watson of Indiana raised the point of order that nothing was in order until the convention had been organized. The question was debated and the chairman ruled that Gov. Hadley's motion was out of order. Then Mr. Rosewater offered Elihu Root of New York as the national committee's nomination for temporary chairman. The nomination was seconded by Job E. Hedges of New York, Senator William O'Connell Bradley of Kentucky and others representing the Taft adherents. The Roosevelt candidate was Gov. Francis E. McGovern of Wisconsin, who was nominated by Henry F. Cochems of the same state, the nomination being seconded by Gov. Hadley, Gov. Hiram Johnson of California, William Flinn of Pennsylvania, Francis J. Heney of California and other speakers. Something of a stir was caused when Walter L. Houser of Wisconsin, Senator LaFollette's campaign manager declared that in obedience to the wishes of the senator the Wisconsin delegation had decided to support no candidate for temporary chairman. This caused Mr. Cochems to withdraw from the delegation. The roll was called by individual delegates instead of by states and resulted in the election of Elihu Root by a vote of 558 to 502, as follows:

When the result of the ballot had been announced Senator Root made his "keynote" speech, at the conclusion of which the convention adjourned until 11 a. m. on the following day.

The Roosevelt delegates, who were refused admission to the temporary roll, were distributed as follows:

Alabama	2	Oklahoma	2
Arizona	6	Tennessee	4
Arkansas	2	Texas	26
California	2	Washington	14
Indiana	2	Virginia	18
Kentucky	6	District of Columbia..	2

On the reassembling of the delegates at 11 a. m. Wednesday, the chairman announced that the unfinished business was the motion of Mr. Watson to proceed to the appointment of the regular committees and the substitute motion of Gov. Hadley to seat the Roosevelt delegates in place of an equal number of Taft men on the temporary roll. By agreement three hours were devoted to debate. The principal pleas of the Roosevelt side were made by Gov. Hadley of Missouri, George L. Record of New Jersey and Henry J. Allen of Kansas. The leading speakers of the other side were Mr. Watson of Indiana, W. F. Dorell of Washington, James A. Hemenway of Indiana, Robert E. Morris of Arizona and Thomas J. Devine of Colorado. After considerable confusion and a forty minute Roosevelt demonstrations, started by Mrs. W. A. Davis of Chicago, Mr. Watson moved to refer to the credentials committee the motion to seat the ninety-two Roosevelt delegates. Gov. Charles S. Deneen moved an amendment providing that no contested delegates should vote on the membership of the credentials committee or on its report. Mr. Watson then moved to table the Deneen motion and on this the roll was called by states and the Deneen amendment was tabled by a vote 564 to 510. The motion to appoint the standing committees was then adopted without a contest and the names suggested by the state caucuses were sent in, after which the convention adjourned until noon of the following day, Thursday.

RULES.

The committee organized by the election of Thomas J. Devine, national committeeman from Colorado and an anti-Roosevelt man, as chairman. He defeated W. S. Lauder of North Dakota by a vote of 30 to 18. The states voting for Lauder were California, Idaho, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wisconsin. James A. Hemenway of Indiana made a motion to adopt a set of rules, one of which provided that ten minutes should be given each side for the presentation of cases affecting the delegations at large and five minutes for district contests. Before any further action was taken the Roosevelt members of the committee, led by Mr. Heney of California, left the room and went to the Roosevelt headquarters in the Congress hotel. This was done, it was said, at the request of Col. Roosevelt himself. Those who went out included Messrs. Heney, Galvin, Mitchell, Libby, Carrington, Halbert, Sackett, Cowles, Sullivan, Swift, Norton and Ray. Four Roosevelt adherents remained and voted against the adoption of the rules. These were C. St. Clair of Idaho, Robert R. McCormick of Illinois, W. S. Lauder of North Dakota and John N. Early of Tennessee. The rules, as amended after the retirement of the Roosevelt men and adopted by a vote of 36 to 4, were as follows:

1. The roll of the states shall first be called to ascertain what contests are to be submitted, and they shall be heard in the alphabetical order of states and territories and the District of Columbia.
2. Cases consolidated by the national committee shall be consolidated for hearing by the committee on credentials.

3. Contestants not seated by the national committee shall open their case.

4. Thirty minutes to each side will be allowed in contests over delegates at large and twenty minutes in district contests. The contestant may reserve five minutes of this time to close the argument. Parties to contests shall be given all time that may be reasonably necessary to present before the committee all their evidence.

5. Immediately after each case is heard the committee will, after discussion, pass upon it.

6. No member of this committee shall be permitted to vote in any case wherein such member holds his seat in the facts involved in the contests, and such member shall retire from the room while the committee is discussing and acting upon his case.

7. No one shall be admitted to the hearings before the committee except the officers and employees of the committee and the parties to the case being heard and their attorneys, except the five press associations admitted by the national committee.

PROPOSED BOLT.

Talk of a bolt by the Roosevelt delegates was common at this stage of the proceedings and a large number of them met in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel at 12:30 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, after the walkout from the credentials committee. In the course of a speech made to them Col. Roosevelt said:

"So far as I am concerned I am through. If you are voted down I hope you—the real and lawful majority of the convention—will organize as such and you will do it if you have the courage and loyalty of your convictions."

At a later meeting held in the same place the following resolution, prepared by Henry J. Allen of Kansas, was adopted unanimously:

"The Roosevelt delegates will not permit the title to the nomination of the presidency of the United States to be stolen. If the action of the convention on the report of the committee on credentials removes from the roll the fraudulently seated delegates, the Roosevelt forces will continue in the convention. If it does not, they will remain in their seats and will cease to vote with any delegates fraudulently seated and will not consider themselves bound by any of its acts."

There was, however, considerable opposition on the part of some of the delegates to a bolt or walkout and also to the plan to refrain from voting. Illinois' delegation at a caucus held Thursday afternoon went on record by a vote of 50 to 2 as declining to bolt.

The credentials committee was in session practically day and night from Wednesday evening until Saturday afternoon, when its report as a whole was accepted by the convention. The findings of the committee were the same as those of the national committee, the votes usually standing 34 to 14 for the Taft delegates. Most of the Roosevelt members of the committee returned and took part in the discussions. They laid the greatest stress on the Arizona, California, Texas and Washington cases.

CONTESTS BEFORE CONVENTION.

Thursday but two brief sessions of the convention were held, one at noon and the other at 4 p. m. No business was transacted, as the credentials committee was not ready to report. Friday at noon partial reports were made by the credentials committee to the convention and these were taken up one by one and voted on by the delegates. Most of the balloting was intra voce, but a number of roll calls were had. The closest vote was on the contest from the 4th California district, in which the committee was sustained by 542 yeas to 529 nays. Saturday the rest of the contested cases were disposed of in a similar way, after which the committee on permanent organization made its report. It recommended that the temporary organization be made permanent. The report was adopted without opposition.

STATEMENT BY ROOSEVELT.

Then by unanimous consent Henry J. Allen of Kansas made a speech, in which he read the following statement from Col. Roosevelt:

"A clear majority of the delegates honestly elected to this convention were chosen by the people to nominate me. Under the direction and with the encouragement of Mr. Taft, the majority of the national committee, by the so called "steam roller" methods, and with scandalous disregard of every principle of elementary honesty and decency, stole eighty or ninety delegates, putting on the temporary roll call a sufficient number of fraudulent delegates to defeat the legally expressed will of the people, and to substitute a dishonest for an honest majority.

"The convention has now declined to purge the roll of the fraudulent delegates placed thereon by the defunct national committee, and the majority which thus indorsed fraud was made a majority only because it included the fraudulent delegates themselves, who all sat as judges on one another's cases. If these fraudulent votes had not thus been cast and counted the convention would have been purged of their presence. This action makes the convention in no proper sense any longer a republican convention representing the real republican party. Therefore I hope the men elected as Roosevelt delegates will now decline to vote on any matter before the convention. I do not release any delegate from his honorable obligation to vote for me if he votes at all, but under the actual conditions I hope he will not vote at all.

"The convention as now composed has no claim to represent the voters of the republican party. It represents nothing but successful fraud in overriding the will of the rank and file of the party. Any man nominated by the convention as now constituted would be merely the beneficiary of this successful fraud; it would be deeply discreditable to any man to accept the convention's nomination under these circumstances; and any man thus accepting it would have no claim to the support of any republican on party grounds, and would have forfeited the right to ask the support of any honest man of any party on moral grounds.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT,"

After Mr. Allen had concluded his speech the report of the committee on rules was tabled, leaving the convention to operate under the old rules. The report of the committee on platform was also adopted after a platform presented by the LaFollette adherents had been tabled. The roll was called on the adoption of the platform, with the result that 666 delegates voted for the platform and 53 against it. Nineteen were reported as absent, while 343 Roosevelt delegates refrained from voting.

NOMINATIONS MADE.

Nominations for president and vice-president were then made. The call of states and the voting began at 8:23 p. m. and ended at 9:25 p. m., with the announcement that William H. Taft was the nominee of the republican party for president. The naming of James S. Sherman for vice-president followed immediately, being accomplished without organized opposition. A resolution offered by Mr. Hemenway authorizing the removal of members of the national committee refusing to support Taft and Sherman in the campaign and the substitution of others in their places was adopted and then the convention at 10:30 p. m. adjourned sine die.

THIRD PARTY MOVEMENT.

Just before the convention adjourned a meeting of Roosevelt adherents, including regular and contested delegates from twenty-two states and men of prominence in the progressive movement, met in Orchestra hall and took preliminary steps to form a third party, with Theodore Roosevelt at its head. Gov. H. W. Johnson of California presided. In reply to a set of resolutions nominating him for the presidency Col. Roosevelt appeared and made a speech of acceptance. The meeting, which was the closing feature of convention week in Chicago, ended early Sunday morning. Further details of the action taken on this occasion and of the progress of the third party movement will be found elsewhere in this volume.

STORY OF CONVENTION.

Before the democratic national nominating convention opened in the 5th regiment armory in Baltimore, Md., June 25, the national committee, against the protest of William J. Bryan of Nebraska, voted to present Alton B. Parker of New York as candidate for temporary chairman. It also took up the contest against the six delegates at large from Illinois and those from the first ten congressional districts, comprising the city of Chicago. The contests were brought by the so called Hearst-Harrison faction against the Roger C. Sullivan faction. The Sullivan delegates were placed on the temporary roll by the unanimous vote of the committee.

Shortly after the convention had been called to order at noon on the opening day by the chairman of the national committee, Norman E. Mack, Alton B. Parker was named as the committee's choice for temporary chairman. Mr. Bryan suggested that Senator John W. Kern of Indiana be substituted, but the latter declined to allow his name to go before the convention and instead nominated William J. Bryan for the place. On the roll being called Judge Parker was elected by a vote of 579 to 510 for Mr. Bryan. Mr. Parker's "keynote" speech was devoted in the main to criticisms of the republican party and especially to the scores enacted in the Chicago convention the week before.

UNIT RULE MODIFIED.

Undaunted by his defeat on the temporary chairmanship, Mr. Bryan went into the convention of the following day and won several notable victories. One was the adoption of a minority report modifying the unit rule. The substance of the report was that "the chair shall recognize and enforce a unit rule adopted by a state convention except in such states which by statute have provided for the nomination and election of delegates in congressional districts and have not subjected the delegates so selected to the authority of the state committee or convention of the party, in which case no such rule shall be held to apply."

The vote in favor of abrogating the unit rule to the extent indicated was 553½ for to 491½ against and was regarded as a distinct victory for the "progressives" in the convention. Mr. Bryan's plan to delay the consideration of the platform until after the nominations were made was also adopted and at his suggestion Senator Kern was made chairman of the platform committee. It was further decided that Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky, who was favored by Mr. Bryan and his friends, should be permanent chairman of the convention.

The committee on credentials, to which had been referred the Illinois contests, decided by a vote of 40 to 10 in favor of seating the Sullivan delegates. The Hearst-Harrison faction threatened to carry the fight to the floor of the convention, but finally gave up the plan in the interest of harmony. Nothing further was done in the matter.

CAPITALISTS ATTACKED.

Mr. Bryan was again the central figure of the convention at the sessions held on the 27th. The morning was devoted to routine business, but in the evening the Nebraskan caused a decided sensation by offering the following resolution:

"Resolved, That in this crisis in our party's career and in our country's history this convention sends greeting to the people of the United States and assures them that the party of Jefferson and of Jackson is still the champion of popular government and equity before the law. As proof of our fidelity to the people we hereby declare ourselves opposed to the nomination of any candidate for president who is the representative of or under any obligations to J. Pierpont Morgan, Thomas F. Ryan, August Belmont or any other member of the privilege hunting and favor seeking class. Be it further

"Resolved, That we demand the withdrawal from this convention of any delegate or delegates constituting or representing the above named interests." [Last paragraph withdrawn.]

Objection was made to immediate consideration of the resolution, whereupon Mr. Bryan moved to suspend the rule and consider the resolution at once. After some discussion and at the request of the delegates from Virginia he withdrew the last part of the resolution asking the withdrawal of delegates. In the course of his speech, which was frequently interrupted by angry protests, Mr. Bryan said:

"This is an extraordinary resolution, but extraordinary conditions need extraordinary remedies. We are now engaged in conducting a convention that will place before the country the democratic nominee, and I assume that each delegate is here because he wants that nominee elected, and it is in order that we may advance the interests of our candidate that I introduce this resolution.

"There are questions upon which we may assume the American people are informed. And there is not a delegate in this convention who does not know that an effort is being made right now to sell the democratic party into the bondage of the predatory interests.

"It is a most brazen, impudent and insolent attempt to make the nominee of this convention the bond slave of the men who exploit the people of this country."

It required a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules and pass the resolution and when it became apparent that this would easily be obtained several of the states changed their vote to yea. The result of the roll call was: Yeas, 889; nays, 196; not voting, 2; absent, 1.

BALLOTS FOR PRESIDENT.

Following the adoption of the Bryan resolution, which had thrown the convention into an uproar, nominations for the presidency were in order. Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama was placed in nomination by John H. Bankhead of the same state; Champ Clark's name was presented by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri; Henry Wade Rogers of New Haven nominated Gov. Simon E. Baldwin of Connecticut; John W. Westcott of Camden, N. J., placed Woodrow Wilson in nomination; Senator Benjamin F. Shively of Indiana nominated Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of the same state, and M. A. Daugherty of Ohio nominated Gov. Judson Harmon of the same state. Long demonstrations followed the naming of each candidate, those for Clark and Wilson lasting more than an hour each. This, together with the numerous seconding speeches, prolonged the session, which began at 8 o'clock Thursday evening to 6:43 o'clock Friday morning, when the first ballot for the presidential nomination was begun. It resulted as follows:

Marshall received 30 from Indiana and 1 from Michigan. Baldwin received 14 from Connecticut and 8 from Vermont. Ohio cast 1 for Bryan and 1 was absent. One delegate from Wisconsin was absent. Alaska cast 2 for Congressman Sulzer.

The convention, after taking the first ballot, adjourned at 7:14 a. m. to 4 p. m., when the balloting was resumed. It continued without any decisive result until 3:30 o'clock Saturday morning, when an adjournment was taken until 1 o'clock in the afternoon. On the tenth ballot New York cast its ninety votes for Clark instead of for Harmon and for a time it looked as though a stampede would set in for the Missouri candidate. He received 556 votes, which, as announced, was more than a majority, but far short of the required two-thirds vote. It was the high water mark of the Clark wave after that it receded steadily.

The afternoon session continued until 11 o'clock and after a total of twenty-six ballots had been taken the convention adjourned until Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Wilson made a net gain in the course of the day of fifty-one votes. Clark began with 554 and fell to 463½, a loss of 90½ votes. When the state of Nebraska was reached on the call of the roll for the fourteenth ballot Mr. Bryan changed his vote from Clark to Wilson, explaining that the latter was this state's second choice. He said in part:

"Every candidate has proclaimed himself a progressive—no candidate would have any considerable following in this convention if he admitted himself out of harmony with progressive ideas. By your resolution, adopted night before last, you, by a vote of more than four to one, pledged the country that you would nominate for the presidency no man who represented or was obligated to Morgan, Ryan, Belmont or any other member of the privilege seeking, favor hunting class.

"This pledge, if kept, will have more influence on the result of the election than the platform or the name of the candidate. How can that pledge be made effective? There is but one way, namely, to nominate a candidate who is under no obligation to those whom these influences directly or indirectly control.

"The vote of the state of New York in this convention, as cast under the unit rule, does not represent the intelligence, the virtue, the democracy or the patriotism of the ninety men who are here. It represents the will of one man—Charles F. Murphy—and he represents the influences that nominated a republican candidate and which are trying to dominate here. If we nominate a candidate under conditions that enable these influences to say to our candidate, 'Remember now thy creator,' we cannot hope to appeal to the confidence of the progressive democrats and republicans of the nation. * * * Speaking for myself and for any of the delegation which may decide to join me, I withhold my vote from Mr. Clark as long as New York's vote is recorded for him."

While Mr. Bryan was making his explanation he was frequently interrupted and the convention was in such an uproar that he had difficulty in making himself heard. Twelve of the Nebraska delegates voted for Wilson and four for Clark. While the effect of the change was not very apparent on this or the other ballots taken on this day, it was understood that Speaker Clark's chances had practically vanished, and he himself afterward said that Mr. Bryan was responsible for his defeat.

Balloting was resumed when the convention opened at noon on Monday and continued until 12:43 o'clock Tuesday morning. The feature of the session was the continuous growth of the Wilson vote. On the thirtieth ballot Wilson for the first time passed Clark, his vote being 460 to 455 for the speaker. On the thirty-ninth and fortieth ballots the New Jersey candidate received 501½ votes, the highest number so far cast for him.

When the thirty-third ballot had been completed and the delegates were awaiting the announcement of the result some of the Missouri delegates appeared with a banner, on which was an inscription quoting Mr. Bryan as having said in 1910: "I have known Champ Clark for eighteen years. He is absolutely incorruptible and his life is above reproach. Never in these years have I known him to be on but one side of the question and that was on the side that represented the people." The Missouri men carried the banner up to the Nebraska delegates and in front of Mr. Bryan himself. A melee followed, in which blows were struck and epithets exchanged. Mr. Bryan went to the Missouri delegation and asked Senator Stone, the chairman, if "the gratuitous insult just offered has the sanction of Mr. Clark's managers." Another riot followed, in which the police had to protect Mr. Bryan from personal violence. Later, when some degree of quiet had been secured, Mr. Bryan arose to a question of personal privilege. Chairman James permitted him to begin his statement, but soon interrupted and, declaring that it was not a matter of personal privilege, denied the Nebraskan the right to continue. The anti-Bryan demonstration was attended by scenes of disorder and violence such as had not previously been witnessed in the convention and was in marked contrast with the favor shown the leader on the previous days.

Forty-two ballots had been taken when the convention adjourned until noon, the last ballot showing 494 votes for Wilson, 430 for Clark and 104 for Underwood, with scattering votes for Harmon, Marshall, Baldwin, Bryan, Sulzer and Kern. On reassembling the delegates took three more ballots without result, though the outcome could be foreseen when on the forty-third ballot Illinois, under the unit rule, cast fifty-eight votes for Wilson. The governor made other gains, swelling his total to 602, while Clark dropped back to 329. The forty-fourth ballot gave Wilson 629 and the forty-fifth made it 633. On the forty-sixth ballot there was a general break in favor of Wilson and he was nominated by a vote of 990 to 84 for Clark and 12 for Harmon. Before the result was announced the vote was made unanimous. The forty-sixth and final ballot was as follows:

After Chairman James had officially declared Gov. Wilson the nominee of the democratic party for president the convention, at 3:35 p. m. on Tuesday, July 2, adjourned until 9 p. m., when the convention resumed work by adopting the platform and choosing a candidate for the vice-presidency. An effort was made to nominate Clark for the second place on the ticket, but he declined the honor. The names of Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Martin J. Wade of Iowa, Gov. Chamberlain of Oregon and William J. Bryan of Nebraska were presented. Some of these gentlemen declined to be considered in connection with the position. Mr. Bryan was one of them, and in making what he called his "valedictory speech" said: "To-night with joy I surrender the standard I have borne in three campaigns to the nominee of this convention, and I challenge any one to say that it has ever been lowered in the face of the enemy." Gov. Marshall was nominated on the second ballot by the following vote:

Thirty absent from Pennsylvania.

The nomination of Marshall was made unanimous and then the convention, at 1:53 a. m. July 3, adjourned sine die.

PROHIBITION.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10-12.

OFFICERS.

Temporary chairman—Clinton N. Howard, New York.

Permanent chairman—Dr. Charles Henry Mead, New York.

Permanent secretary—Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp, Kentucky.

Number of delegates—Eligible, 1,484; present, 872.

Necessary to a choice—437.

NOMINEES.

For president—Eugene Wilder Chafin of Arizona.
For vice-president—Aaron Sherman Watkins of Ohio.

The national nominating convention of the prohibition party was held in the auditorium on the steel pier at Atlantic City, N. J., July 10-12, and resulted in the nomination of Eugene W. Chafin of Arizona for the presidency and Aaron S. Watkins of Ohio for the vice-presidency on the first ballot. Four candidates for president were placed in nomination against Mr. Chafin. They were F. W. Emerson of California, Finley C. Hendrickson of Maryland, Aaron S. Watkins of Ohio and Andrew Jackson Houston of Texas. Each of these withdrew his name when it appeared on the first ballot that Chafin was supported by a majority of the delegates. The same thing occurred after the first ballot on the vice-presidency, Mr. Emerson of California, Felix T. McWhirter of Indiana and George B. Stockwell of New York, who had been placed in nomination, withdrawing their names.

V. G. Hinshaw of Portland, Ore., was chosen national chairman to succeed Charles H. Jones of Chicago, and Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp of Lexington, Ky., was made secretary.

PROGRESSIVE.

Chicago, Aug. 5-7.

OFFICERS.

Chairman—Albert J. Beveridge, Indiana.

General secretary—Oscar King Davis, Washington, D. C.

Chief assistant secretary—Wilson Brooks, Illinois.

Sergeant-at-arms—Chauncey Dewey, Illinois.

NOMINEES.

For president—Theodore Roosevelt of New York. Nominating speech made by William Prendergast, New York; seconding speeches made by Jane Addams, Illinois; Col. T. P. Floyd, Florida; Judge Ben Lindsey, Colorado; Gen. Horatio King, New York; John H. McDowell, Tennessee; Henry Allen, Kansas; P. V. Collins, Minnesota; John J. Sullivan, Ohio; Robert S. Fisher, Oklahoma; Alexander T. Hamilton, Georgia, and ex-Gov. L. F. C. Garvin, Rhode Island.

For vice-president—Hiram W. Johnson of California. Nominating speech made by John M. Parker, Louisiana; seconding speeches made by C. S. Wheeler, California; James R. Garfield, Ohio; Frederick Landis, Indiana; Raymond Robins, Illinois; Bainbridge Colby, New York; Gifford Pinchot, Washington, D. C.; William Flinn, Pennsylvania; F. R. Glud, New York, and Gov. Robert S. Vessey, South Dakota.

The national nominating convention of the seceding republican faction, officially designated as the progressive party, was held in the Coliseum, Chicago, Aug. 5, 6 and 7. All the states in the union except South Carolina were represented by delegates to the number of more than 1,100, the voting strength, however, being limited to 534. There were no important contests and, as the nominations were unanimous, there were no roll calls. The naming of Theodore Roosevelt for president was a foregone conclusion and caused no surprise.

There was some talk of making either Judge Ben Lindsey of Colorado or John M. Parker of Louisiana the candidate for the vice-presidency, but the sentiment of the delegates crystallized in favor of Gov. Hiram W. Johnson of California and he was nominated without opposition. The features of the convention were the "keynote" speeches of Theodore Roosevelt and Chairman Beveridge, the barring of certain negro delegates from the south and the appearance of a woman—Miss Jane Addams of Chicago—in the role of seconding the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt.

The committee on rules made a report, which was adopted by the convention, that the name of the new organization should be the "progressive party." It was also decided on the recommendation of the same committee that the basis of representation at the next national convention shall be one delegate for each congressional district, and in districts where the party vote is greater than 5,000 one additional delegate for each additional 5,000 votes or major fraction thereof. Each state is to have in addition two delegates at large. The District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii are to have one delegate each. The platform adopted will be found in full elsewhere in this volume.

For the circumstances leading up to the formation of the progressive party see "The Presidential Campaign of 1912" and the proceedings of the republican national convention detailed in this issue of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book.

POPULIST.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13.

OFFICERS.

Chairman—S. W. Williams, Indiana.
Secretary—Joseph A. Parker, Missouri.
Delegates—Eight.

Eight delegates, representing the populist party of the United States, held a convention at the New St. James hotel in St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13. No attempt was made to make any nominations for president and vice-president, nor were the candidates of any other party indorsed. The members of the organization were advised that they were at liberty to vote for any candidate they pleased. Samuel W. Williams of Vincennes, Ind., was elected chairman of the organization; F. J. Robinson of Cloverland, Ind., secretary, and J. A. Parker of Parma, Mo., vice-chairman. It was announced that no treasurer was needed. The principal work of the gathering was to draw up and adopt a platform, a summary of which will be found elsewhere in this volume. (See index.)

DEATH OF WILBUR WRIGHT.

Wilbur Wright, aeroplane inventor and aviator, died at his home in Dayton, O., at 3:15 a. m., Thursday, May 30, 1912, from an attack of typhoid fever. He became ill May 4 while on a business trip in Boston and after his return rapidly grew worse until the end came. Wilbur Wright and his brother Orville were the first persons to make aviation a practical art and a commercial success. For a long time they worked in secret and their ability to fly in a heavier-than-air machine was doubted until finally it was demonstrated in public in the United States and France. Both won many prizes at home and abroad and in 1909 congress awarded them a gold medal "in recognition and appreciation of their ability, courage and success in navigating the air." He and his brother abandoned actual flying in 1910 and devoted themselves to the manufacture of aeroplanes. Wilbur Wright was born in 1867 on a farm in Henry county, Indiana.

NATIONAL PARTY PLATFORMS OF 1912.

SOCIALIST LABOR.

Adopted at New York city, April 10.

The programme of the socialist labor party is revolution—the industrial or socialist republic, the social order where the political state is overthrown; where the congress of the land consists of the representatives of the useful occupations of the land; where, accordingly, government is an essential factor in production; where the blessings to man that the trust is instinct with are freed from the trammels of the private ownership that now turn the potential blessings into a curse; where, accordingly, abundance can be the patrimony of all who work, and the shackles of wage slavery are no more.

In keeping with the goals of the different programmes are the means for their execution.

The means in contemplation by reaction is the bayonet. To this end reaction is seeking, by means of the police spy and other agencies, to lash the proletariat into acts of violence that may give a color to the resort to the bayonet. By its maneuvers it is egging the working class on to deeds of fury. The capitalist press echoes the policy, while the pure and simple political socialist party press, generally, is snared into the trap.

On the contrary, the means firmly adhered to by the socialist labor party is the constitutional method of political action, backed by the industrially and class consciously organized proletariat to the exclusion of anarchy, and all that thereby hangs.

At such a critical period in the nation's existence the socialist labor party calls upon the working class of America, more deliberately serious than ever before, to rally at the polls under the party's banner. And the party also calls upon all intelligent citizens to place themselves squarely upon the ground of working class interests, and join us in this mighty and noble work of human emancipation, so that we may put summary end to the existing barbarous class conflict by placing the land and all the means of production, transportation and distribution into the hands of the people as a collective body, and substituting for the present state of planless production, industrial war and social disorder, the socialist or industrial commonwealth—a commonwealth in which every worker shall have the free exercise and full benefit of his faculties, multiplied by all the modern factors of civilization.

SOCIALIST.

Adopted at Indianapolis, Ind., May 17.

The socialist party of the United States declares that the capitalist system has outgrown its historical function and has become utterly incapable of meeting the problems confronting society. We denounce this outgrown system as incompetent and corrupt and the source of unspeakable misery and suffering to the whole working class.

Under this system the industrial equipment of the nation has passed into the absolute control of a plutocracy which exacts an annual tribute of millions of dollars from the producers in payment of any organized resistance. It stretches out its greedy hands over the still undeveloped resources of the nation—the land, the mines, the forests and the water powers of every state in the union.

In spite of the multiplication of labor saving machines and improved methods in industry which cheapen the cost of production, the share of the producers grows ever less, and the prices of all the necessities of life steadily increase. The boasted prosperity of this nation is for the owning class alone. To the rest it means only greater hardship and misery. The high cost of living is felt in every home. Millions of wage workers have seen the purchasing power of their wages decrease until life has become a desperate battle for mere existence.

Multitudes of unemployed walk the streets of our cities or trudge from state to state awaiting the will of the masters to move the wheels of industry.

The farmers in every state are plundered by the increasing prices exacted for tools and machinery and by extortionate rent, freight rates and storage charges.

Capitalist concentration is mercilessly crushing the class of small business men and driving its members into the ranks of propertyless wage workers. The overwhelming majority of the people of America are being forced under a yoke of bondage by this soulless industrial despotism.

It is this capitalist system that is responsible for the increasing burden of armaments, the poverty, slums, child labor, most of the insanity, crime and prostitution and much of the disease that afflicts mankind.

Under this system the working class is exposed to poisonous conditions, to frightful and needless perils of life and limb, is walled around with court decisions, lifejunctions and unjust laws and is preyed upon incessantly for the benefit of the controlling oligarchy of wealth. Under it also the children of the working class are doomed to ignorance, drugging toll and darkened lives.

In the face of these evils, so manifest that all thoughtful observers are appalled at them, the legislative representatives of the republican, democratic and all reform parties remain the faithful servants of the oppressors. Measures designed to secure to the wage earners of this nation as humane and just treatment as is already enjoyed by the wage earners of all other civilized nations have been smothered in committee without debate, and laws ostensibly designed to bring relief to the farmers and general consumers are juggled and transformed into instruments for the exaction of further tribute. The growing unrest under oppression has driven these two old parties to the enactment of a variety of regulative measures, none of which has limited in any appreciable degree the power of the plutocracy, and some of which have been perverted into means of increasing that power. Antitrust laws, railroad restrictions and regulations, with the prosecutions, indictments and investigations based upon such legislation, have proved to be utterly futile and ridiculous.

Nor has this plutocracy been seriously restrained or even threatened by any republican or democratic executive. It has continued to grow in power and insolence alike under the administrations of Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft.

In addition to this legislative juggling and this executive connivance the courts of America have sanctioned and strengthened the hold of this plutocracy as the Dred Scott and other decisions strengthened the slave power before the civil war.

We declare, therefore, that the longer sufferance of these conditions is impossible and we purpose to end them all. We declare them to be the product of the present system, in which industry is carried on for private greed, instead of for the welfare of society. We declare, furthermore, that for these evils there will be and can be no remedy and no substantial relief except through socialism, under which industry will be carried on for the common good and every worker receive the full social value of the wealth he creates.

Society is divided into warring groups and classes, based upon material interests. Fundamentally this struggle is a conflict between the two main classes, one of which, the capitalist class, owns the means of production, and the other, the working class, must use these means of production on terms dictated by the owners.

The capitalist class, though few in number, absolutely controls the government—legislative, executive and judicial. This class owns the machinery of gathering and disseminating news through its organized press. It subsidizes seats of learning—the colleges and schools—and even religious and moral agencies. It has also the added prestige which established customs give to any order of society, right or wrong.

The working class, which includes all those who are forced to work for a living, whether by hand or brain, in shop, mine or on the soil, vastly outnumbers the capitalist class. Lacking effective organization and class solidarity, this class is unable to enforce its will. Given such class solidarity and effective organization, the workers will have the power to make all laws and control all industry in their own interest.

All political parties are the expression of economic and class interests. All other parties than the socialist party represent one or another group of the ruling capitalist class. Their political conflicts reflect merely superficial rivalries between competing capitalist groups. However they result, these conflicts have no issue of real value to the workers. Whether the democrats or republicans win politically, it is the capitalist class that is victorious economically.

The socialist party is the political expression of the economic interests of the workers. Its defeats have been their defeats and its victories their victories. It is a party founded on the science and laws of social development. It proposes that, since all social necessities to-day are socially produced, the means of their production and distribution shall be socially owned and democratically controlled.

In the face of the economic and political aggressions of the capitalist class the only reliance left the workers is that of their economic organizations and their political power. By the intelligent and class conscious use of these they may resist successfully the capitalist class, break the fetters of wage slavery and fit themselves for the future society, which is to displace the capitalist system. The socialist party appreciates the full significance of class organization and urges the wage earners, the working farmers and all other useful workers everywhere to organize for economic and political action, and we pledge ourselves to support the toilers of the fields as well as those in the shops, factories and mines, of the nation in their struggles for economic justice.

In the defeat or victory of the working class party in this new struggle for freedom lies the defeat or triumph of the common people of all economic groups, as well as the failure or the triumph of popular government. Thus the socialist party is the party of the present day revolution, which marks the transition from economic individualism to socialism, from wage slavery to free co-operation, from capitalist oligarchy to industrial democracy.

As measures calculated to strengthen the working class in its fight for the realization of its ultimate aim, the co-operative commonwealth, and to increase its power of resistance against capitalist oppression, we advocate and pledge ourselves and our elected officers to the following programme:

1. The collective ownership and democratic management of railroads, wire and wireless telegraphs and telephones, express services, steamboat lines and all other social means of transportation and communication and of all large scale industries.

2. The immediate acquirement by the municipalities, the states or the federal government of all grain elevators, stockyards, storage warehouses and other distributing agencies, in order to reduce the present extortionate cost of living.

3. The extension of the public domain to include mines, quarries, oil wells, forests and water power.

4. The further conservation and development of natural resources for the use and benefit of all the people:

- (a) By scientific forestation and timber protection.

- (b) By the reclamation of arid and swamp tracts.

- (c) By the storage of flood waters and the utilization of water power.

- (d) By the stoppage of the present extravagant waste of the soil and of the products of mines and oil wells.

- (e) By the development of highway and waterway systems.

5. The collective ownership of land wherever practicable, and in cases where such ownership is impracticable the appropriation by taxation of the annual rental value of all land held for speculation.

6. The collective ownership and democratic management of the banking and currency system.

The immediate government relief of the unemployed by the extension of all useful public works. All persons employed on such works to be engaged directly by the government under a workday of not more than eight hours and at not less than the prevailing union wages. The government also to establish employment bureaus; to lend money to states and municipalities without interest for the purpose of carrying on public works, and to take such other measures within its power as will lessen the widespread misery of the workers caused by the misuse of the capitalist class.

The conservation of human resources, particularly of the lives and well-being of the workers and their families:

1. By shortening the workday in keeping with the increased productiveness of machinery.

2. By securing to every worker a rest period of not less than a day and a half in each week.

3. By securing a more effective inspection of workshops, factories and mines.

4. By forbidding the employment of children under 16 years of age.

5. By the co-operative organization of industries in federal penitentiaries and workshops for the benefit of convicts and their dependents.

6. By forbidding the interstate transportation of the products of child labor, of convict labor and of all uninspected factories and mines.

7. By abolishing the profit system in government work and substituting either the direct hire of labor or the awarding of contracts to co-operative groups of workers.

8. By establishing minimum wage scales.

9. By abolishing official charity and substituting a noncontributory system of old age pensions, a general system of insurance by the state of all its members against unemployment and invalidism and a system of compulsory insurance by employers of their workers, without cost to the latter, against industrial diseases, accidents and death.

POLITICAL DEMANDS.

1. The absolute freedom of press, speech and assemblage.

2. The adoption of a graduated income tax, the increase of the rates of the present corporation tax and the extension of inheritance taxes, graduated in proportion to the value of the estate and to nearness of kin—the proceeds of these taxes to be employed in the socialization of industry.

3. The abolition of the monopoly ownership of patents and the substitution of collective ownership, with direct awards to inventors by premiums or royalties.

4. Unrestricted and equal suffrage for men and women.

5. The adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall and of proportional representation, nationally as well as locally.

6. The abolition of the senate and of the veto power of the president.

7. The election of the president and the vice-president by direct vote of the people.

8. The abolition of the power usurped by the Supreme Court of the United States to pass upon the constitutionality of the legislation enacted by congress. National laws to be repealed only by act of congress or by a referendum vote of the whole people.

9. The abolition of the present restrictions upon the amendment of the constitution, so that the instrument may be made amendable by a majority of the voters in a majority of the states.

10. The granting of the right of suffrage in the District of Columbia, with representation in congress and a democratic form of municipal government for purely local affairs.

11. The extension of democratic government to all United States territory.

12. The enactment of further measures for general education and particularly for vocational education in useful pursuits. The bureau of education to be made a department.

13. The enactment of further measures for the conservation of health. The creation of an independent bureau of health with such restrictions as will secure full liberty for all schools of practice.

14. The separation of the present bureau of labor from the department of commerce and labor and its elevation to the rank of a department.

15. Abolition of all federal district courts and the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. State courts to have jurisdiction in all cases arising between citizens of the several states and foreign corporations. The election of all judges for short terms.

16. The immediate curbing of the power of the courts to issue injunctions.

17. The free administration of justice.

18. The calling of a convention for the revision of the constitution of the United States.

Such measures of relief as we may be able to force from capitalism are but a preparation of the workers to seize the whole powers of government in order that they may thereby lay hold of the whole system of socialized industry and thus come to their rightful inheritance.

REPUBLICAN.

Adopted at Chicago June 22.

The republican party, assembled by its representatives in national convention, declares its unchanging faith in government of the people, by the people, for the people. We renew our allegiance to the principles of the republican party and our devotion to the cause of republican institutions established by the fathers.

It is appropriate that we should now recall with a sense of veneration and gratitude the name of our first great leader, who was nominated in this city, and whose lofty principles and superb devotion to his country are an inspiration to the party he honored—Abraham Lincoln. In the present state of public affairs we should be inspired by his broad statesmanship and by his tolerant spirit toward men.

The republican party looks back upon its record with pride and satisfaction, and forward to its new responsibilities with hope and confidence. Its achievements in government constitute the most luminous pages in our history. Our greatest national advance has been made during the years of its ascendancy in public affairs. It has been genuinely and always a party of progress; it has never been either stationary or reactionary. It has gone from the fulfillment of one great pledge to the fulfillment of another in response to the public need and to the popular will.

We believe in our self-controlled representative democracy, which is a government of laws, not of men, and in which order is the prerequisite of progress.

The principles of constitutional government, which make provision for orderly and effective expression of the popular will, for the protection of civil liberty and the rights of men and for the interpretation of the law by an untrammelled and independent judiciary, have proved themselves capable of sustaining the structure of a government which, after more than a century of development, embraces 100,000,000 of people, scattered over a wide and diverse territory, but bound by common purposes, common ideals and common affection to the constitution of the United States.

GROWTH OF UNITED STATES.

Under the constitution and the principles asserted and vitalized by it the United States has grown to be one of the great civilized and civilizing powers of the earth. It offers a home and an opportunity to the ambitious and the industrious from other lands. Resting upon the broad basis of a people's confidence and a people's support, and managed by the people themselves, the government of the United States will meet the problems of the future as satisfactorily as it has solved those of the past.

The republican party is now, as always, a party of advanced and constructive statesmanship. It is prepared to go forward with the solution of those new questions which social, economic and political development have brought into the forefront of the nation's interest. It will strive not only in the nation but in the several states to enact the necessary legislation to safeguard the public health: to limit effectively the labor of women and children; to protect wage earners engaged in dangerous occupations; to enact comprehensive and generous workmen's compensation laws in place of the present wasteful and unjust system of employers' liability, and in all possible ways to satisfy the just demand of the people for the study and solution of the complex and constantly changing problems of social welfare.

RIGHTS OF THE INDIVIDUAL.

In dealing with these questions it is important that the rights of every individual to the freest possible development of his own powers and resources and to the control of his own justly acquired property, so far as those are compatible with the rights of others, shall not be interfered with or destroyed.

The social and political structure of the United States rests upon the civil liberty of the individual, and for the protection of that liberty the people have wisely, in the national and state constitutions, put definite limitations upon themselves and upon their governmental officers and agencies. To enforce these limitations, to secure the orderly and coherent exercise of governmental powers and to protect the rights of even the humblest and least favored individual are the function of independent courts of justice.

The republican party reaffirms its intention to uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts, both state and federal, and it will ever insist that their powers to enforce their process and to protect life, liberty and property shall be preserved inviolate. An orderly method is provided under our system of government by which the people may, when they choose, alter or amend the constitutional provisions which underlie that government.

LAWS AGAINST LONG DELAYS.

Until these constitutional provisions are so altered or amended, in orderly fashion, it is the duty of the courts to see to it that when challenged they are enforced.

That courts, both federal and state, may bear the heavy burden laid upon them to the complete satisfaction of public opinion, we favor legislation to prevent long delays and the tedious and costly appeals which have so often amounted to a denial of justice in civil cases and to a failure to protect the public at large in criminal cases.

Since the responsibility of the judiciary is so great, the standards of judicial action must be always and everywhere above suspicion and reproach. While we regard the recall of judges as unnecessary and unwise, we favor such action as may be necessary to simplify the process by which any judge who is found to be derelict in his duty may be removed from office.

Together with peaceful and orderly development at home, the republican party earnestly favors all measures for the establishment and protection of the peace of the world and for the development of closer relations between the various nations of the earth. It believes most earnestly in the peaceful settlement of international disputes and in the reference of all justiciable controversies between nations to an international court of justice.

MONOPOLY AND PRIVILEGE.

The republican party is opposed to special privilege and to monopoly. It placed upon the statute book the interstate commerce act of 1887 and the important amendments thereto, and the antitrust act of 1890, and it has consistently and successfully enforced the provisions of these laws. It will take no backward step to permit the re-establishment in any degree of conditions which were intolerable.

Experience makes it plain that the business of the country may be carried on without fear or without disturbance, and at the same time without resort to practices which are abhorrent to the common sense of justice.

The republican party favors the enactment of legislation supplementary to the existing antitrust act which will define as criminal offenses those specific acts that uniformly mark attempts to restrain and to monopolize trade, to the end that those who honestly intend to obey the law may have a guide for their action, and that those who aim to violate the law may the more surely be punished.

The same certainty should be given in the law prohibiting combinations and monopolies that characterizes other provisions of commercial law in order that part of the field of business opportunity may be restricted by monopoly or combination, that business success honorably achieved may not be converted into crime and that the right of every man to acquire commodities, and particularly the necessities of life, in an open market uninfluenced by the manipulation of trust or combination may be preserved.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.

In the enforcement and administration of federal laws governing interstate commerce and enterprises impressed with a public use engaged therein, there is much that may be committed to a federal trade commission, thus placing in the hands of an administrative board many of the functions now necessarily exercised by the courts. This will promote promptness in the administration of the law and avoid delays and technicalities incident to court procedure.

THE TARIFF.

We reaffirm our belief in a protective tariff. The republican tariff policy has been of the greatest benefit to the country, developing our resources, diversifying our industries and protecting our workmen against competition with cheaper labor abroad, thus establishing for our wage earners the American standard of living.

The protective tariff is so woven into the fabric of our industrial and agricultural life that to substitute for it a tariff for revenue only would destroy many industries and throw millions of our people out of employment. The products of the farm and of the mine should receive the same measure of protection as other products of American labor.

We hold that the import duties should be high enough while yielding a sufficient revenue to protect adequately American industries and wages. Some of the existing import duties are too high and should be reduced. Readjustment should be made from time to time to conform to changed conditions and to reduce excessive rates, but without injury to any American industry.

To accomplish this correct information is indispensable. This information can best be obtained by an expert commission, as the large volume of useful facts contained in the recent reports of the tariff board has demonstrated.

CHANGING CONDITIONS REQUIRE STUDY.

The pronounced feature of modern industrial life is its enormous diversification. To apply tariff rates justly to those changing conditions requires closer study and more scientific methods than ever before. The republican party has shown by its creation of a tariff board its recognition of this situation and its determination to be equal to it.

We condemn the democratic party for its failure either to provide funds for the continuance of this board or to make such other provision for securing the information requisite for intelligent tariff legislation. We protest against the democratic method of legislating on these vitally important subjects without careful investigation.

We condemn the democratic tariff bills passed by the house of representatives of the 62d congress as sectional, as injurious to the public credit and as destructive of business enterprise.

COST OF LIVING.

The steadily increasing cost of living has become a matter not only of national but of worldwide concern. The fact that it is not due to the protective tariff system is evidenced by the existence of similar conditions in countries which have a tariff policy different from our own, as well as by the fact that the cost of living has increased while rates of duty have remained stationary or been reduced.

The republican party will support a prompt scientific inquiry into the causes which are operative, both in the United States and elsewhere, to increase the cost of living. When the exact facts are known it will take the necessary steps to remove any abuses that may be found to exist, in order that the cost of the food, clothing and shelter of the people may in no way be unduly or artificially increased.

BANKING AND CURRENCY.

The republican party has always stood for a sound currency and for safe banking methods. It is responsible for the resumption of specie payments and for the establishment of the gold standard. It is committed to the progressive development of our banking and currency system.

Our banking arrangements to-day need further revision to meet the requirements of current conditions. We need measures which will prevent the recurrence of money panics and financial disturbances and which will promote the prosperity of business and the welfare of labor by producing constant employment.

We need better currency facilities for the movement of crops in the west and south. We need banking arrangements under American auspices for the encouragement and better conduct of our foreign trade. In attaining these ends the independence of individual banks, whether organized under national or state charters, must be carefully protected, and our banking and currency system must be safeguarded from any possibility of domination by sectional, financial or political interests.

MONEY FOR THE FARMERS.

It is of great importance to the social and economic welfare of this country that its farmers have facilities for borrowing easily and cheaply the money they need to increase the productivity of their land.

It is as important that financial machinery be provided to supply the demand of farmers for credit as it is that the banking and currency systems be reformed in the interest of general business.

Therefore we recommend and urge an authoritative investigation of agricultural credit societies and corporations in other countries, and the passage of state and federal laws for the establishment and capable supervision of organizations having for their purpose the loaning of funds to farmers.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

We reaffirm our adherence to the principle of appointment to public office based on proved fitness and tenure during good behavior and efficiency.

The republican party stands committed to the maintenance, extension, and enforcement of the civil service law, and it favors the passage of legislation empowering the president to extend the competitive service so far as practicable. We favor legislation to make possible the equitable retirement of disabled and superannuated members of the civil service, in order that a higher standard of efficiency may be maintained.

We favor the amendment of the federal employees' liability law so as to extend its provisions to all government employees, as well as to provide a more liberal scale of compensation for injury and death.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS.

We favor such additional legislation as may be necessary more effectually to prohibit corporations from contributing funds, directly or indirectly, to campaigns for the nomination or election of the president, the vice-president, senators and representatives in congress.

We heartily approve the recent act of congress requiring the fullest publicity in regard to all campaign contributions, whether made in connection with primaries, conventions or elections.

CONSERVATION POLICY.

We rejoice in the success of the distinctive republican policy of the conservation of our national resources for their use by the people without waste and without monopoly. We pledge ourselves to a continuance of such a policy.

We favor such fair and reasonable rules and regulations as will not discourage or interfere with actual bonafide homeseekers, prospectors and miners in the acquisition of public lands under existing laws.

PARCELS POST.

In the interest of the general public, and particularly of the agricultural or rural communities, we favor legislation looking to the establishment, under proper regulations, of a parcels post, the postal rates to be graduated under a zone similar in proportion to the length of carriage.

PROTECTION OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP.

We approve the action taken by the president and the congress to secure with Russia, as with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation and that will prevent all discrimination of whatever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien and regardless of race, religion or previous political allegiance. The right of asylum is a precious possession of the people of the United States and it is to be neither surrendered nor restricted.

THE NAVY.

We believe in the maintenance of an adequate navy for the national defense, and we condemn the action of the democratic house of representatives in refusing to authorize the construction of additional ships.

MERCHANT MARINE.

We believe that one of the country's most urgent needs is a revived merchant marine. There should be American ships, and plenty of them, to make use of the great American interoceanic canal now nearing completion.

FLOOD PREVENTION.

The Mississippi river is the nation's drainage ditch. Its flood waters gathered from thirty-one states and the Dominion of Canada constitute an overpowering force which breaks the levees and pours its torrents over many million acres of the richest land in the union, stopping mails, impeding commerce and causing great loss of life and property.

These floods are national in scope and the disasters they produce seriously affect the general welfare. The state unaided cannot cope with this giant problem, hence we believe the federal government should assume a fair proportion of the burden of its control so as to prevent the disasters from recurring floods.

RECLAMATION.

We favor the continuance of the policy of the government with regard to the reclamation of arid lands, and for the encouragement of the speedy settlement and improvement of such lands we favor an amendment to the law that will reasonably extend the time within which the cost of any reclamation project may be repaid by the land owners under it.

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

We favor a liberal and systematic policy for the improvement of our rivers and harbors. Such improvements should be made upon expert information and after a careful comparison of cost and prospective benefits.

ALASKA.

We favor a liberal policy toward Alaska to promote the development of the great resources of that district, with such safeguards as will prevent waste and monopoly.

We favor the opening of the coal lands to development through a law leasing the lands on such terms as will invite development and provide fuel for the navy and the commerce of the Pacific ocean, while retaining title in the United States to prevent monopoly.

PHILIPPINE POLICY.

The Philippine policy of the republican party has been and is inspired by the belief that our duty toward the Filipino people is a national obligation which should remain entirely free from partisan politics.

IMMIGRATION.

We pledge the republican party to the enactment of appropriate laws to give relief from the constantly growing evil of induced or undesirable immigration which is inimical to the progress and welfare of the people of the United States.

SAFETY AT SEA.

We favor the speedy enactment of laws to provide that seamen shall not be compelled to endure involuntary servitude, and that life and property at sea shall be safeguarded by the ample equipment of vessels with life saving appliances and with full complements of skilled, able bodied seamen to operate them.

REPUBLICAN ACCOMPLISHMENT.

The approaching completion of the Panama canal, the establishment of a bureau of mines, the institution of postal savings banks, the increased provision made in 1912 for the aged and infirm soldiers and sailors of the republic and for their widows, and the vigorous administration of the laws relating to pure food and drugs all mark the successful progress of republican administration and are additional evidence of its effectiveness.

ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY.

We commend the earnest effort of the republican administration to secure greater economy and increased efficiency in the conduct of government business. Extravagant appropriations and the creation of unnecessary offices are an injustice to the taxpayer and a bad example to the citizen.

CIVIC DUTY.

We call upon the people to quicken their interest in public affairs, to condemn and punish lynchings and other forms of lawlessness and to strengthen in all possible ways a respect for law and the observance of it. Indifferent citizenship is an evil from which the law affords no adequate protection and for which legislation can provide no remedy.

ARIZONA AND NEW MEXICO.

We congratulate the people of Arizona and New Mexico upon the admission of those states, thus merging in the union in final and enduring form the last remaining portion of our continental territory.

REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION.

We challenge successful criticism of the sixteen years of republican administration under Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. We heartily reaffirm the indorsement of President McKinley contained in the platforms of 1900 and 1904, and that of President Roosevelt contained in the platforms of 1904 and 1908.

We invite the intelligent judgment of the American people upon the administration of William H. Taft. The country has prospered and been at peace under his presidency. During the years in which he had the co-operation of a republican congress an unexampled amount of constructive legislation was framed and passed in the interest of the people and in obedience to their wish. That legislation is a record on which any administration might appeal with confidence to the favorable judgment of history.

We appeal to the American electorate upon the record of the republican party and upon this declaration of its principles and purposes. We are confident that under the leadership of the candidates here to be nominated our appeal will not be in vain; that the republican party will meet every just expectation of the people whose servant it is; that under its administration and its laws our nation will continue to advance; that peace and prosperity will abide with the people and that new glory will be added to the great republic.

DEMOCRATIC.

Adopted at Baltimore July 2.

We, the representatives of the democratic party of the United States, in national convention assembled, reaffirm our devotion to the principles of democratic government formulated by Thomas Jefferson and enforced by a long and illustrious line of democratic presidents.

TARIFF REFORM.

We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the democratic party that the federal government, under the constitution, has no right or power to impose or collect tariff duties, except for the purpose of revenue, and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of government, honestly and economically administered.

The high republican tariff is the principal cause of the unequal distribution of wealth; it is a system of taxation which makes the rich richer and the poor poorer; under its operations the American farmer and laboring man are the chief sufferers; it raises the cost of the necessities of life to them, but does not protect their product or wages.

The farmer sells largely in free markets and buys almost entirely in the protected markets.

In the most highly protected industries, such as cotton and wool, steel and iron, the wages of the laborers are the lowest paid in any of our industries.

We denounce the republican pretense on that subject and assert that American wages are established by competitive conditions and not by the tariff.

We favor the immediate downward revision of the existing high and, in many cases, prohibitive tariff duties, insisting that material reductions be speedily made upon the necessities of life. Articles entering into competition with trust controlled products and articles of American manufacture which are sold abroad more cheaply than at home should be put upon the free list.

We recognize that our system of tariff taxation is intimately connected with the business of the country and we favor the ultimate attainment of the principles we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry.

We denounce the action of President Taft in vetoing the bills to reduce the tariff in the cotton, woolen, metals and chemical schedules and the farmers' free list bill, all of which were designed to give immediate relief to the masses from the exactions of the trusts.

The republican party, while promising tariff revision, has shown by its tariff legislation that such revision is not to be in the people's interest and, having been faithless to its pledges of 1908, it should no longer enjoy the confidence of the nation. We appeal to the American people to support to us in our demand for a tariff for revenue only.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

The high cost of living is a serious problem in every American home. The republican party, in its platform, attempts to escape from responsibility for present conditions by denying that they are due to a protective tariff. We take issue with them on this subject and charge that excessive prices result in a large measure from the high tariff laws enacted and maintained by the republican party and from trusts and commercial conspiracies fostered and encouraged by such laws, and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people until import duties on the necessities of life are materially reduced and these criminal conspiracies broken up.

ANTITRUST LAW.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal as well as the civil law against trusts and trust officials, and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States.

We favor the declaration by law of the conditions upon which corporations shall be permitted to engage in interstate trade, including, among others, the prevention of holding companies, of interlocking directors, of stock watering, of discrimination in price and the control by any one corporation of so large a proportion of any industry as to make it a menace to competitive conditions.

We condemn the action of the republican administration in compromising with the Standard Oil company and the tobacco trust and its failure to invoke the criminal provisions of the antitrust law against the officers of those corporations after the court had declared that from the undisputed facts in the record they had violated the criminal provisions of the law.

We regret that the Sherman antitrust law has received a judicial construction depriving it of much of its efficacy and we favor the enactment of legislation which will restore to the statute the strength of which it has been deprived by such interpretation.

RIGHTS OF STATES.

We believe in the preservation and maintenance in their full strength and integrity of the three coordinate branches of the federal government—the executive, the legislative and the judicial—each keeping within its own bounds and not encroaching upon the just powers of either of the others.

Believing that the most efficient results under our system of government are to be attained by the full exercise by the states of their reserved sovereign powers, we denounce as usurpation the efforts of our opponents to deprive the states of any of the rights reserved to them, and to enlarge and magnify by indirection the powers of the federal government.

We insist upon the full exercise of all the powers of the government, both state and national, to protect the people from injustice at the hands of those who seek to make the government a private asset in business. There is no twilight zone between the nation and the state in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both. It is as necessary that the federal government shall exercise the powers reserved to it, but we insist that federal remedies for the regulation of interstate commerce and for the prevention of private monopoly shall be added to and not substituted for state remedies.

INCOME TAX, DIRECT ELECTIONS.

We congratulate the country upon the triumph of two important reforms demanded in the last national platform, namely: The amendment of the federal constitution authorizing an income tax and the amendment providing for the popular election of senators, and we call upon the people of all the states to rally to the support of the pending propositions and secure their ratification.

We note with gratification the unanimous sentiment in favor of publicity before the election of campaign contributions—a measure demanded in our national platform of 1908 and at that time opposed by the republican party—and we commend the democratic house of representatives for extending the doctrine of publicity to recommendations, verbal and written, upon which presidential appointments are made, to the ownership and control of newspapers and to the expenditures made by and in behalf of those who aspire to presidential nominations, and we point for additional justification for this legislation to the enormous expenditures of money in behalf of the president and his predecessor in the recent presidential contest for the republican nomination for president.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES.

The movement toward more popular government should be promoted through legislation in each state which will permit the expression of the preference of the electors for national candidates at presidential primaries.

We direct that the national committee incorporate in the call for the next nominating convention a requirement that all expressions of preference for presidential candidates shall be given and the selection of delegates and alternates made through a primary election conducted by the party organization in each state where such expression and election are not provided for by state law.

Committeemen who are hereafter to constitute the membership of the democratic national committee and whose election is not provided for by law shall be chosen in each state at such primary elections and the service and authority of committeemen, however chosen, shall begin immediately upon the receipt of their credentials.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS.

We pledge the democratic party to the enactment of a law prohibiting any corporation from contributing to a campaign fund and any individual from contributing any amount above a reasonable maximum.

TERM OF PRESIDENT.

We favor a single presidential term and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the constitution making the president of the United States ineligible for re-election, and we pledge the candidate of this convention to this principle.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS.

At this time, when the republican party, after a generation of unlimited power in its control of the federal government, is rent into factions, it is opportune to point to the record of accomplishments of the democratic house of representatives in the 62d congress. We indorse its action and we challenge comparison of its record with that of any congress which has been controlled by our opponents.

We call the attention of the patriotic citizens of our country to its record of efficiency, economy and constructive legislation:

It has, among other achievements, revised the rules of the house of representatives so as to give to the representatives of the American people freedom of speech and of action in advocating, proposing and perfecting remedial legislation.

It has passed bills for the relief of the people and the development of our country; it has endeavored to revise the tariff taxes downward in the interest of the consuming masses and thus to reduce the high cost of living.

It has proposed an amendment to the federal constitution providing for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

It has secured the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as two sovereign states.

It has required the publicity of campaign expenses, both before and after election, and fixed a limit upon the election expenses of United States senators and representatives.

It has also passed a bill to prevent the abuse of the writ of injunction.

It has passed a law establishing an eight hour day for workmen on all national public work.

It has passed a resolution which forced the president to take immediate steps to abrogate the Russian treaty. And it has passed the great supply bills which lessen waste and extravagance and which reduce the annual expenses of the government by many millions of dollars.

We approve the measure reported by the democratic leaders in the house of representatives for the creation of a council of national defense which will determine a definite naval programme with a view to increased efficiency and economy. The party that proclaimed and has always enforced the Monroe doctrine and was sponsor for the new navy will continue faithfully to observe the constitutional requirements to provide and maintain an adequate and well proportioned navy sufficient to defend American policies, protect our citizens and uphold the honor and dignity of the nation.

REPUBLICAN EXTRAVAGANCE.

We denounce the profligate waste of the money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation through the lavish appropriations of recent republican congresses, which have kept taxes high and reduced the purchasing power of the people's toll. We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which befits a democratic government and a reduction in the number of useless offices, the salaries of which drain the substance of the people.

COMMON CARRIERS.

We favor the efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines engaged in interstate commerce. To this end we recommend the valuation of railroads, express companies and telegraph and telephone lines by the interstate commerce commission, such valuation to take into consideration the physical value of the property, the original cost, the cost of production and any element of value that will render the valuation fair and just.

We favor such legislation as will effectually prohibit the railroads, express, telegraph and telephone companies from engaging in business which brings them into competition with their shippers; also legislation preventing the overissue of stocks and bonds by the interstate railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines, and legislation which will assure such reduction in transportation rates as conditions will permit, care being taken to avoid reduction that would compel a reduction of wages, prevent adequate service or do injustice to legitimate investments.

BANKING LEGISLATION.

We oppose the so called Aldrich monetary bill or the establishment of a central bank, and we believe the people of this country will be largely freed from panics and consequent unemployment and business depression by such a systematic revision of our banking laws as will render temporary relief in localities where such relief is needed, with protection from control or domination by what is known as the "money trust."

Banks exist for the accommodation of the public and not for the control of business. All legislation on the subject of banking and currency should have for its purpose the securing of these accommodations on terms of absolute security to the public and of complete protection from the misuse of the power that wealth gives to those who possess it.

We condemn the present methods of depositing government funds in a few favored banks, largely situated in or controlled by Wall street, in return for political favors, and we pledge our party to provide by law for their deposit by competitive bidding by the banking institutions of the country, national and state, without discrimination as to locality, upon approved securities and subject to call by the government.

RURAL CREDITS.

Of equal importance with the question of currency reform is the question of rural credits or agricultural finance. Therefore we recommend that an investigation of agricultural credit societies in foreign countries be made, so that it may be ascertained whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States, and we also favor legislation permitting national banks to loan a reasonable proportion of their funds on real estate security.

We recognize the value of vocational education and urge federal appropriations for such training and extension teaching in agriculture in co-operation with the several states.

WATERWAYS.

We renew the declaration in our last platform relating to the conservation of our natural resources and the development of our waterways. The present devastation of the lower Mississippi valley accentuates the movement for the regulation of river flow by additional bank and levee protection below, and the diversion, storage and control of the flood waters above and their utilization for beneficial purposes in the reclamation of arid and swamp lands and the development of water power, instead of permitting the floods to continue, as heretofore, agents of destruction.

We hold that the control of the Mississippi river is a national problem. The preservation of the depth of its water for the purpose of navigation, the building of levees to maintain the integrity of its channel and the prevention of the overflow of the land and its consequent destruction, resulting in interruption of interstate commerce, the disorganization of mail service and the enormous loss of life and property impose an obligation which alone can be discharged by the general government.

We favor the co-operation of the United States and the respective states in plans for the comprehensive treatment of all waterways with a view of co-ordinating plans for channel improvement with plans for drainage of swamp and overflowed lands, and to this end we favor the appropriation by the federal government of sufficient funds to make surveys of such lands, to develop plans for draining such lands and to supervise the work of construction.

We favor the adoption of a liberal and comprehensive plan for the development and improvement of our inland waterways with economy and efficiency, so as to permit their navigation by vessels of standard draft.

POST ROADS.

We favor national aid to state and local authorities in the construction and maintenance of post roads.

RIGHTS OF LABOR.

We repeat our declarations of the platform of 1908 as follows:

"The courts of justice are the bulwark of our liberties and we yield to none in our purpose to maintain their dignity. Our party has given to the bench a long line of distinguished justices, who have added to the respect and confidence in which this department must be jealously maintained. We resent the attempt of the republican party to raise a false issue respecting the judiciary. It is an unjust reflection upon a great body of our citizens to assume that they lack respect for the courts.

"It is the function of the court to interpret the laws which the people enact, and if the laws appear to work economic, social or political injustice it is our duty to change them. The only basis upon which the integrity of our courts can stand is that of unswerving justice and protection of life, personal liberty and property. If judicial processes may be abused, we should guard them against abuse.

"Experience has proved the necessity of a modification of the present law relating to injunction and we reiterate the pledges of our platform of 1896 and 1904 in favor of a measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, relating to contempt in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

"Questions of judicial practice have arisen, especially in connection with industrial disputes. We believe that the parties to all judicial proceedings should be treated with rigid impartiality and that injunctions should not be issued in any case in which an injunction would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved.

"The expanding organization of industry makes it essential that there should be no abridgment of the right of the wage earners and producers to organize for the protection of wages and the improvement of labor conditions, to the end that such labor organizations and their members should not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade.

"We pledge the democratic party to the enactment of a law creating a department of labor, represented separately in the president's cabinet, in which department shall be included the subject of mines and mining."

We pledge the democratic party, so far as the federal jurisdiction extends, to an employees' compensation law providing adequate indemnity for injury to body or loss of life.

AGRICULTURE.

We believe in encouraging the development of a modern system of agriculture and a systematic effort to improve the conditions of trade in farm products so as to benefit both the consumers and producers. And as an efficient means to this end we favor the enactment by congress of legislation that will suppress the pernicious practice of gambling in agricultural products by organized exchanges or others.

CONSERVATION.

We believe in the conservation and the development, for the use of all the people, of the natural resources of the country. Our forests, our sources of water supply, our arable and our mineral lands, our navigable streams and all other material resources with which our country has been so lavishly endowed constitute the foundation of our national wealth. Such additional legislation as may be necessary to prevent their being wasted or absorbed by special or privileged interests should be enacted and the policy of their conservation should be rigidly adhered to.

The public domain should be administered and disposed of with due regard to the general welfare. Reservations should be limited to the purposes which they purport to serve and not extended to include land wholly unsuited therefor. The unnecessary withdrawal from sale and settlement of enormous tracts of public land, upon which tree growth never existed and cannot be promoted, tends only to retard development, create discontent and bring reproach upon the policy of conservation.

The public land laws should be administered in a spirit of the broadest liberality toward the settler exhibiting a bona fide purpose to comply therewith, to the end that the invitation of this government to the landless should be as attractive as possible, and the plain provisions of the forest reserve act permitting homestead entries to be made within the national forests should not be nullified by administrative regulations which amount to a withdrawal of great areas of the same from settlement.

Immediate action should be taken by congress to make available the vast and valuable coal deposits of Alaska under conditions that will be a perfect guaranty against their falling into the hands of monopolizing corporations, associations or interests.

MERCHANT MARINE.

We believe in fostering by constitutional regulation of commerce the growth of a merchant marine which shall develop and strengthen the commercial ties which bind us to our sister republics of the south, but without imposing additional burdens upon the people and without granting or subsidies from the public treasury. We urge upon congress the speedy enactment of laws for the greater security of life and property at sea and we favor the repeal of all laws and the abrogation of so much of our treaties with other nations as provide for the arrest and imprisonment of seamen charged with desertion or with violation of their contract of service. Such laws and treaties are un-American and violate the spirit if not the letter of the constitution of the United States.

We favor the exemption from tolls of American ships engaged in coastwise trade passing through the Panama canal.

We also favor legislation forbidding the use of the Panama canal by ships owned or controlled by railroad carriers engaged in transportation competitive with the canal.

PURE FOODS AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

We reaffirm our previous declarations advocating the union and strengthening of the various governmental agencies relating to pure foods, quarantine, vital statistics and human health. Thus united and administered without partiality to, or discrimination against, any school of medicine or system of healing, they would constitute a single health service, not subordinated to any commercial or financial interests, but devoted exclusively to the conservation of human life and efficiency. Moreover, this health service should co-operate with the health agencies of our various states and cities without interference with their prerogatives or with the freedom of individuals to employ such medical or hygienic aid as they may see fit.

CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

The law pertaining to the civil service should be honestly and rigidly enforced, to the end that merit and ability shall be the standard of appointment and promotion rather than service rendered to a political party; and we favor a reorganization of the civil service with adequate compensation commensurate with the class of work performed for all officers and employees; we also favor the extension to all classes of civil service employees of the benefits of the provisions of the employers' liability law. We also recognize the right of direct petition to congress by employees for the redress of grievances.

LAW REFORM.

We recognize the urgent need of reform in the administration of civil and criminal law in the United States and we recommend the enactment of such legislation and the promotion of such measures as will rid the present legal system of the delays, expense and uncertainties incident to the system as now administered.

THE PHILIPPINES.

We reaffirm the position thrice announced by the democracy in national convention assembled against a policy of imperialism and colonial exploitation in the Philippines or elsewhere. We condemn the experiment in imperialism as an inexcusable blunder which has involved us in enormous expense, brought us weakness instead of strength and laid our nation open to the charge of abandonment of the fundamental doctrine of self-government. We favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippine islands as soon as a stable government can be established, such independence to be guaranteed by us until the neutralization of the islands can be secured by treaty with other powers. In recognizing the independence of the Philippines our government should retain such land as may be necessary for coaling stations and naval bases.

ARIZONA AND NEW MEXICO.

We welcome Arizona and New Mexico to the sisterhood of states and heartily congratulate them upon their auspicious beginning of great and glorious careers.

ALASKA.

We demand for the people of Alaska the full enjoyment of the rights and privileges of a territorial form of government, and we believe that the officials appointed to administer the government of all our territories and the District of Columbia should be qualified by previous bona fide residence.

THE RUSSIAN TREATY.

We commend the patriotism of the democratic members of the senate and house of representatives which compelled the termination of the Russian treaty of 1832, and we pledge ourselves anew to preserve the sacred rights of American citizenship at home and abroad. No treaty should receive the sanction of our government which does not recognize the equality of all our citizens, irrespective of race or creed, and which does not expressly guarantee the fundamental right of expatriation.

The constitutional rights of American citizens should protect them on our borders and go with them throughout the world, and every American citizen residing or having property in any foreign country is entitled to and must be given the full protection of the United States government, both for himself and his property.

PARCELS POST.

We favor the establishment of a parcels post or postal express and also the extension of the rural delivery system as rapidly as practicable.

PANAMA CANAL EXPOSITION.

We hereby express our deep interest in the great Panama Canal exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915 and favor such encouragement as can be properly given.

PROTECTION OF NATIONAL UNIFORM.

We commend to the several states the adoption of a law making it an offense for the proprietors of places of public amusement and entertainment to discriminate against the uniform of the United States, similar to the law passed by congress applicable to the District of Columbia and the territories in 1911.

PENSIONS.

We renew the declaration of our last platform relating to a generous pension policy.

RULE OF THE PEOPLE.

We call attention to the fact that the democratic party's demand for a return to the rule of the people expressed in the national platform four years ago has now become the accepted doctrine of a large majority of the electors. We again remind the country that only by a larger exercise of the reserved power of the people can they protect themselves from the misuse of delegated power and the usurpation of governmental instrumentality by special interest. For this reason the national convention insisted on the overthrow of Cannonism and the inauguration of a system by which the United States senators could be elected by direct vote. The democratic party offers itself to the country as an agency through which the complete overthrow and extirpation of corruption, fraud and machine rule in American politics can be effected.

CONCLUSION.

Our platform is one of principles which we believe to be essential to our national welfare. Our pledges are made to be kept when in office as well as relied upon during the campaign, and we invite the co-operation of all citizens, regardless of party, who believe in maintaining unimpaired the institutions and traditions of our country.

PROHIBITION.

Adopted at Atlantic City, N. J., July 11.

The prohibition party in national convention at Atlantic City, N. J., July 10-12, 1912, recognizing God as the source of all governmental authority, makes the following declaration of principles and policies:

1. The alcoholic drink traffic is wrong; is the most serious drain on the wealth and resources of the nation; is detrimental to the general welfare and destructive of the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. All laws taxing or licensing a traffic which produces crime, poverty and political corruption and spreads disease and death should be repealed. To destroy such a traffic there must be elected to power a political party which will administer the government from the standpoint that the alcoholic drink traffic is a crime and not a business, and we pledge that the manufacture, importation, exportation, transportation and sale of alcoholic beverages shall be prohibited.

We favor:

2. Suffrage for women on the same terms as for men.

3. A uniform marriage and divorce law. The extermination of polygamy and the complete suppression of traffic in girls.

4. Absolute protection of the rights of labor, without impairment of the rights of capital.

5. The settlement of all international disputes by arbitration.

6. The abolition of child labor in mines, workshops and factories, with the rigid enforcement of the laws now flagrantly violated.

7. The election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

8. A presidential term of six years and one term only.

9. Court review of postoffice and other departmental decisions and orders; the extension of the postal savings bank system and of rural delivery and the establishment of an efficient parcels post.

10. The initiative, referendum and recall.

11. As the tariff is a commercial question it should be fixed on the scientific basis of accurate knowledge, secured by means of a permanent, omniscient tariff commission with ample powers.

12. Equitable graduated income and inheritance taxes.

13. Conservation of our forest and mineral reserves and the reclamation of waste lands. All mineral and timber lands and water powers, now owned by the government, should be held perpetually and leased for revenue purposes.

14. Clearly defined laws for the regulation and control of corporations transacting an interstate business.

15. Efficiency and economy in governmental administration.

16. The protection of one day in seven as a day of rest.

To these fundamental principles the national prohibition party renews its long allegiance, and on these issues invites the co-operation of all good citizens, to the end that the true object of government may be attained, namely, equal and exact justice for all.

PROGRESSIVE.

Adopted at Chicago Aug. 7.

The conscience of the people, in a time of grave national problems, has called into being a new party, born of the nation's awakened sense of justice.

We of the progressive party here dedicate ourselves to the fulfillment of the duty laid upon us by our fathers to maintain that government of the people, by the people and for the people whose foundations they laid.

We hold with Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln that the people are the masters of their constitution to fulfill its purposes and to safeguard it from those who, by perversion of its intent, would convert it into an instrument of injustice. In accordance with the needs of each generation the people must use their sovereign power to establish and maintain equal opportunity and industrial justice, to secure which this government was founded and without which no republic can endure.

This country belongs to the people who inhabit it. Its resources, its business, its institutions and its laws should be utilized, maintained or altered in whatever manner will best promote the general interest. It is time to set the public welfare in the first place.

THE OLD PARTIES.

Political parties exist to secure responsible government and to execute the will of the people. From these great tasks both of the old parties have turned aside. Instead of instruments to promote the general welfare they have become the tools of corrupt interests which use them impartially to serve their selfish purposes.

Behind the ostensible government sits enthroned an invisible government, owing no allegiance and acknowledging no responsibility to the people. To destroy this invisible government, to dissolve the unholy alliance between corrupt business and corrupt politics is the first task of the statesmanship of the day.

The deliberate betrayal of its trust by the republican party and the fatal incapacity of the democratic party to deal with the new issues of the new time have compelled the people to forge a new instrument of government through which to give effect to their will in laws and institutions. Unhindered by tradition, uncorrupted by power, undismayed by the magnitude of the task, the new party offers itself as the instrument of the people to sweep away old abuses, to build a new and nobler commonwealth.

This declaration is our covenant with the people and we hereby bind the party and its candidates in state and nation to the pledges made herein.

THE RULE OF THE PEOPLE.

The national progressive party, committed to the principle of government by a self-controlled democracy expressing its will through representatives of the people, pledges itself to secure such alterations in the fundamental law of the several states and of the United States as shall insure the representative character of the government.

In particular the party declares for direct primaries for the nomination of state and national officers, for nationwide preferential primaries for candidates for the presidency, for the direct election of United States senators by the people, and we urge on the states the policy of the short ballot, with responsibility to the people secured by the initiative, referendum and recall.

AMENDMENT OF CONSTITUTION.

The progressive party, believing that a free people should have the power from time to time to amend their fundamental law so as to adapt it progressively to the changing needs of the people, pledges itself to provide a more easy and expeditious method of amending the federal constitution.

NATION AND STATE.

Up to the limit of the constitution and later by amendment of the constitution if found necessary we advocate bringing under effective national jurisdiction those problems which have expanded beyond reach of the individual states.

It is as grotesque as it is intolerable that the several states should by unequal laws in matters of common concern become competing commercial agencies, barter the lives of their children, the health of their women and the safety and well-being of their working people for the profit of their financial interests.

The extreme insistence on state's rights by the democratic party in the Baltimore platform demonstrates anew its inability to understand the world into which it has survived or to administer the affairs of a union of states which have in all essential respects become one people.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

The progressive party, believing that no people can justly claim to be a true democracy which denies political rights on account of sex, pledges itself to the task of securing equal suffrage to men and women alike.

CORRUPT PRACTICES.

We pledge our party to legislation that will compel strict limitation of all campaign contributions and expenditures, and detailed publicity of both before as well as after primaries and elections.

We pledge our party to legislation compelling the registration of lobbyists; publicity of committee hearings except on foreign affairs and recording of all votes in committee, and forbidding federal appointees from holding office in state or national political organizations or taking part as officers or delegates in political conventions for the nomination of elective state or national officials.

THE COURTS.

The progressive party demands such restriction of the power of the courts as shall leave to the people the ultimate authority to determine fundamental questions of social welfare and public policy. To secure this end it pledges itself to provide:

(1) That when an act, passed under the police power of the state, is held unconstitutional under the state constitution by the courts, the people, after an ample interval for deliberation, shall have an opportunity to vote on the question whether they desire the act to become law notwithstanding such decision.

(2) That every decision of the highest appellate court of a state declaring an act of the legislature unconstitutional on the ground of its violation of the federal constitution shall be subject to the same review by the Supreme court of the United States as is now accorded to decisions sustaining such legislation.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

The progressive party, in order to secure to the people a better administration of justice and by that means to bring about a more general respect for the law and the courts, pledges itself to work unceasingly for the reform of legal procedure and judicial methods.

We believe that the issuance of injunctions in cases arising out of labor disputes should be prohibited when such injunctions would not apply when no labor disputes existed.

We also believe that a person cited for contempt in labor disputes, except when such contempt was committed in the actual presence of the court or so near thereto as to interfere with the proper administration of justice, should have a right to trial by jury.

SOCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL JUSTICE.

The supreme duty of the nation is the conservation of human resources through an enlarged measure of social and industrial justice. We pledge ourselves to work unceasingly in state and nation for:

Effective legislation looking to the prevention of industrial accidents, occupational diseases, overwork, involuntary unemployment and other injurious effects incident to modern industry.

The fixing of minimum safety and health standards for the various occupations and the exercise of the public authority of state and nation, including the federal control over interstate commerce and the taxing power, to maintain such standards.

The prohibition of child labor.

Minimum wage standards for working women, to provide a 'living wage' in all industrial occupations.

The general prohibition of night work for women and the establishment of an eight hour day for women and young persons.

One day's rest in seven for all wage workers.

The eight hour day in continuous twenty four hour industries.

The abolition of the convict contract labor system, substituting a system of prison production for governmental consumption only, and the application of prisoners' earnings to the support of their dependent families.

Publicity as to wages, hours and conditions of labor; full reports upon industrial accidents and diseases and the opening to public inspection of all tallies, weights, measures and check systems on labor products.

Standards of compensation for death by industrial accident and injury and trade disease which will transfer the burden of lost earnings from the families of working people to the industry and thus to the community.

The protection of home life against the hazards of sickness, irregular employment and old age through the adoption of a system of social insurance adapted to American use.

The development of the creative labor power of America by lifting the last load of illiteracy from American youth and establishing continuation schools for industrial education under public control and encouraging agricultural education and demonstration in rural schools.

The establishment of industrial research laboratories to put the methods and discoveries of science at the service of American producers.

We favor the organization of the workers, men and women, as a means of protecting their interests and of promoting their progress.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.

We pledge the party to establish a department of labor with a seat in the cabinet and with wide jurisdiction over matters affecting the conditions of labor and living.

COUNTRY LIFE.

The development and prosperity of country life are as important to the people who live in the cities as they are to the farmers. Increase of prosperity on the farm will favorably affect the cost of living and promote the interests of all who dwell in the country and all who depend upon its products for clothing, shelter and food.

We pledge our party to foster the development of agricultural credit and co-operation, the teaching of agriculture in schools, agricultural college extension, the use of mechanical power on the farm and to re-establish the country life commission, thus directly promoting the welfare of the farmers and bringing the benefits of better farming, better business and better living within their reach.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

The high cost of living is due partly to world-wide and partly to local causes; partly to natural and partly to artificial causes. The measures proposed in this platform on various subjects, such as the tariff, the trusts and conservation, will of themselves remove the artificial causes. There will remain other elements, such as the tendency to leave the country for the city, waste, extravagance, bad system of taxation, poor methods of raising crops and bad business methods in marketing crops. To remedy these conditions requires the fullest information and, based on this information, effective government supervision and control to remove all the artificial causes. We pledge ourselves to such full and immediate inquiry and to immediate action to deal with every need such inquiry discloses.

HEALTH.

We favor the union of all the existing agencies of the federal government dealing with the public health into a single national health service without discrimination against or for any one set of therapeutic methods, school of medicine or school of healing, with such additional powers as may be necessary to enable it to perform efficiently such duties in the protection of the public from preventable diseases as may be properly undertaken by the federal authorities, including the execution of existing laws regarding pure food, quarantine and cognate subjects; the promotion of vital statistics and the extension of the registration area of such statistics, and co-operation with the health activities of the various states and cities of the nation.

TRUST REGULATIONS.

We believe that true popular government, justice and prosperity go hand in hand, and, so believing, it is our purpose to secure that large measure of general prosperity which is the fruit of legitimate and honest business, fostered by equal justice and by sound progressive laws.

We demand that the test of true prosperity shall be the benefits conferred thereby on all the citizens, not confined to individuals or classes, and that the test of corporate efficiency shall be the ability better to serve the public; that those who profit by the control of business affairs shall justify that profit and that control by sharing with the public the fruits thereof.

We therefore demand a strong national regulation of interstate corporations. The corporation is an essential part of modern business. The concentration of modern business in some degree is both inevitable and necessary for national and international business efficiency. But the existing concentration of vast wealth under a corporate system, unregulated and uncontrolled by the nation, has placed in the hands of a few men enormous, secret, irresponsible power over the daily life of the citizen—a power insufferable in a free government and certain of abuse.

This power has been abused in monopoly of national resources, in stock watering, in unfair competition and unfair privileges and finally in sinister influences on the public agencies of state and nation. We do not fear commercial power, but we insist that it shall be exercised openly, under publicity, supervision and regulation of the most efficient sort, which will preserve its good while eradicating and preventing its evils.

To that end we urge the establishment of a strong federal administrative commission of high standing, which shall maintain permanent active supervision over industrial corporations engaged in interstate commerce, or such of them as are of public importance, doing for them what the government now does for the national banks and what is now done for the railroads by the interstate commerce commission. Such a commission must enforce the complete publicity of those corporate transactions which are of public interest; must attack unfair competition, false capitalization and special privilege, and by continuous trained watchfulness guard and keep open equally to all the highways of American commerce.

Thus the business man will have certain knowledge of the law and will be able to conduct his business easily in conformity therewith, the investor will find security for his capital, dividends will be rendered more certain and the savings of the people will be drawn naturally and safely into the channels of trade.

Under such a system of constructive regulation legitimate business, freed from confusion, uncertainty and fruitless litigation, will develop normally in response to the energy and enterprise of the American business man.

PATENTS.

We pledge ourselves to the enactment of a patent law which will make it impossible for patents to be supposed or used against the public welfare in the interests of injurious monopolies.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

We pledge our party to secure to the Interstate commerce commission the power to value the physical property of railroads. In order that the power of the commission to protect the people may not be impaired or destroyed we demand the abolition of the Commerce court.

CURRENCY.

We believe there exists imperative need for prompt legislation for the improvement of our national currency system. We believe the present method of issuing notes through private agencies is harmful and unscientific. The issue of currency is fundamentally a government function and the system should have as basic principles soundness and elasticity. The control should be lodged with the government and should be protected from domination or manipulation by Wall street or any special interests.

We are opposed to the so called Aldrich currency bill because its provisions would place our currency and credit system in private banks, not subject to effective public control.

COMMERCIAL DEVELOPMENT.

The time has come when the federal government should co-operate with manufacturers and producers in extending our foreign commerce. To this end we demand adequate appropriations by congress and the appointment of diplomatic and consular officers solely with a view to their special fitness and worth and not in consideration of political expediency.

It is imperative to the welfare of our people that we enlarge and extend our foreign commerce. We are pre-eminently fitted to do this because as a people we have developed high skill in the art of manufacturing. Our business men are strong executives, strong organizers. In every way possible our federal government should co-operate in this important matter.

Any one who has had opportunity to study and observe first hand Germany's course in this respect must realize that their policy of co-operation between government and business has in a comparatively few years made them the leading competitors for the commerce of the world.

It should be remembered that they are doing this on a national scale and with large units of business, while the democrats would have us believe that we should do it with small units of business, which would be controlled not by the national government but by forty-eight conflicting state sovereignties.

Such a policy is utterly out of keeping with the progress of the times and gives our great commercial rivals in Europe—hungry for international markets—golden opportunities of which they are rapidly taking advantage.

CONSERVATION.

The natural resources of the nation must be promptly developed and generously used to supply the people's needs, but we cannot safely allow them to be wasted, exploited, monopolized or controlled against the general good. We heartily favor the policy of conservation and we pledge our party to protect the national forests without hindering their legitimate use for the benefit of all the people. Agricultural lands in the national forests are and should remain open to the genuine settler. Conservation will not retard legitimate development. The honest settler must receive his patent promptly without hindrance, rules or delays,

We believe that the remaining forests, coal and oil lands, water powers and other natural resources still in state or national control (except agricultural lands) are more likely to be wisely conserved and utilized for the general welfare if held in the public hands. In order that consumers and producers, managers and workmen, now and hereafter, need not pay toll to private monopolies of power and raw material, we demand that such resources shall be retained by the state or nation and opened to immediate use under laws which will encourage development and make to the people a moderate return for benefits conferred.

In particular we pledge our party to require reasonable compensation to the public for water power rights hereafter granted by the public. We pledge legislation to lease to the public grazing lands under equitable provisions now pending which will increase the production of food for the people and thoroughly safeguard the rights of the actual homemaker. Natural resources whose conservation is necessary for the national welfare should be owned or controlled by the state.

GOOD ROADS.

We recognize the vital importance of good roads and we pledge our party to foster their extension in every proper way and we favor the early construction of national highways. We also favor the extension of the rural free delivery service.

ALASKA.

The coal and other natural resources of Alaska should be opened to development at once. They are owned by the people of the United States and are safe from monopoly, waste or destruction only while so owned. We demand that they shall neither be sold nor given away except under the homestead law, but while held in government ownership shall be opened to use promptly upon liberal terms requiring immediate development.

Thus the benefit of cheap fuel will accrue to the government of the United States and to the people of Alaska and the Pacific coast; the settlement of extensive agricultural land will be hastened; the extermination of the salmon will be prevented and the just and wise development of Alaskan resources will take the place of private extortion or monopoly. We demand also that extortion or monopoly in transportation shall be prevented by the prompt acquisition, construction or improvement by the government of such railroads, harbor and other facilities for transportation as the welfare of the people may demand.

We promise the people of the territory of Alaska the same measure of local self-government that was given to other American territories and that federal officials appointed there shall be qualified by previous bona fide residence in the territory.

WATERWAYS.

The rivers of the United States are the natural arteries of this continent. We demand that they shall be opened to traffic as indispensable parts of a great nationwide system of transportation, in which the Panama canal will be the central link, thus enabling the whole interior of the United States to share with the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard in the benefit derived from the canal. It is a national obligation to develop our rivers, and especially the Mississippi and its tributaries, without delay, under a comprehensive general plan governing each river system from its source to its mouth, designed to secure its highest usefulness for navigation, irrigation, domestic supply, water power and the prevention of floods.

We pledge our party to the immediate preparation of such a plan, which should be made and carried out in close and friendly co-operation between the nation, the states and the cities affected. Under such a plan the destructive floods of the Mississippi and other streams, which represent a vast and needless loss to the nation, would be controlled by forest conservation, and by water storage at the headwaters and by levees, berms and dikes, to supply millions of people would be reclaimed from the deserts and the swamps, water power enough to transform the industrial standings of whole states would be developed, adequate water terminals would be provided, transportation by river would revive and the railroads would be compelled to co-operate as freely with the boat lines as with each other.

The equipment, organization and experience acquired in constructing the Panama canal soon will be available for the lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway and other portions of this great work and should be utilized by the nation in co-operation with the various states, at the lowest net cost to the people.

PANAMA CANAL.

The Panama canal built and paid for by the American people, must be used primarily for their benefit. We demand that the canal shall be so operated as to break the transportation monopoly now held and misused by the transcontinental railroads by maintaining sea competition with them; that ships directly or indirectly owned or controlled by American railroad corporations shall not be permitted to use the canal and that American ships engaged in coastwise trade shall pay no tolls.

The progressive party will favor legislation having for its aim the development of the friendship and commerce between the United States and Latin-American nations.

TARIFF.

We believe in a protective tariff which shall equalize conditions of competition between the United States and foreign countries, both for the farmer and the manufacturer, and which shall maintain for labor an adequate standard of living. Primarily the benefit of any tariff should be disclosed in the pay envelope of the laborer. We declare that no industry deserves protection which is unfair to labor or which is operating in violation of federal law. We believe that the presumption is always in favor of the consuming public.

We demand tariff revision because the present tariff is unjust to the people of the United States. Fair dealing toward the people requires an immediate downward revision of those schedules wherein duties are shown to be unjust or excessive.

We pledge ourselves to the establishment of a non-partisan scientific tariff commission, reporting both to the president and to either branch of congress, which shall report, first, as to the costs of production, efficiency of labor, capitalization, industrial organization and efficiency and the general competitive position in this country and abroad of industries seeking protection from congress; second, as to the revenue producing power of the tariff and its relation to the resources of government; and, thirdly, as to the effect of the tariff on prices, operations of middlemen and on the purchasing power of the consumer. We believe that this commission should have plenary power to elicit information and for this purpose to prescribe a uniform system of accounting for the great protected industries. The work of the commission should not prevent the immediate adoption of acts reducing those schedules generally recognized as excessive.

We condemn the Payne-Aldrich bill as unjust to the people. The republican organization is in the hands of those who have broken, and cannot again be trusted to keep, the promise of necessary downward revision. The democratic party is committed to the destruction of the protective system through a tariff for revenue only—a policy which would inevitably produce widespread industrial and commercial disaster. We demand the immediate repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act.

INHERITANCE AND INCOME TAX.

We believe in a graduated inheritance tax as a national means of equalizing the obligations of holders of property to government, and we hereby pledge our party to enact such a federal law as will tax lands and inheritance, returning to the states an equitable percentage of all amounts collected. We favor the ratification of the pending amendment to the constitution giving the government power to levy an income tax.

PEACE AND NATIONAL DEFENSE.

The progressive party deplores the survival in our civilization of the barbaric system of warfare among nations, with its enormous waste of resources even in time of peace, and the consequent impoverishment of the life of the toiling masses. We pledge the party to use its best endeavors to substitute judicial and other peaceful means of settling international differences.

We favor an international agreement for the limitation of naval forces. Pending such an agreement, and as the best means of preserving peace, we pledge ourselves to maintain for the present the policy of building two battle ships a year.

We pledge our party to protect the rights of American citizenship at home and abroad. No treaty should receive the sanction of our government which discriminates between American citizens because of birthplace, race or religion, or that does not recognize the absolute right of expatriation.

THE IMMIGRANT.

Through the establishment of industrial standards we propose to secure to the able bodied immigrant and to his native fellow workers a larger share of American opportunity.

We denounce the fatal policy of indifference and neglect which has left our enormous immigrant population to become the prey of chance and cupidity. We favor governmental action to encourage the distribution of immigrants away from the congested cities, rigidly to supervise all private agencies dealing with them and to promote their assimilation, education and advancement.

PENSIONS.

We pledge ourselves to a wise and just policy of pensioning American soldiers and sailors and their widows and children by the federal government.

We approve the policy of the southern states in granting pensions to the ex-confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows and children.

PARCELS POST.

We pledge our party to the immediate creation of a parcels post, with rates proportionate to distance and service.

CIVIL SERVICE.

We condemn the violations of the civil service law under the present administration, including the coercion and assessment of subordinate employees and the president's refusal to punish such violation after a finding of guilty by his own commission; his distribution of patronage among subversive congressmen, while withholding it from those who refuse support of administration measures; his withdrawal of nominations from the senate until political support for himself was secured, and his open use of the offices to reward those who voted for his renomination.

To eradicate these abuses we demand not only the enforcement of the civil service act in letter and spirit, but also legislation which will bring under the competitive system postmasters, collectors, marshals and all other nonpolitical officers, as well as the enactment of an equitable retirement law, and we also insist upon continuous service during good behavior and efficiency.

We pledge our party to readjustment of the business methods of the national government and a proper co-ordination of the federal bureaus, which will increase the economy and efficiency of the government service, prevent duplications and secure better results to the taxpayers for every dollar expended.

SUPERVISION OVER INVESTMENTS.

The people of the United States are swindled out of many millions of dollars every year through worthless investments. The plain people, the wage earner and the men and women with small savings, have no way of knowing the merit of concerns sending out highly colored prospectuses offering stock for sale, prospectuses that make big returns seem certain and fortunes easily within grasp.

We hold it to be the duty of the government to protect its people from this kind of piracy. We therefore demand wise, carefully thought out legislation that will give us such governmental supervision over this matter as will furnish to the people of the United States this much needed protection, and we pledge ourselves thereto.

CONCLUSION.

On these principles and on the recognized desirability of uniting the progressive forces of the nation into an organization which shall unequivocally represent the progressive spirit and policy, we appeal for the support of all American citizens, without regard to previous political affiliations.

POPULIST.

Adopted at St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13.

The populist money platform, adopted at Omaha in 1892, is reaffirmed by the declaration, "The quantitative theory of money as declared in our Omaha platform is now universally conceded." Other planks in the new platform demand:

Issuance of money by the government direct to the people.

Loans by the government to the people.

Government ownership of telegraph and telephone systems and the parcels post.

The initiative, the referendum, direct election of United States senators, direct primaries, presidential primaries and equal suffrage.

Registration of lobbyists.

Graduated income and inheritance tax.

Free schools in the lines of manual and occupational training.

Recognition of the Chinese republic.

Old age pensions.

The commission form of government for cities.

EQUITABLE LIFE BUILDING BURNED.

The nine story building of the Equitable Life Assurance society in lower Broadway, New York, N. Y., was destroyed by fire early on the morning of Jan. 9, 1912. Six lives were lost, the victims being watchmen employed by the company and a fireman. The property loss was estimated at $6,000,000. A number of valuable records and two libraries were destroyed.

ARCTIC AND ANTARCTIC EXPLORATION.

ROALD AMUNDSEN REACHES SOUTH POLE.

Capt. Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the north-west passage, reached the south pole Dec. 16, 1911. This fact was announced to the world in a cable dispatch dated at Hobart, Tasmania, March 7, 1912, and addressed to Leon Amundsen in Christiania, Norway. The expedition left Norway in August, 1910, on the arctic steamer Fram, for oceanographic work on the Atlantic coast of America. The original plan was to proceed to San Francisco and ultimately to the Arctic ocean via Bering strait. Circumstances caused Capt. Amundsen to change his mind and instead of going to the northern seas he steered for the south. The Fram arrived at the barrier ice in the Antarctic ocean Jan. 14, 1911, and the following day he determined to establish his headquarters on the ice a little to the west of Edward VII. land, at a point where there was a large indentation in the ice wall. A house was erected on top of the barrier, 150 feet above the surface of the bay. Amundsen named it "Framheim" (home of the Fram). It stood in 164 degrees west longitude, 78 degrees 40 minutes south latitude.

In February food depots were established at 80, 81 and 82 degrees south latitude. Enough seal meat was stored at these places to feed the men and the 110 dogs of the expedition as long as might be necessary. During the antarctic winter, lasting from April until October, the time was spent in reconstructing the sledges, taking observations and doing other scientific work. Sept. 8, 1911, a start toward the south was made with eight men, seven sledges, ninety dogs and provisions for four months. It was soon found that it was too early for traveling, as the dogs could not stand the low temperature, and the party returned to the base.

Oct. 20 a second start was made, the party this time consisting of five men, four sledges, fifty-two dogs and provisions for four months. The depot at 80 degrees south was reached on the 23d and the one at 81 degrees on the 26th. Snow cairns were built to serve as landmarks on the return journey. The depot at 82 degrees was reached Nov. 5 and after a halt of three days to rest and feed the dogs the march was resumed at the rate of about thirty miles a day. The going was excellent and the temperature even. Nov. 9 the party reached 83 degrees, on the 13th it reached 84 degrees and on the 15th 85 degrees, where it was found that the land and the ice barrier were connected. Here a large depot was established, provisions for thirty days being left. The sledges were loaded with food to last for sixty days. At this point mountains, glaciers and crevices were encountered and the going became difficult both for the men and the dogs, but on the fourth day the great inland plateau was reached, the party camping at a height of 10,000 feet above sea level. Here twenty-four of the dogs were killed, leaving eighteen for three sledges, one sledge being left behind. Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 the party crossed what Capt. Amundsen named the Devil's glacier. At its foot, at 86 degrees 21 minutes, a depot for six days was established. After leaving the glacier the explorers encountered a sort of frozen sea of polished ice, which was crossed with difficulty. Dec. 6 the highest point attained on the march—10,750 feet—at 87 degrees 40 minutes south, was passed. Two days later the party reached 88 degrees 23 minutes, and Dec. 9 had exceeded Lieut. Shackleton's farthest south by 14 minutes of latitude. The plateau sloped down toward the south and rapid progress was made, with good weather and walking.

Dec. 13 the observations indicated that 89 degrees 45 minutes had been reached and on the following day the Norwegian colors were planted at what was believed to be the south pole. Observations carefully taken Dec. 15 showed that the point was at 89 degrees 55 minutes south latitude and Dec. 16 the party went the remaining nine kilometers (5.6 miles) and camped at 90 degrees south, or at the south pole. The sunshine was brilliant and a complete round of observations was taken with a sextant and artificial horizon. A little tent was fastened to the ground with a Norwegian flag and a Fram pennant on top of it. The return trip was begun Dec. 17 and the winter headquarters were reached Jan. 25, 1912, with all well. Eleven dogs and two sledges were brought back.

Capt. Amundsen's companions on the eventful voyage were Holmer Hansen, Oscar Wisting, Sverre Hassel and Olaf Bjaaand. The discoveries made on the trip included a range of mountains, called by the explorer the Queen Maud range; Axel Heiberg glacier, Fridtjof Nansen peak, Don Pedro Christopherson peak and Mount Ole Engelstad. These mountains were between 13,500 and 15,000 feet high. The plateau at the pole was named King Haakon VII. plateau. The distance marched each way was about 1,400 kilometers (863 miles). On the outward trip the daily average march was 25 kilometers (15.5 miles); on the return trip the daily average speed was 36 kilometers (22.3 miles).

The expedition left the Bay of Whales in the Fram Jan. 30 and arrived at Hobart, Tasmania. March 7. Capt. Amundsen and his crew after a brief rest resumed their voyage to the north, the former to lecture in South American and other countries on the expedition and to prepare for his proposed journey to the north pole. April 16 the Norwegian storting granted $35,000 for this expedition, which may be undertaken in 1913, in accordance with the plans made in 1910.

THE SCOTT EXPEDITION.

Under date of Jan. 3, 1912, word was received in April from Capt. Robert F. Scott of the British antarctic expedition, the message having been conveyed to civilization by his ship, the Terra Nova. At the time mentioned he was 87 degrees 32 minutes south, or within about 150 miles of the pole. He was then going forward with a party of five men, consisting of Dr. E. A. Wilson, zoologist and chief of the scientific staff; Lieut. E. R. G. B. Evans, R. N.; Lieut. H. R. Bowers, surveyor; Capt. Oates of the Inneskillen dragons, and himself. They had a month's provisions and the prospects of reaching the pole were then good. The report from Capt. Scott made no mention of Capt. Amundsen's expedition and it was evident that he was in total ignorance of his rival's success in attaining the pole Dec. 16, or a month earlier than the British expedition could get there. The Scott party seemed to have had a much harder time in its journey than Amundsen and his companions had on their more easterly route. Ponies as well as dogs were used and some of the former were shot for food for the dogs. A motor sledge was also found useful and was employed in carrying various members of the expedition on their exploring trips in the vicinity of the base camp. Bituminous coal, marble and topaz, fossils and thousands of wingless insects were found. It was not expected that further news from the expedition would be received before March or April, 1913.

The Scott antarctic expedition left New Zealand Nov. 29, 1910, on the Terra Nova. The ship returned in March, 1911, and in April, 1912, going back to the headquarters at Cape Evans in November, 1912.

MIKKELSEN EXPEDITION.

Capt. Einar Mikkelsen, the Danish arctic explorer, who was thought to have perished with his only companion, Engineer Severson while on an expedition to recover the Erichsen records on the east coast of Greenland, was rescued in July, 1912, by a Norwegian ship and brought to Aalesund, Norway, arriving there July 29. Capt. Mikkelsen reached the Erichsen cairn at 80:25 north latitude in May, 1910, and recovered the records there. Erichsen had left this place Sept. 12, 1907, in good shape for his return journey toward the south. Some other depots were found by Capt. Mikkelsen, but no further trace of Erichsen himself. Mikkelsen had to abandon his plan of crossing the north end of Greenland and proceeding down the west coast. He and his companion had many narrow escapes from starvation and suffered greatly from scurvy and the severe weather. They pulled through, however, and saved their diaries, which on one occasion they had to abandon. The winter of 1910-1911 was spent at Winter harbor and that of 1911-1912 on Bass Rock island, on the east coast.

AUSTRALIAN ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION.

The ship Aurora, which took Dr. Douglas Mawson's antarctic expedition to Adelle land in the fall of 1911, returned to Hobart, Tasmania, March 12, 1912. The expedition found Termination land, discovered in early days by Wilkes, and chartered numerous small islands along the great ice barrier. Claire land, said to have been discovered in 1838, was proved to be a myth. Dr. Mawson sent back a letter in which he described the southern magnetic pole as a force center which moves around daily within a circular area, the diameter of which is variable and uncertain. The whole area it had traveled in sixty-nine years, he said, was 240 miles. The Mawson expedition is expected to return to Australia in the spring of 1913.

ANDERSON-STEFANSSON EXPEDITION.

In January, 1912, word was received from the Anderson-Stefansson expedition, which for about three years had been engaged in exploration work in the arctic regions for the American Museum of Natural History, that it had practically completed its mission. It was then in the neighborhood of Coronation gulf and Victoria land, north of British America. In May, 1911, Stefansson found a race of natives with light eyebrows and reddish beards, who were more like people from the north of Europe than Eskimos. One of the Alaskan Eskimos called them "fo'c'sle men." One or two other new tribes, never before visited by white men, were found in the vicinity of Victoria land.

CROCKER LAND EXPEDITION.

Owing to the death of George Borup by drowning in Long Island sound April 23, 1912, the expedition planned by him and Prof. D. B. Macmillan, having for its objective Crocker land, had to be postponed until 1913. It had been practically arranged to start in June, 1912, in the arctic steamer Roosevelt, with the purpose of establishing a base west of Cape Columbia, whence the journey to Crocker land could be made by sledge. The original plans will be carried out by Prof. Macmillan, according to an announcement made in 1912.

JAPANESE ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION.

The Japanese antarctic expedition under Lieut. Shirase left Yokohama in the 150 ton schooner Kainan Maru Nov. 28, 1910. The equipment was inadequate and the ship returned to Sydney, N. S. W., May 1, 1911, having been unable to penetrate the ice along Victoria land. Nov. 10, after repairs had been made on the schooner and its equipment had been improved, the expedition made a second start for the south. This time it reached the Bay of Whales and a landing was made on the barrier, near the headquarters of the Amundsen expedition.

The time was spent chiefly in coastal exploring on King Edward land. June 20, 1912, the Kainan Maru arrived at Yokohama, Japan, with all the members of the expedition in good health.

DEATH OF REAR-ADMIRAL MELVILLE.

Rear-Admiral George Wallace Melville, U. S. N., retired, died in Philadelphia, Pa., March 17, 1912, from paralysis. He was born Jan. 10, 1841. As an officer in the engineer corps of the navy he took an active part in the civil war and later attained distinction as an arctic explorer. He was commander of the Tigress, which in 1873 made a search for the lost ship Polariss. In 1879-1881 he was a member of the ill-fated Jeanette expedition and commanded the boat's crew, which finally escaped after an unparalleled retreat of 2,300 miles. He made a third voyage to the arctic regions and recovered the records of the Jeanette expedition. He was honored by many educational and scientific institutions.

RAILROADS FINED FOR REBATING.

The Lake Shore, Michigan Central and Big Four lines pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy to grant rebates and were fined $40,000 in the federal District court, Chicago, by Judge Carpenter, May 7, 1912. The Big Four (Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis) was indicted on two counts and paid a fine of $20,000. The fines were the maximum under the law. It was admitted that rebates had been granted theatrical companies using the lines in the form of lavish expenditures for advertisements in theater programmes.

Persons saved—706.

Cause of disaster—Collision with iceberg.

The White Star liner Titanic, the newest, finest and largest steamship in existence at the time, collided with an iceberg at 11:46 p. m. Sunday, April 14, 1912, and sank at 2:20 a. m. Monday, April 15, causing the loss of 1,517 lives. Seven hundred and six persons, mostly women and children, were saved by means of lifeboats and rafts. These survivors were picked up by the steamship Carpathia, which, in response to a call by wireless for assistance, arrived at the scene of the disaster at 4 o'clock in the morning and conveyed them to New York, that port being reached on the evening of Thursday, April 18.

The Titanic was making its first voyage across the Atlantic, having left the hands of its builders in Belfast April 2. It sailed from Southampton April 10, and, after calling at Cherbourg, France, the same day, and Queenstown, Ireland, the following day, it proceeded toward New York, taking the usual southerly spring course. There was a large number of passengers aboard, many of them attracted by a desire to witness the performance of the gigantic vessel on its initial trip and to share in its comforts and luxuries. One of these was J. Bruce Ismay, chairman and managing director of the White Star line and president of the International Mercantile Marine company. William T. Stead, the widely known London editor; John Jacob Astor, the New York capitalist; Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Railroad company; Frank D. Millet, artist; Lord and Lady Duff-Gordon of England; Maj. Archibald Butt, military aid to President Taft; J. B. Thayer, second vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company; Washington A. Roebling, bridge engineer, Trenton, N. J.; Isidor Straus and Benjamin Guggenheim, New York capitalists; George D. Widener, son of P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia; Jacques Futelle, author, and Henry B. Harris, theatrical manager, were also among the persons of note included in the passenger list. Capt. E. J. Smith was in command of the ship.

The voyage at the start was uneventful. The sea was calm and the weather clear, though rather cold. The wind was westerly to southwesterly. As usual with new ships, the speed was being gradually increased from day to day. According to a statement made afterward by Mr. Ismay, the distance covered on the first day was 464 miles, on the second 519 miles and on the third about 546 miles. No attempt, he said, was made to reach the full speed of which the vessel was capable, as it was not intended to reach New York until Wednesday morning.

ICE WARNINGS RECEIVED.

Sunday the wireless operators aboard the Titanic received three warnings that icebergs were in or near the course of the vessel. The first came from the Baltic at noon, the second from the Californian of the Leyland line about 7 o'clock in the evening and the third about an hour before the collision.

This was also from the Californian, the message reading: "We are stopped and surrounded by ice." To this last message the operator on the Titanic is reported to have replied: "Shut up. I am busy. I am working Cape Race." The Baltic's operator overheard ice reports going to the Titanic from the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm and from the Amerika, while the Carpathia on the same day overheard the Parisian talking with other ships about ice. No special attention was paid to these warnings by the officers of the Titanic, except that one of them instructed the lookouts to keep "a sharp lookout for ice." Capt. Smith remarked to Second Officer Charles S. Lightoller, who was on duty on the bridge until 10 o'clock Sunday evening, "If it is in the slightest degree hazy we shall have to go very slowly. If in the least degree doubtful let me know." There was no haze and the ship's speed of 21 knots, or 24 1/4 miles an hour, was not reduced.

COLLISION WITH ICEBERG.

At 11:46 p. m. the lookout signaled the bridge and telephoned the officer of the watch, "Iceberg right ahead." The officer of the watch, First Officer W. M. Murdoch, immediately ordered the quartermaster at the wheel to put the helm "hard a-starboard," and reversed the engines, but while the sixth officer, J. P. Moody, standing behind the quartermaster at the wheel, reported to Officer Murdoch, "The helm is hard a-starboard," the Titanic struck the ice. The impact, while not violent enough to disturb the passengers or crew or to arrest the ship's progress, rolled the vessel slightly and tore the steel plating above the turn of the bilge. A few of the passengers came on deck to find out what the trouble was, but there was no alarm. Immediately after the collision air was heard whistling or hissing from the overflow pipe to the forepeak tank, indicating the escape of air from that tank because of the inrush of water. Practically at once the first three compartments in the hold and the forward boiler room, as well as the forepeak tank, filled with water and reports of the situation were made from the mail and trunk room in No. 3 hold and the fireman's quarters in No. 1 hold. Leading Fireman Barrett saw the water rushing into the forward fireroom from a tear about two feet above the stokehold floor plates and about twenty feet below the waterline, the tear extending two feet into the coal bunker at the forward end of the second fireroom.

The reports received by Capt. Smith after various inspections of the ship must have acquainted him promptly with its serious condition and when interrogated by Mr. Ismay he so expressed himself. It is believed also that this serious condition was promptly realized by the chief engineer, J. Bell, and by the builders' representative, Thomas Andrews, both of whom perished.

Under the added weight of water the bow of the ship sank deeper and deeper and through the open hatch leading from the mail room and through other openings the water overflowed E deck, below which the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth transverse bulkheads ended, and thus flooded the compartments abaft No. 3 hold.

The Titanic was fitted with fifteen transverse watertight bulkheads, but only one of them extended to the uppermost continuous deck, C. The others extended only to decks D and E. The bulkheads having their openings through deck E were not actually watertight, as it was subsequently shown that the flooding of that deck contributed largely to the sinking of the ship. Theoretically any two of the sixteen main watertight compartments might be flooded without involving the safety of the ship. As already stated, the five extreme forward compartments were flooded almost at once by reason of the nonwatertight character of the deck at which the transverse bulkheads ended and the sinking of the vessel was inevitable.

CALL FOR HELP.

No general alarm was sounded, no whistle blown and no systematic warning was given the passengers. Within fifteen or twenty minutes Capt. Smith visited the wireless room and instructed the operators, J. G. Phillips and Harold S. Bride, to call for assistance by sending out the distress signal, "C. Q. D." At the time the call was sent out there were eight vessels within reach of the Titanic's wireless apparatus. These were the Californian, west bound, 13½ miles (or less) to the north; the Mount Temple of the Canadian Pacific line, west bound, 49 miles to the west; the Carpathia of the Cunard line, east bound, to the southeast; the Birma, a Russian ship, 70 miles distant; the Frankfurt of the North German Lloyd line, east bound, 153 miles to the southeast; the Virginian of the Allan line, about 170 miles distant; the Baltic of the White Star line, east bound, 343 miles to the southeast, and the Olympic, sister ship of the Titanic, east bound, 512 miles to the westward. The Caronia, some 800 miles to the eastward, also overheard the Titanic's call for aid.

The distress call was heard by the wireless station at Cape Race, together with the report that the vessel had struck an iceberg, and from this station the news of the accident which at first was not thought to have involved the loss of life, was given to the world. The C. Q. D. signal was also heard by the Mount Temple, the Frankfurt, the Baltic, the Carpathia, the Virginian and was relayed by them to other vessels. At an investigation undertaken by a committee of the United States senate, from whose official report this account of the disaster is largely taken, sixteen witnesses from the Titanic, including officers, seamen and passengers, testified to seeing the lights of a vessel in the distance, just after the collision. The Titanic fired distress rockets and attempted to signal by electric lamp and Morse code to this vessel. At about the same time the officers of the Californian saw rockets in the general direction of the Titanic and, according to the testimony subsequently given by them, they displayed a powerful Morse lamp. Several of the crew of the Californian testified before the senate committee that the side lights of a large vessel going at full speed were plainly visible from the lower deck of their ship at 11:30 p. m., or just before the accident. The wireless operator on the Californian was not aroused until early on the morning of the 15th, when he was directed to find out what the rockets, seen hours before, meant. It was then learned that the Titanic had sunk, but it was too late to give any assistance. The senate committee in its report expressed the opinion that the Californian was much nearer the Titanic than the nineteen miles reported by the captain, and that it might have had the distinction of saving the lives of the passengers and crew of the sinking liner.

The Frankfurt replied to the distress call, but failed to give its own position, and when it later asked the Titanic, "What is the matter?" one of the operators on the disabled ship told the Frankfurt operator that he was a fool. Notwithstanding this, the captain of the Frankfurt said he would go to the Titanic's assistance. Owing to the delay, however, he was unable to be of any service.

CARPATHIA TO THE RESCUE.

At the time of the collision the Titanic was in latitude 41:16 north and longitude 50:14 west. This is approximately 450 miles south of Cape Race, 1,191 miles east of New York and 1,799 west of Queenstown. The Cunard steamship Carpathia, which was the only vessel to come to the rescue in time, was on its way to Mediterranean ports with a considerable number of excursionists. It was fifty-eight miles to the southeast of the Titanic when at 12:30 o'clock in the morning of the 15th its wireless operator, Thomas Cottam, who was just about to go off duty, heard the distress signal from the White Star liner. He verified it and notified Capt. Arthur H. Rostron at 12:35 a. m. The latter at once put his ship about, ordered his crew and doctors to get everything in readiness for receiving a large number of shipwrecked persons aboard and proceeded at full speed in the direction of the disabled vessel, the exact position of which had been given in the call for help. Operator Cottam remained in communication with the Titanic, giving the position of the Carpathia and saying that it was hurrying to the rescue. The last message he received from the Titanic was: "Come quick; our engine room is filling up to the boilers."

LOADING THE LIFEBOATS.

Having sent out calls for assistance and ordered the firing of distress rockets at frequent intervals, Capt. Smith and his officers took steps to notify the passengers of the danger and to place as many of them as possible in safety. Messengers were sent to the various decks shouting, "All passengers on deck with life preservers on." The order was obeyed quietly and quickly and so far as known all were aroused and equipped with life preservers. The testimony is that there was a total absence of panic and but little appearance of excitement. The ship was absolutely still and, except for a slight tilt forward, rode on an even keel. By the captain's order the lifeboats were uncovered and made ready to be lowered into the water. The sense report says:

"The lack of preparation at this time was most noticeable. There was no system adopted for loading the boats; there was great indecision as to the deck from which the boats were to be lowered; there was wide diversity of opinion as to the number of the crew necessary to man each boat; there was no direction whatever as to the number of passengers to be carried by each boat and no uniformity in loading them. On one side only women and children were put into the boats, while on the other side there was an almost equal proportion of men and women put into the boats, the women and children being given the preference in all cases. The failure to utilize all lifeboats to their recognized capacity for safety unquestionably resulted in the needless sacrifice of several hundred lives which might otherwise have been saved.

"The vessel was provided with lifeboats for 1,176 persons, while but 706 were saved. Only a few of the ship's lifeboats were fully loaded, while others were only partially filled. Some were loaded at the boat deck and some at A deck, and these were successfully lowered to the water. The twentieth boat was washed overboard when the forward part of the ship was submerged, and in its overturned condition served as a life raft for about thirty people, including Second Officer Lightoller, Wireless Operators Bride and Phillips—the latter dying before rescue—Col. Archibald Gracie and Jack Thayer, passengers, and others of the crew who climbed upon it from the water at about the time the ship disappeared.

"Had the sea been rough it is questionable whether any of the lifeboats of the Titanic would have reached the water without being damaged or destroyed. The point of suspension of the boats was about seventy feet above the level of the sea. Had the ship been rolling heavily the lifeboats, as they were lowered, would have swung out from the side of the ship as it rolled toward them and on the return roll would have swung back and crashed against its side.

"The testimony is definite that, except in isolated instances, there was no panic. In loading boats no distinction was made between first, second and third class passengers, although the proportion of lost was larger among the third-class passengers than in either of the other classes. Women and children without discrimination were given preference."

WOMEN AND CHILDREN FIRST.

Second Officer Lightoller had charge of the loading of six of the lifeboats and he compiled strictly with the "rule of the sea" that women and children should be cared for first. There were altogether fourteen lifeboats, capable of holding sixty-five persons each; two emergency seaboats to hold thirty-five persons each and four collapsible boats with a capacity of forty-nine persons each. In the stowage there was some crowding by the men, but it was checked by the officers and the crew, who obeyed the captain's injunction to "act like British men." The men, whether millionaires or paupers, were as a rule equally heroic. They either stood back while the boats were being loaded or helped in the work. This was notably the case with Maj. Archibald Butt, John Jacob Astor, Isidor Straus, Jacques Futrelle and Henry B. Harris, all of whom perished.

Isidor Straus resolutely refused to enter a lifeboat, though asked to do so. "As long as there is a woman on this vessel," he is reported to have said, "I will not leave. When the women are safe then come the men." Mrs. Straus was entreated to get in with the other women, but she refused to leave her husband and died with him. There were other instances of the same kind. There was evidently a feeling that the ship was in no immediate peril and most of the married women went aboard the lifeboats under the impression that their husbands would soon follow them in other boats. Nothing was seen of William T. Stead. He is supposed to have remained in his room and gone down with the ship.

BAND PLAYS AS SHIP SINKS.

In the meantime the Titanic was steadily sinking by the head and the water was rising from deck to deck. The hundreds left on the ship were preparing to go down with it or jump into the sea. A few men were struggling to launch a boat that had become jammed, but otherwise nothing was being done. The eight musicians of the ship, who had come together while the lifeboats were being launched, continued playing to give the imperiled passengers confidence. Even as the vessel was about to take its final plunge the strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," were heard. It was the most dramatic feature of the great tragedy.

It was 2:20 o'clock in the morning when the ship finally went down. Just as it was about to disappear two explosions were heard, and to some it appeared as though the vessel broke in two amidships. The preponderance of evidence, however, is that when it went down it assumed an almost end-on position and sank intact. The people in the nearest lifeboats heard loud screaming and moaning for what seemed to be several minutes and then all was still.

Col. Gracie was one of the last persons on the ship as it sank. He was drawn under the water by the suction, but some explosion in the vessel sent him and others to the surface. He clung to a piece of wreckage until he recovered his breath and then he discovered the overturned lifeboat, which he managed to reach. He and another man helped others upon the craft and at daylight there were thirty men standing upon it. They were knee deep in water and afraid to move lest they upset it and go down. Besides those mentioned in the senate report, quoted in a preceding paragraph, H. J. Pitman, third officer; J. G. Boxhall, fourth officer, and H. C. Lowe, fifth officer, were rescued in this manner. First Officer Murdoch perished, as did Capt. E. J. Smith. The exact manner of their death is not known. It was reported, but not verified, that the former shot himself before the vessel sank. The same was said of the captain, but this was declared to be untrue. Some of the passengers claimed to have seen him take a child in his arms and jump into the sea. A sailor said the child was taken aboard a lifeboat, but that the captain sank. J. Bruce Ismay entered one of the lifeboats before the ship went down and was saved. He claimed that no women were in sight at the time and that there was room for him.

After lowering, several of the lifeboats rowed many hours in the direction of the lights supposed to have been displayed by the Californian. Other boats lay on their oars in the vicinity of the sinking ship, a few survivors being rescued from the water. The sea was glassy smooth, the stars were shining and the night was clear. It was cold, however, and those who were wet suffered severely. Many of the rescued were thinly clad and some of them, including women, were glad to take part in the rowing to keep warm. One or more seamen had been assigned to each boat to take charge of it. After distributing his passengers among four other boats which he had brought together and after the cries of distress had died away, Fifth Officer Lowe, in boat No. 14, went to the scene of the wreck and rescued four living passengers from the water, one of whom afterward died in the boat. The men who had taken refuge on the overturned lifeboat were taken off by lifeboats Nos. 4 and 12. The fourth collapsible lifeboat contained twenty-eight women and children, mostly third-class passengers, three firemen, one steward, four Filipinos, J. Bruce Ismay and W. E. Carter of Philadelphia, and was in charge of Quartermaster Rowe.

THE RESCUE.

At 4 o'clock in the morning the lights of the Carpathia were seen and all the boats rowed in the direction of the approaching steamer. The Cunarder had made good time, though forced to alter its course several times on account of icebergs. At 4:10 a. m. the first lifeboat was picked up and at 8:30 a. m. the last of the survivors were aboard. Day was breaking when the first boat was unloaded and after that the surface of the ocean for miles around was visible. Thirteen of the lifeboats were picked up and taken to New York. Capt. Rostron, in his official report, said that at this time his ship was surrounded by icebergs, large and small, and that three miles to the northwest was a huge field of drift ice with large and small bergs in it. At 8 o'clock the Californian came up and was requested to continue the search for survivors or bodies. The Mount Temple also reached the scene in the morning and assisted in the search, but no bodies were found. It is believed that those subsequently picked up had been carried by strong currents away from the spot where the Titanic went down or were hidden by the extensive ice floes.

At 8:30 a. m. the Carpathia started directly for New York. While the rescue work was in progress a clergyman aboard offered a prayer of thankfulness for those saved and performed a short burial service for the dead. Everything possible was done for the survivors of the wreck, passengers and officers, giving them their rooms and providing articles of clothing for those needing them.

The wireless equipment of the Carpathia was not of the best and more or less trouble was had in sending messages ashore or to other ships. The regular operator, Thomas Cottam, was assisted by Harold S. Bride of the Titanic, who was saved in a crippled condition. They confined themselves to sending official and private messages and the names of the rescued, paying no attention to requests for details of the disaster, or even to the efforts of the operators on the United States scout cruiser Salem, who tried to get information as to the fate of Maj. Archibald Butt for President Taft. The operators on the Carpathia excused themselves later on the ground that the wireless men on the warship were incompetent and that it was a waste of time to reply to them. Because of this lack of definite information the arrival of the Carpathia was awaited with much anxiety. When the ship finally reached its dock in New York at 9:30 p. m., Thursday, April 18, it was met by a large number of people anxious to welcome the survivors and to make inquiries about the missing. Those of the rescued who were ill or disabled were taken to hospitals, while others went to their homes or to hotels to proceed to their destinations on the following day.

STATEMENT OF PASSENGERS.

Upon the arrival of the Carpathia a statement signed by a committee of twenty-five of the Titanic's passengers, with Samuel Goldenberg as chairman, was given to the press. After detailing briefly the facts of the wreck and giving approximately the number of persons on board, the number saved and the number lost, the statement concluded:

"We feel it our duty to call the attention of the public to what we consider the inadequate supply of life saving appliances provided for on modern passenger steamships and recommend that immediate steps be taken to compel passenger steamers to carry sufficient boats to accommodate the maximum number of people carried on board.

"The following facts were observed and should be considered in this connection:

"The insufficiency of lifeboats, rafts, etc.

"Lack of trained seamen to man the same (stokers, stewards, etc., are not efficient boat handlers).

"Not enough officers to carry out emergency orders on the bridge and superintend the launching and control of lifeboats.

"Absence of searchlights.

"The board of trade rules allow for entirely too many people in each boat to permit the same to be properly handled.

"On the Titanic the boat deck was about seventy-five feet above water and consequently the passengers were required to embark before lowering the boats, thus endangering the operation and preventing the taking on of the maximum number the boats would hold.

"Boats at all times should be properly equipped with provisions, water, lamps, compasses, lights, etc.

"Life saving boat drills should be more frequent and thoroughly carried out and officers should be armed at boat drills.

"Great reduction should be made in speed in fog and ice, as damage, if collision actually occurs, is liable to be less.

"In conclusion we suggest that an international conference be called to recommend the passage of identical laws providing for the safety of all at sea, and we urge the United States government to take the initiative as soon as possible."

SENATE INVESTIGATION.

April 18, the same day that the Carpathia arrived in New York, the United States senate passed a resolution directing the committee on commerce to make an inquiry into the "causes leading to the wreck of the White Star liner Titanic, with its attendant loss of life, so shocking to the civilized world." The committee was further directed to recommend such legislation as it might deem expedient. The committee accordingly appointed the following subcommittee to conduct the investigation: William Alden Smith, Michigan, chairman; George C. Perkins, California; Jonathan Bourne, Jr., Oregon; Theodore E. Burton, Ohio; F. M. Simmons, North Carolina; Francis G. Newlands, Nevada; Duncan U. Fletcher, Florida.

The committee examined eighty-two witnesses, of whom fifty-three were British subjects. Among others interrogated were J. Bruce Ismay, P. A. S. Franklin, vice-president in America of the International Mercantile Marine company, the four surviving officers of the Titanic, C. H. Lightoller, H. J. Pitman, J. G. Boxhall and Harold G. Lowe, and thirty-four members of the crew.

The sessions of the committee were held in Washington and in New York and the inquiry was so searching and rigid as to evoke the criticism in some of the London papers that it was brutal. The examination of Mr. Ismay, in particular, was pronounced too severe. The official report was made to the senate May 23 by Chairman Smith, who made a speech, in which he called attention to the salient points brought out by the inquiry. He said that the loss of the Titanic was due largely to laxity of regulation and hasty inspection on the part of the British board of trade. On his motion the senate passed a resolution that the thanks of congress be extended to Capt. Arthur Henry Rosston of the Carpathia and through him to the officers and crew of the vessel for promptly going to the relief of the Titanic and heroically rescuing the survivors, and that the president be authorized to have made and presented to the captain a gold medal, suitably inscribed, expressing the high estimation in which congress held his services. This resolution was subsequently adopted by the house.

The facts found by the senate committee were substantially as given in the preceding account of the wreck. In its report it recommended that not fewer than four members of the crew, skilled in handling boats, be assigned to each lifeboat, and that all men so assigned be drilled in lowering and rowing the boats not less than twice a month; that passengers and crew be assigned to lifeboats before sailing; that every passenger steamship carrying 100 or more passengers be equipped with two searchlights; that a radiotelegraph operator be on duty at all times, day and night, and that there be definite legislation to prevent interference by amateurs with wireless telegrams; that the firing of rockets at sea be prohibited except as a signal of distress and that certain new structural requirements be insisted upon in the building of ocean going passenger steamers. These requirements were that ships carrying more than 100 passengers should have a watertight skin inboard of the outside plating, extending not less than 10 per cent of the load draft above the full load water line, either in the form of an inner bottom or of longitudinal watertight bulkheads, and this construction should extend over not less than two-thirds of the length of the ship. Bulkheads should be so spaced that any two adjacent compartments might be flooded without destroying the floatability or stability of the ship. Watertight transverse bulkheads should extend from side to side of the ship, attaching to the outside shell. The transverse bulkheads forward and abaft the machinery spaces should be continued watertight vertically to the uppermost continuous structural deck. That deck should be fitted watertight. Bulkheads within the limits of the machinery spaces should extend not less than 25 per cent of the draft of the ship above the load water line and should end in a watertight deck.

BRITISH INQUIRY.

The British board of trade also organized a court of inquiry under the presidency of Lord Mersey. Its investigation ended July 3, after the examination of ninety-eight witnesses. The court presented its findings July 30. These were in brief:

That the collision with the iceberg was due to the excessive speed at which the Titanic was navigated.

That a proper watch was not kept.

That the ship's boats were properly lowered, but the arrangements for manning them were insufficient.

That the Leyland liner Californian might have reached the Titanic if she had attempted to do so.

That the track followed was reasonably safe with proper vigilance.

That there was no discrimination against third class passengers in the saving of life.

The court of inquiry exonerated J. Bruce Ismay, chairman and managing director of the White Star line, and Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon, one of the passengers, from any charges of improper conduct.

More watertight compartments in seagoing ships, the provision of lifeboats for all on board and more efficient drills of the crew, as well as a better lookout, were recommended.

RECOVERY OF BODIES.

Shortly after the sinking of the Titanic the cable ship Mackay-Bennett was sent to the scene of the disaster to recover the bodies of the victims, many of whom had been seen floating in the water by passing steamers. It searched an area of more than thirty square miles and picked up 306 bodies. Of these 115 were buried at sea and the remainder brought to Halifax, N. S., April 30. Among the dead who were identified and taken to their former homes for burial were J. J. Astor, E. G. Crosby, W. D. Douglas, Dr. W. S. Minahan, Frank D. Millet and Isidor Straus. Every body picked up had on a life belt.

More than $1,500,000 was raised in England and the United States for the impoverished and helpless survivors of the wreck and for needy relatives of the dead. Of this amount about $2,000 was contributed in Chicago.

DESCRIPTION OF THE TITANIC.

The Titanic was built by Harland & Wolff at Belfast, Ireland. No restrictions as to cost were placed on the builders. The vessel fully equipped cost £1,500,000, or about $7,500,000. At the time of the wreck it carried insurance of $5,000,000, the remaining risk being carried by the company's insurance fund. The ship was launched May 31, 1911, and trial tests were made on Belfast lough April 1, 1912. The registered tonnage was 46,328 and the displacement 66,000 tons. The length over all was 882 feet 6 inches and breadth 92 feet 6 inches. The height from keel to boat deck was 97 feet 4 inches.

The vessel was supplied with everything in the line of comforts and luxuries that could be suggested, including an eighteen hole "deck golf" course, tennis and handball courts, outdoor and indoor gymnasiums, running track, photographic dark room, lounging room, "palm court," "veranda cafe" and glass covered promenade. In addition to the usual suite bathroom facilities it had Turkish and electric baths and salt and fresh water swimming pools. It was, in fact, a huge floating hotel of the finest kind that money could produce.

REVOLUTION IN ECUADOR.

Eloy Alfaro was proclaimed president of Ecuador by the populace in January, 1906, after he had defeated the government troops at Quito. In October of the same year he was elected provisional president by the national convention and held office until 1911. In that year Emilio Estrada ran for the office, with Flavio Alfaro as an opponent, and was elected by more than 100,000 votes. He retained the presidency until Dec. 22, when he died. On the 28th the troops of Gen. Pedro Montero, stationed in Guayaquil, after riots in which many persons were killed or injured, proclaimed him president. The liberals favored the candidacy of Gen. Leonidas Plaza, while some of the radicals sought to give the office to Gen. Flavio Alfaro.

Severe fighting followed the Montero revolt against the constitutional administration at Quito. The rebels sustained a severe defeat Jan. 18 at Yaguache, northeast of Guayaquil, when more than 1,000 men were killed or wounded. The government troops were commanded by Gen. Julio Andrade, while those from Guayaquil were under Gen. Flavio Alfaro. The latter was wounded in the battle and Eloy Alfaro succeeded him. The Quito troops followed up their success and Jan. 22, after a battle in which eighty men were killed or wounded, they captured the city of Guayaquil. Gen. Leonidas Plaza, who commanded the government troops in this battle, received the surrender of Gens. Eloy Alfaro, Flavio Alfaro, Uplano Paez, Manuel Serrano and Pedro Montero. Gen. Medardo Alfaro, another rebel general, was captured Jan. 25.

Gen. Montero was brought before a court-martial on the evening of Jan. 25 and sentenced to sixteen years' imprisonment in a penitentiary. When Gen. Plaza announced the verdict crowds of angry people rushed into the courtroom, riddled Montero with bullets, dragged his body into the streets, beheaded it and then cast head and trunk into a fire which had been built. The other generals were hastened to the Quito penitentiary, where they were to be tried. Jan. 28 an infuriated mob succeeded in breaking into the prison in spite of a double guard and lynched Gens. Eloy Alfaro, Flavio Alfaro, Medardo Alfaro, Uplano Paez and Manuel Serrano.

March 5 Gen. Julio Andrade and a large party of conservatives attacked the police barracks at Quito, but were repulsed and Andrade was killed. He was one of the noted men of the public and it was supposed that he and others had plotted to seize the government.

FRENCH AUTOMOBILE BANDITS KILLED.

Paris and surrounding districts were terrorized in the winter and spring of 1911-1912 by a number of organized bandits, who used an automobile in their operations. Many murders and robberies were committed by them, but all efforts on the part of the authorities to run them down failed until April 28, 1912, when the chief of the gang, Jules Bonnot, and one of his lieutenants, Dubois, were tracked to a garage in Choisy-le-Roi, six miles south of Paris. Police and troops, under the direction of M. Lepine, the chief of police, surrounded the garage and after the exchange of many shots blew it up with dynamite in the presence of 10,000 spectators. Dubois was found dead and Bonnot suffering from several bullet wounds. He died on the way to the city. Both he and Dubois were provided with poison for suicidal purposes, but neither was able to use it. The affair attracted as much attention as the "battle of London" did in January, 1911, when the police and military had a spectacular fight with several desperadoes in the White-chapel district. Bonnot was known as the "demon chauffeur."

STATES AND TERRITORIES IN THE UNION.

There are forty-eight states in the union and three territories, the latter including Hawaii, the District of Columbia and Alaska. The District of Columbia is governed by three commissioners, appointed by the president of the United States under laws passed directly by congress. Alaska has a governor appointed by the president, but has no legislature. It is under the direct control of congress. Porto Rico, the Philippines and other island possessions of the United States are not technically territories, each having a special form of government.

WILLIAM LORIMER'S ELECTION AS SENATOR INVALID.

The right of William Lorimer, republican, of Chicago, to hold his seat in the United States senate, to which he was elected May 26, 1909, by a combination of democrats and republicans in the Illinois legislature, was challenged in the upper house of congress Jan. 9, 1911. Two resolutions were introduced, both declaring his election illegal. Only one was acted on, that offered by Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, which was as follows:

"Resolved, That William Lorimer was not duly and legally elected to a seat in the senate of the United States by the legislature of Illinois."

Senator Beveridge, as a member of the committee on privileges and elections, submitted a report dissenting from the views of the majority of the committee, which, in December, 1910, had declared that the charges of bribery in connection with Mr. Lorimer's election were not sustained. [See The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book for 1911, page 404.]

The Beveridge resolution came before the senate for discussion and, after an acrimonious debate lasting until March 1, 1911, was defeated by a vote of 46 yeas to 40 yeas. Thirty-five republicans and eleven democrats voted in favor of Mr. Lorimer.

The action of the senate was resented and meetings of protest were held in various parts of the country. In the Illinois state senate a committee, of which Douglas W. Helm of Metropolis was chairman, was appointed to inquire into the charges of corruption in the 46th general assembly. This committee was informed by H. H. Kohlstaet, editor of the Chicago Record-Herald, that he had been told by Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, that a fund of $100,000 had been raised by Edward Hines, lumberman, to secure the election of Mr. Lorimer as United States senator. Mr. Funk said that Mr. Hines had asked him for a contribution of $10,000, to be sent to Edward Tilden, a packer.

In pursuance of the information obtained from Mr. Funk, the committee asked Edward Tilden to appear before the committee with certain books and documents that might throw light upon the alleged Lorimer fund. George M. Benedict and William C. Cummings were asked to produce certain bank accounts kept by Mr. Tilden at the time the fund was supposed to have been collected. These men refused to appear or to produce the documentary proofs sought, whereupon the committee ordered their arrest. Warrants were served upon them, but they were immediately released upon writs of habeas corpus issued by Judge Adolphe Petit of the Circuit court of Cook county, who, after a hearing, denied the right of the senate or a committee thereof to require the attendance of these witnesses or the production of the proof demanded. In effect, Judge Petit held that the committee had no power or authority to take proof or to subpoena witnesses because of the fact that the scope of the inquiry under the resolution creating the committee included not only members of the senate but of the house as well, the senate thereby seeking to embark upon an inquiry over which it had no jurisdiction.

Finding its further progress blocked, the committee concluded its examination of witnesses and May 17 made a report to the senate, reciting the foregoing and other facts. The essence of its finding was expressed in the following words:

"Your committee has reached the conclusion that the election of William Lorimer before the last general assembly would not have occurred had it not been for bribery and corruption."

May 18, by a vote of 39 to 10, the state senate adopted a resolution to the effect that in its opinion the election of Mr. Lorimer as senator was brought about by bribery and corruption and that the good name of the state and the welfare of the nation demanded that a further investigation should be made by the United States senate.

SECOND SENATE INVESTIGATION.

June 1, 1911, by a vote of forty-eight to twenty, the United States senate adopted a resolution to reopen the inquiry into Mr. Lorimer's election and the following subcommittee was named by the committee on privileges and elections to conduct the investigation: Republicans—Dillingham, Vermont, chairman; Gamble, South Dakota; Jones, Washington; Kenyon, Iowa. Democrats—Johnston, Alabama; Kern, Indiana; Lea, Tennessee; Fletcher, Florida.

The examination of witnesses was begun June 20 in room 301 of the senate office building in Washington. Those who appeared before the committee included, among others, Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the International Harvester company; Herman H. Kohlstaet, editor of the Chicago Record-Herald; Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company; Wirt H. Cook, Edward Tilden, Edward Hines, Gov. Charles S. Deneen, Christian F. Wiehe, Nelson W. Aldrich and Boies Penrose. The testimony was substantially the same as that given before the Illinois senate committee, except that additional information was given. John H. Marble and John J. Healy were counsel for the committee, while Mr. Lorimer was represented by Elbridge Haney and William J. Hynes. The committee did not, as at the first hearing, adhere to the strict rules of evidence, but permitted great latitude in the investigation. The hearing continued in Washington until Aug. 9, when a recess was taken until Oct. 10. The committee then met in the federal building in Chicago and resumed the examination of witnesses. It adjourned Nov. 22 and continued its work in Washington, D. C., until Feb. 9, 1912, when the taking of testimony was concluded. One hundred and eighty witnesses had been examined and the hearings had occupied 102 days. The most sensational feature was the introduction of dictograph notes declared to have been taken by James Sheridan, a stenographer, while A. C. Bailey, a detective of the Burns agency, was talking to Charles McGowan in a hotel in Toronto, Canada. McGowan was a witness who had testified in favor of the Lorimer-Hines side before the committee and was alleged to have been paid for it. The dictograph notes purported to record his admission to Detective Bailey that this charge was true. Milton W. Blumenberg, the official stenographer of the investigating committee, denounced the dictograph notes as having been "faked" and was adjudged to be in contempt. He was, however, not further punished.

March 28, 1912, the subcommittee adopted the following resolutions, the first offered by Senator Gamble and the other by Senator Johnston:

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this committee this investigation does not show that there were used or employed in the election of William Lorimer to the senate of the United States from the state of Illinois corrupt practices and methods."

"Resolved, That the testimony failed to show that Senator Lorimer himself used any corrupt practices or means or had any knowledge that such were used."

On the Gamble resolution the committee divided five to three, those voting in favor of it being Senators:

Dillingham of Vermont, Rep., chairman.
Gamble of South Dakota, Rep.
Jones of Washington, Rep.
Johnston of Alabama, Dem.
Fletcher of Florida, Dem.

The three senators who voted against the resolution were:

Kenyon of Iowa, Rep.
Kern of Indiana, Dem.
Lea of Tennessee, Dem.

Senator Jones of Washington offered the following resolution, which was also adopted:

"Resolved, That nothing has developed in or by this investigation that justifies a reversal of the solemn and deliberate judgment of the United States senate, rendered during the last session of the 61st congress, holding valid the election of William Lorimer as a senator of the United States."

The vote upon this resolution was: Yeas—Dillingham, Gamble, Jones, Johnston and Fletcher—5. Nays—Kenyon, Kern and Lea—3.

The following resolution offered by Senator Kern was adopted by a vote of 3 (Kern, Kenyon and Lea) to 0:

"That in the opinion of this committee there was a fund distributed in the city of St. Louis on June 2, 1909, by Leo O'Neil, Browne, and on July 15, 1909, by Robert E. Wilson, to certain members of the Illinois legislature."

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

May 20 the committee submitted majority and minority reports to the senate. The majority report, signed by Senators Dillingham, Gamble, Jones, Johnston and Fletcher, found Mr. Lorimer was not elected corruptly and was entitled to his seat in the senate; the minority report, signed by Senators Kenyon, Kern and Lea, found that his election was brought about by corrupt means and that he was not elected corruptly and was entitled to his seat in the majority report is contained in the following concluding paragraphs:

"The senate has once solemnly and deliberately passed upon the charges made against him [Lorimer]. Its judgment, after a full investigation and extensive argument, was in his favor and should stand unless new and convincing evidence is produced establishing corruption in his election. This rule is more liberal toward the senate and the people than toward Mr. Lorimer, because if the judgment had been against him he would have been bound by it and no amount of proof showing the injustice of the decision against him would secure its reversal and his reinstatement as a member of this body.

"Absolutely no new and substantial evidence has been produced or discovered on this reinvestigation showing that he was elected by corruption, and we believe that all the rules of law, judicial procedure and justice require that the former judgment of the senate should be held to be conclusive and final.

"There is absolutely no evidence in all the testimony submitted intimating, suggesting or charging that William Lorimer was personally guilty of any corrupt practices in securing his election, or that he had any knowledge of any such corrupt practices, or that he authorized any one to employ corrupt practices in his election.

"We are convinced that no vote was secured for him by bribery; that whatever money White, Beckemeyer, Link, Holstlaw or any other person received was not paid to him or them by any one on Mr. Lorimer's behalf or in consideration of or to secure such vote or votes for him; that neither Edward Hines nor any one else raised or contributed to a fund to be used to secure his election; that his election was the logical result of existing political conditions in the state of Illinois and was free from any corrupt practice and therefore we must find, and we do find, that William Lorimer's election was not brought about or influenced by corrupt methods and practices."

The minority report not only insisted that the doctrine of res adjudicata had no application, but declared:

1. That the evidence obtained established conclusively that at least ten of the votes cast for Mr. Lorimer were corruptly cast, and it named also five other legislators whose votes were sold. The names of these men were:

Charles A. White.	Robert E. Wilson.
H. J. C. Beckemeyer.	W. C. Blair.
Michael Link.	Thomas Tippet.
Joseph S. Clark.	Henry L. Wheelan.
Henry A. Shepherd.	John H. DeWolf.
Charles S. Lueke.	Cyril R. Jandus.
D. W. Holstlaw.	John Broderick.
Lee O'Neil Browne.

2. That Senator Lorimer was equally guilty and responsible for the wrongdoing of Lee O'Neil Browne and Edward D. Shurtleff.

3. That Edward Hines did participate corruptly in Lorimer's election and that his character was established as one "that looked upon everything and everybody as being purchasable."

4. That the motive Mr. Hines and Senator Lorimer attempted to ascribe as the reason for Funk's committing the crime of perjury was too far fetched to be tenable and too ridiculous and absurd to lessen the force of Funk's testimony.

That Burgess was an absolutely disinterested witness and that the majority believed both his testimony and that of Funk.

On the same day these reports were submitted (May 20) Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee offered the following resolution:

"Resolved, That corrupt methods and practices were employed in the election of William Lorimer to the senate of the United States from the state of Illinois, and that his election therefore was invalid."

ELECTION FOUND INVALID.

Debate was begun on the resolution June 4 by Senator Kern of Indiana, who strongly urged its adoption. Speeches for and against were made by other members of the senate, one of Mr. Lorimer's chief defenders being Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington, who previously had voted against him. An agreement was reached to take a vote July 6, but as the arguments had not then been concluded the legislative day was continued until July 14, on which day Mr. Lorimer concluded a three days' speech on his behalf. The greater part of his remarks was devoted to a bitter arraignment of the individuals and newspapers opposing him.

By a vote of 55 to 23 the United States senate on the afternoon of July 14, 1912, adopted the Lea resolution and Mr. Lorimer was retired to private life. The final vote was as follows:

STEPHENSON INVESTIGATION.

Aug. 15, 1911, the United States senate adopted the following resolution reported from the committee on privileges and elections:

"That the senate committee on privileges and elections, or any subcommittee thereof, be authorized and directed to investigate certain charges preferred by the legislature of Wisconsin against Isaac Stephenson, a senator of the United States from the state of Wisconsin, and to report to the senate whether in the election of said Isaac Stephenson as a senator of the United States from the said state of Wisconsin there were used or employed corrupt methods or practices; that said committee or subcommittee be authorized to sit during the recess of the senate, to hold its session at such place or places as it shall deem most convenient for the purposes of the investigation, to employ stenographers, to send for persons and papers and to administer oaths; and that the expenses of the inquiry shall be paid from the contingent fund of the senate upon vouchers to be approved by the chairman of the committee or chairman of the subcommittee."

Senators Heyburn, Sutherland, Pomerene, Bradley and Paynter were appointed a special committee to conduct the investigation, which began in Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 2 and continued until Nov. 1. Senator Stephenson testified that he had spent $107,793 in the primary campaign of 1908 to secure the nomination. He said he had not handled the money himself, but had given most of it to his campaign manager, E. A. Edmonds, to use as he saw fit. He denied that any of the money had been corruptly used to secure his nomination. Mr. Edmonds declared that the money was spent legitimately for brass bands, lithographs, buttons, advertising and other customary campaign expenses.

Jan. 18, 1912, the Heyburn subcommittee agreed upon a report holding that the charges of corruption and bribery made against Senator Stephenson had not been proved and exonerated him from any attempt to corrupt the legislature of Wisconsin. The subcommittee's report was then laid before the full committee on privileges and elections and, after long consideration, was approved Feb. 19 by a vote of 8 to 5. The republicans voting for the report were Dillingham, Bradley, Gamble, Heyburn and Sutherland, and the democrats supporting it were Johnston, Fletcher and Pomerene. Those who voted against the report were Clapp, Jones and Kenyon, republicans, and Kern and Lea, democrats.

The matter was taken up by the senate March 25, when a speech was made by Senator Reed of Missouri against Senator Stephenson's retention of his seat. The following day a resolution offered by Senator Jones of Washington declaring the seat vacant was defeated by a vote of 29 to 27. Many senators were paired and others were absent. March 27 the case came up for final disposition and the committee's resolution declaring Senator Stephenson to have been properly elected was passed by a vote of 40 to 34. The ballot was non-partisan, twelve democrats voting in favor of Mr. Stephenson and sixteen republicans against him. The vote was as follows:

BATTLE SHIP MAINE BURIED IN THE SEA.

The wreck of the battle ship Maine, sunk by an explosion in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, on the night of Feb. 15, 1898, was raised in 1911-1912 and was towed out to the open sea March 16, 1912, and sunk. The hulk was draped with roses, American flags and evergreen. Preceded by the cruisers Birmingham and North Carolina and followed by the vessels of the Cuban navy together with hundreds of smaller craft, making a line two miles long, the historic craft was pulled out into the gulf several miles from shore. A hollow square was formed by the escorting vessels and then Gen. William H. Bixby and Maj. H. B. Ferguson went aboard the hulk with a number of machinists and opened the sea doors in the hull. Ten minutes later the wreck sank to its last resting place in deep water and, after the firing of a national salute, the ceremony was ended. Previous to the sinking of the Maine funeral services for sixteen of the dead found in the wreckage were held in Havana. The bodies were conveyed to the United States on the cruiser North Carolina and, with fifty-eight others previously interred at Havana, were buried in Arlington cemetery near Washington, D. C., March 23, with national honors, President Taft making the principal address.

It was the opinion of the experts who examined the uncovered hull of the Maine in the latter part of 1911 that the vessel was sunk by an exterior explosion. The total number of lives lost by the disaster was 266.

RESIGNATION OF DR. HARVEY W. WILEY.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry in the agricultural department at Washington, D. C., resigned his office March 15, 1912, owing to long continued friction with Solicitor George P. McCabe and Dr. Frederick Dunlap, associate chemist, respecting the enforcement of the pure food law. Dr. Wiley claimed that the president and the secretary of agriculture should have relieved him from the supervision of these men, who had hampered him in the performance of his duties, with the result that one by one the fundamental principles of the pure food law had been paralyzed, that interests engaged in the manufacture of misbranded and adulterated foods and drugs had escaped punishment and that the activities of the bureau of chemistry had been restricted. Both President Taft and Secretary Wilson accepted the resignation with expressions of regret.

March 15, 1912—Closing arguments to jury begun.

March 25, 1912—Case goes to the jury.

March 26, 1912—Jury finds packers not guilty.

Jan. 25, 1910, Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of the United States District court in Chicago impaneled a grand jury to investigate the so-called "beef combine" among the meat packers. Witnesses were summoned and the inquiry continued until March 21, when an indictment was returned charging the National Packing company and ten of its subsidiary corporations with conspiracy in violation of the Sherman antitrust law. On the same date a bill in equity was filed by District Attorney Edwin W. Sims in the United States Circuit court, Chicago, against the National Packing company and subsidiary concerns and against its directors. It charged the packers with criminal conspiracy in fixing the prices of live stock and dressed meat and demanded the dissolution of the National Packing company and its allied concerns. It also asked that the individual defendants and their agents be prohibited from exercising any control over the corporations involved except such as might be necessary to wind up their affairs.

Upon a demurrer by counsel for the National Packing company and subsidiary concerns Judge Kenesaw M. Landis decided, June 23, that the indictment was invalid because it did not charge that during the last three years the defendants had been engaged in interstate commerce. He therefore sustained the demurrer, but at the same time ordered a special grand jury to make a new investigation. This was concluded Sept. 12, when the following ten packers were indicted as individuals: J. Ogden Armour, Louis F. Swift, Edward Morris, Edward Tilden, Arthur Meeker, Edward F. Swift, Charles H. Swift, Louis H. Heyman, Thomas J. Connors, Francis A. Fowler. Three indictments were returned against each defendant, reciting the violations of the Sherman antitrust law.

Counsel for the packers moved to quash the indictments in accordance with the immunity ruling of Judge Humphrey in 1906. This motion was overruled by Judge George A. Carpenter in the United States District court March 22, 1911, in a decision sustaining the indictments. On a demurrer that under the Sherman antitrust laws as they stand on the statute books the defendants could not be prosecuted criminally Judge Carpenter decided May 11 that this contention was invalid. He therefore overruled the demurrer.

Next the defendants asked for a rehearing and when their petition was denied requested a bill of particulars. This also was refused and the trial was set for Nov. 20. Five days before that time they surrendered and were released on a habeas corpus application writ to test the validity of the Sherman act. The application was heard by Judge C. C. Kohlsaat and denied. Thereupon the packers asked for a stay to appeal to the United States Supreme court to overrule Judge Kohlsaat's decision. They were given until Nov. 27 and the appeal was made, but the court declined to grant a stay and finally, Dec. 6, 1911, the case came to trial. The hearing continued through December, January and February to March 25, 1912, when the case went to the jury. Three ballots were taken. The first was eight to four for acquittal, the second ten to two for acquittal and the third was the verdict for acquittal.

The occupancy of positions as directors in the National Packing company by the leading officials of the three large companies formed the basis of the whole prosecution and one of the first results of the suit was the withdrawal from the National of all except Edward Tilden.

TREATY WITH RUSSIA ABROGATED.

By instructions which President Taft caused the secretary of state to transmit to the American ambassador at St. Petersburg Dec. 15, 1911, there was given to the Russian government under date of Dec. 17, 1911, official notification on behalf of this government of intention to terminate the operation of the treaty of commerce and navigation of Dec. 18, 1832, between the United States and Russia upon the expiration of the year beginning Jan. 1, 1912. The reason for the abrogation of the treaty was given in a note from the American ambassador to the Russian minister of foreign affairs as follows:

"Under instructions from my government and in pursuance of the conversations held by the secretary of state with the Russian ambassador at Washington, I have now the honor to give to the imperial Russian government, on behalf of the United States, the official notification contemplated by article 12 of the treaty of 1832, whereby the operation of the said treaty will terminate in accordance with its terms on Jan. 1, 1913. Your excellency will recall that pourparlers between the two governments during the last three years have fully recognized the fact that this ancient treaty, as is quite natural, is no longer fully responsive in various respects to the needs of the political and material relations of the two countries, which grow constantly more important. The treaty has also given rise, from time to time, to certain controversies equally regretted by both governments. In conveying the present formal notification to your excellency I am instructed to express the desire of my government, meanwhile, to renew the effort to negotiate a modern treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation upon bases more perfectly responsive to the interests of both governments. I am directed by the president, at the same time, to emphasize the great value attached by the government of the United States to the historic relations between the two countries, and the desire of my government to spare no effort to make the outcome of the proposed negotiations contribute still further to the strength and cordiality of these relations."

This action was communicated by President Taft to the senate Dec. 13, with a view to its ratification. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts thereupon introduced a resolution reciting the facts, substantially as in the official note above quoted, and ratifying the action taken by the president. The resolution was passed unanimously by the senate Dec. 19 and was accepted without opposition by the house, which on Dec. 13 had passed the so-called Sulzer resolution, charging Russia with having violated the treaty by refusing to honor American passports, duly issued to American citizens, on account of race and religion. The reference, of course, was to the fact that Russia had declined to recognize passports to persons of the Jewish race and religion. The Lodge resolution, which was couched in correct diplomatic language, was preferred by both houses and was signed by President Taft Dec. 21.

At a mass meeting of the nationalist party in St. Petersburg, Russia, Feb. 22, 1912, the abrogation of the treaty by the United States was denounced and resolutions were adopted for the total exclusion from Russia of Americans of Jewish faith and for tariff reprisals.

REICHSTAG ELECTIONS IN GERMANY.

Members of the German reichstag were elected Jan. 13, 1912, and in districts where the results were indecisive reballotings occurred Jan. 20 and 25. It was apparent from the start that there would be a swing toward socialism on account of dissatisfaction with the government's foreign policy and its failure to provide for franchise reform, but the extent of the movement was not generally realized until the returns from the last supplementary elections had been tabulated. It was then found that the socialists led all the other parties and groups in strength by a comfortable margin and that the old conservative-center alliance had been practically shorn of its power. The party alignment in the new reichstag, as the result of the elections, was as follows:

Socialists.....	110	Lorraines.....	2
Centrists.....	93	Guelphs.....	5
Conservatives.....	43	Danes.....	1
Free conservatives.....	14	Bavarian peasants.....	2
National liberals.....	45	German peasants.....	2
Radicals.....	41	Independent.....	3
Poles.....	18
Anti-Semites.....	13	Total.....	397
Alsations.....	5

Dr. Peter Spahn, leader of the clerical center party, was elected president of the reichstag Feb. 9 and Dr. Hermann S. Paasche, national liberal leader, second vice-president, but both resigned rather than serve with Phillip Scheidemann, socialist, who was elected first vice-president. Johannes Kaempf, radical deputy for central Berlin, was subsequently elected president and Heinrich Dove, also a radical, second vice-president.

FIRE IN OSAKA, JAPAN.

The city of Osaka, Japan, was visited by a great conflagration Jan. 16 and 17, 1912. Twenty persons were killed and 196 injured and 4,576 houses were destroyed, entailing a loss of about $13,000,000.

The fire began in the Namba Shichi quarter and, fanned by a strong wind, swept through the most densely populated part of the city. Nearly 19,000 persons were made homeless.

WHAT TRAVELERS MAY BRING TO AMERICA.

[Treasury department's "Notice to Passengers," March 14, 1911.]

Paragraph 709, appearing in the free list of the present tariff act, governing passengers' baggage, is as follows:

"Wearing apparel, articles of personal adornment, toilet articles and similar personal effects of persons arriving in the United States; but this exemption shall only include such articles as actually accompany and are in the use of, and as necessary and appropriate for the wear and use of such persons, for the immediate purposes of the journey and present comfort and convenience, and shall not be held to apply to merchandise or articles intended for other persons or for sale; provided, that in case of residents of the United States, returning from abroad, all wearing apparel and other personal effects taken by them out of the United States to foreign countries shall be admitted free of duty, without regard to their value, upon their identity being established, under appropriate rules and regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, but no more than $100 in value of articles purchased abroad by such residents of the United States shall be admitted free of duty upon their return."

RESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Residents of the United States must declare all articles which have been obtained abroad by purchase or otherwise, whether used or unused, and whether on their persons, in their clothing, or in their baggage. The foreign value of each article, stated in United States money, must also be declared.

Articles taken from the United States and remodeled, repaired or improved abroad must be declared and the cost of such remodeling, repairing or improving must be separately stated.

The following articles are dutiable:

Household effects, including books, pictures, furniture, tableware, table linen, bed linen and other similar articles, unless used abroad by the owner for a period of a year or more.

Goods in the piece.

Articles of any nature intended for sale or for other persons.

The following articles are free if under $100 in value and if necessary for comfort and convenience for the purposes of the journey and not for sale nor for other persons:

Clothing.

Toilet articles, such as combs, brushes, soaps, cosmetics, shaving and manicure sets, etc.

Personal adornments, jewelry, etc.

Similar personal effects, which may include cameras, canes, fishing tackle, glasses (field, opera, marine), golf sticks, guns, musical instruments, parasols, photographs, smokers' articles, steamer rugs and shawls, toys, trunks, valises, etc.

Clothing and other personal effects, taken out of the United States by the passenger if not increased in value or improved in condition while abroad. If increased in value or improved in condition, they are dutiable on the cost of the repairs.

The above lists of articles which are dutiable and nondutiable are stated for the assistance of passengers and are not exhaustive. All articles are dutiable unless specifically exempted by law.

Pack in one trunk, if practicable, all dutiable articles.

Reputed bills for foreign purchases should be presented whenever possible.

Use does not exempt from duty wearing apparel or other articles obtained abroad, but such articles will be appraised at their value in the condition as imported, due allowance being made for depreciation through wear and use.

NONRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Nonresidents of the United States are entitled to bring in free of duty, without regard to the $100 exemption, such articles as are in the nature of wearing apparel, articles of personal adornment, toilet articles and similar personal effects, necessary and appropriate for their wear and use for the purposes of the journey and present comfort and convenience and which are not intended for other persons or for sale.

Citizens of the United States or persons who have at any time resided in this country shall be deemed to be residents of the United States unless they shall have abandoned their residence in this country and acquired an actual bona fide residence in a foreign country.

Such citizens or former residents who desire the privileges granted by law to nonresidents must show to the satisfaction of the collector's representative on the pier, subject to the collector's approval, that they have given up their residence in the United States and that they have become bona fide residents of a foreign country.

The residence of a wife follows that of the husband, and the residence of a minor child follows that of its parents.

GOODS OTHER THAN PERSONAL EFFECTS.

Household effects of persons or families from foreign countries will be admitted free of duty only if actually used abroad by them not less than one year, and if not intended for any other person, nor for sale. Such effects should be declared whether the passenger be a resident or a nonresident of the United States.

Articles intended for use in business or for other persons, theatrical apparel, properties and scenery, must be declared by passengers, whether residents or nonresidents.

CIGARS AND CIGARETTES.

All cigars and cigarettes must be declared. Each passenger over 15 years of age may bring in free of duty 50 cigars or 500 cigarettes if for the bona fide use of such passenger. Such cigars and cigarettes will be in addition to the articles included within the $100 exemption.

BAGGAGE DECLARATIONS.

The law provides that every person entering the United States shall make a declaration and entry of his or her personal baggage. The law further requires that the values of articles shall be determined by customs officers, irrespective of the statements of passengers relative thereto.

It will thus be seen that there is no discourtesy in the requirement that both a declaration and an independent appraisal shall be made. Taken together, these requirements place the passenger in the same position as any other importer of merchandise.

Passengers should observe that on the sheet given them there are two forms of declarations; the one printed in black is for residents of the United States; the one in red, for nonresidents.

The exact number of pieces of baggage, including all trunks, valises, boxes, packages and hand bags, must be ascertained and accompanying the passenger must be stated in the declaration.

The senior member of a family, present as a passenger, may make declaration for the entire family.

Ladies traveling alone should state that fact in their declarations in order that an expeditious examination of their baggage may be made.

When the declaration is prepared and signed, the coupon at the bottom of the form must be detached and retained by the passenger, and the form given to the officer of the ship designated to receive the same. A declaration spoiled in its preparation must not be destroyed, but turned over to the purser, who will furnish a new blank to the passenger.

After all the baggage and effects of the passenger have been landed upon the pier, the coupon which has been retained by the passenger must be presented at the inspector's desk, whereupon an inspector will be detailed to examine the baggage. Passengers must acknowledge in person, on the pier, their signature to their declarations.

Examination of any baggage may be postponed if the passenger requests the officer taking his declaration to have it sent to the appraiser's store. Passengers must not deduct the $100 exemption in making out their declarations. Such deductions will be made by customs officers on the pier.

CONTESTED VALUATION.

Passengers dissatisfied with values placed upon dutiable articles by the customs officers on the pier may demand a re-examination, but application therefor should be immediately made to the officers there in charge. If for any reason this course is impracticable, the packages containing the articles should be left in customs custody and application for reappraisal made to the collector of customs, in writing, within ten days after the original appraisal. No request for reappraisal can be entertained after the articles have been removed from customs custody.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

Currency (or certified checks after June 1, 1911) only can be accepted in payment of duties, but, upon request, baggage may be retained on the piers for twenty-four hours to enable the owner to secure currency or certified checks.

The offering of gratuities or bribes to customs officers is a violation of law. Customs officers who accept gratuities or bribes will be dismissed from the service and all parties concerned will be liable to criminal prosecution.

Discourtesy or incivility on the part of customs officers should be reported to the collector at the custom house, to the deputy collector or the deputy surveyor at the pier, or to the secretary of the treasury.

BAGGAGE FOR TRANSPORTATION IN BOND.

Baggage intended for delivery at ports in the United States other than the port of arrival, or in transit through the United States to a foreign country, may be forwarded thereto without the assessment of duty at the port of arrival, by the various railroads and express companies, whose representatives will be found on the pier.

Passengers desiring to have their baggage forwarded in bond should indicate such intention and state the value thereof in their declarations before any examination of the baggage has been made.

SEALSKIN GARMENTS.

An act of congress of 1897, as amended in 1910, expressly forbids the importation into the United States of garments made in whole or in part of the skins of seals taken in the waters of the Pacific ocean; and unless the owner is able to establish by competent evidence and to the satisfaction of the collector that the garments are not prohibited, they cannot be admitted.

PENALTY FOR NOT DECLARING ARTICLES OBTAINED ABROAD.

Under sections 2802 and 3082 of the revised statutes of the United States articles obtained abroad and not declared are subject to seizure, and the passenger is liable to criminal prosecution.

STRIKE OF BRITISH COAL MINERS.

More than 800,000 coal miners in England, Wales and Scotland went on a strike March 1, 1912, which continued until the first week in April, involving heavy financial losses not only to the employers and men directly involved, but to thousands of others. The poor in the large centers of population, as well as in the mining districts, suffered severely because of the scarcity and high prices of provisions and the lack of employment. Many factories were compelled to shut down and the railroads, in order to save coal, cut their service to the lowest possible limit. March 4 it was announced that 2,223 freight and passenger trains had been discontinued and more were taken off later.

The strike was determined upon by the miners' federation in January and efforts were made by the government to bring about an agreement between the employers and the men then, but without avail. The miners demanded the establishment of a minimum scale of wages in each district, ranging all the way from 4 shillings 11 pence ($1.18) in Somersetshire and Bristol to 7 shillings 6 pence ($1.80) in Yorkshire, Nottinghamshire and South Wales. The employers refused to consider the proposition. Afterward the miners said they would accept a general minimum of 5 shillings ($1.20) for men and 2 shillings (48 cents) for boys. The government took the position that there were cases in which underground employees could not earn a minimum wage, from causes over which they had no control; that the power to earn such a wage should be secured by arrangements suitable to the special circumstances in each district, and announced that it was prepared to confer with the parties as to the best method of giving effect to this conclusion by means of district conferences between the parties, a representative appointed by the government being present.

The government's views were enacted into law March 25-26 when the so-called minimum wage bill was passed by the house of commons and house of lords. Labor and radical members brought strong pressure to bear to insert the 5 and 2 shilling minimum, but the government refused to sanction it. While the miners were not satisfied with the law their leaders advised them to accept it and they did so. By April 8 most of the collieries were in full operation. The sole result of the strike from the standpoint of the men was the recognition in law of the minimum wage principle.

No exact statistics are available to show the total amount of unemployment caused by the coal strike, but the following figures were given by the London Times as approximately correct March 22:

Miners on strike.....	849,800
Surface men locked out.....	203,700
In other industries.....	497,160

Total1,550,660
It was estimated that the strike occasioned the loss of $11,870,000 ($59,350,000) in wages alone.

Sympathetic strikes were attempted by the coal miners of Germany and France, but these proved unsuccessful. In the Westphalian coal field some 175,000 men went out March 11, but as an equal number remained at work the demonstration proved a fizzle. Military preparations to preserve order and guard the mines had much to do with the result, according to general reports.

METHODIST GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The twenty-fifth quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was held in Minneapolis, Minn., May 1 to May 29, 1912. Much important business was transacted, including the election of eight bishops, two missionary bishops, editors of church publications, general superintendents, secretaries of the principal church organizations and publishing agents. It retired to the superannuate relation Bishops Warren, Moore and Neely, and accepted the resignation of Missionary Bishop William F. Oldham, that he might take the post of secretary of the foreign missionary society. The conference fixed an age limit for the retirement of bishops, the new rule to go into effect at the conference in 1916. The general conference may retire a bishop at any time and for any sufficient cause, but he must retire at the conference nearest his 73d birthday anniversary. The arrangement is such that a bishop may not reach the age limit until he is 75 or he may reach it when he is only 71. A bishop may be retired at the age of 70 if he gives notice of his desire to do so.

The bishops elected were Homer C. Stuntz, Theodore S. Henderson, William O. Shepard, Naphtali Luccock, Francis J. McConnell, Frederick DeLand Leete, Richard Joseph Cooke, Wilbur P. Thirkield, John W. Robinson and William P. Eveland. The conference refused to rescind or change the disciplinary paragraph on dancing and other worldly amusements and it adopted a resolution that no man should be elected to a conference office who used tobacco in any form. It provided for the observance of the sesquicentennial of American methodism and ordered that the second Sunday in May of each year be observed as "Mothers' day."

The conference created episcopal residences at Kansas City, Kas., Atlanta, Ga., and Helena, Mont.

COPYRIGHT LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Approved March 4, 1909.

The act to amend and consolidate the acts respecting copyright, in force July 1, 1909, provides that any person entitled thereto, upon complying with the provisions of the law, shall have the exclusive right (a) to print, reprint, publish, copy and vend the copyrighted work; (b) to translate the copyrighted work or make any other version of it if it be a literary work; to dramatize it if it be a nondramatic work; to convert it into a novel or other nondramatic work if it be a drama; to arrange or adapt it if it be a musical work; to finish it if it be a model or design for a work of art; (c) to deliver or authorize the delivery of the copyrighted work if it be a lecture, sermon, address or similar production; (d) to perform the copyrighted work publicly if it be a drama or, if it be a dramatic work and not reproduced in copies for sale, to vend the manuscript or any record thereof; to make or to procure the making of any transcription or record thereof by which it may in any manner be exhibited, performed or produced, and to exhibit, perform or produce it in any manner whatsoever; (e) to perform the copyrighted work publicly for profit if it be a musical composition and for the purpose of public performance for profit and to make any arrangement or setting of it in any system of notation or any form of record in which the thought of an author may be read or reproduced.

So far as it secures copyright controlling the parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work the law includes only compositions published after the act went into effect; it does not include the works of a foreign author or composer unless the country of which he is a citizen or subject grants similar rights to American citizens. Whenever the owner of a musical copyright has used or permitted the use of the copyrighted work upon the part of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work, any other person may make a similar use of the work upon the payment to the owner of a royalty of 2 cents on each such part manufactured. The reproduction or rendition of a musical composition by or upon coin-operated machines shall not be deemed a public performance for profit unless a fee is charged for admission to the place where the reproduction occurs.

The works for which copyright may be secured include all the writings of an author.

The application for registration shall specify to which of the following classes the work in which copyright is claimed belongs:

- (a) Books, including composite and cyclopedic works, directories, gazetteers and other compilations.
- (b) Periodicals, including newspapers.
- (c) Lectures, sermons, addresses, prepared for oral delivery.
- (d) Dramatic or dramatic-musical compositions.
- (e) Musical compositions.
- (f) Maps.
- (g) Works of art; models or designs for works of art.

(h) Reproductions of a work of art.

(i) Drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character.

- (j) Photographs.
- (k) Prints and pictorial illustrations.

These specifications do not, however, limit the subject matter of copyright as defined in the law nor does any error in classification invalidate the copyright protection secured.

Copyright extends to the work of a foreign author or proprietor only in case he is domiciled in the United States at the time of the first publication of his work or if the country of which he is a citizen grants similar copyright protection to citizens of the United States.

Any person entitled thereto by the law may secure copyright for his work by publication thereof with the notice of copyright required by the act, and such notice shall be affixed to each copy published or offered for sale in the United States. Such person may obtain registration of his claim to copyright by complying with the provisions of the act, including the deposit of copies, whereupon the register of copyrights shall issue to him a certificate as provided for in the law. Copyright may also be had of the works of an author of which copies are not reproduced for sale by the deposit with claim of copyright of one complete copy, if it be a lecture or similar production, or a dramatic or musical composition; of a photographic print if it be a photograph, or of a photograph or other identifying reproduction thereof if it be a work of art or a plastic work or drawing.

After copyright has been secured there must be deposited in the copyright office in Washington, D. C., two complete copies of the best edition thereof, which copies, if the work be a book or periodical, shall have been produced in accordance with the manufacturing provisions of the act, or if such work be a contribution to a periodical for which contribution special registration is requested, one copy of the issue or issues containing such contribution. Failure to deposit the copies within a given time after notice from the register of copyrights makes the proprietor of the copyright liable to a fine of $100 and twice the retail price of the work, and the copyright becomes void.

The text of all books and periodicals specified in paragraphs (a) and (b) above, except the original text of a book of foreign origin in a language other than English, must in order to secure protection be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, either by hand, machinery, or other process, and the printing of the text and the binding of the books must also be done within the United States. An affidavit of such manufacture is required.

The notice of copyright required consists either of the word "copyright" or the abbreviation "copr.," accompanied by the name of the copyright proprietor, and if the work be a printed literary, musical or dramatic work, the notice must also include the year in which the copyright was secured by publication. In the case, however, of copies of works specified in paragraphs (f) to (k) inclusive (given above) the notice may consist of the letter C inclosed within a circle, accompanied by the initials, monogram, mark or symbol of the copyright proprietor, provided his name appears elsewhere on the copies. In the case of a book or other printed publication the notice shall be applied on the title page or on the page immediately following, or if a periodical either upon the title page or upon the first page of text of each separate number or under the title heading; or, in the case of musical work upon its title page or the first page of music.

Where the copyright proprietor has sought to comply with the law with respect to notice, the omission of such notice by mistake from a particular copy or copies shall not invalidate the copyright or prevent recovery for infringement against any person who, after actual notice of the copyright, begins an undertaking to infringe it, but shall prevent the recovery of damages against an innocent infringer who has been misled by the omission of the notice.

In the case of a book in English published abroad before publication in this country, the deposit in the copyright office within thirty days of one copy of the foreign edition, with a request for the reservation of the copyright, secures for the author or owner an ad interim copyright for thirty days after such deposit is made.

The copyright secured by the act endures for twenty-eight years from the date of the first publication. In the case of any posthumous work, periodical, encyclopedic or other composite work upon which the copyright was originally secured by the proprietor thereof, or of any work copyrighted by a corporate body, or by an employer for whom such work is made for hire, the proprietor of such copyright shall be entitled to a renewal of the copyright in such work for the further term of twenty-eight years when application for such renewal shall have been made within one year prior to the expiration of the original term. In the case of any other copyrighted work, including a contribution by an individual author to a periodical or to a cyclopedic or other composite work, when such contribution has been separately copyrighted, the author of such work, if living, or the heirs, executors or next of kin, if the author be dead, shall be entitled to a renewal of the copyright for a further term of twenty-eight years. In default of such application for renewal the copyright in any work shall end at the expiration of twenty-eight years.

If any person shall infringe the copyright in any work protected under the copyright laws of the United States, such person shall be liable:

(a) To an injunction restraining such infringement.

(b) To pay to the copyright proprietor such damages as the copyright proprietor may have suffered due to the infringement, as well as all the profits which the infringer shall have made from such infringement, and in proving profits the plaintiff shall be required to prove sales only and the defendant shall be required to prove every element of cost which he claims, or in lieu of actual damages or profits such damages as to the court shall appear to be just, and an assessor of damages the court may, in its discretion, allow the amounts as hereinafter stated (in numbered paragraphs), but in the case of a newspaper reproduction of a copyrighted photograph such damages shall not exceed the sum of $200 nor be less than $50, and such damages shall in no other case exceed the sum of $250 and shall not be regarded as a penalty:

1. In the case of a painting, statue or sculpture, $10 for every infringing copy made or sold by or found in the possession of the infringer or his agents or employees;

Any person who shall willfully and for profit infringe any copyright, or willfully aid or abet such infringement, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not exceeding one year or by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or both, in the discretion of the court. It is provided, however, that nothing in the act shall prevent the performance of religious or secular works, such as oratorios, cantatas, masses or octavo choruses by public schools, church choirs or vocal societies, provided the performance is for charitable or educational purposes and not for profit.

Any person who shall fraudulently place a copyright notice upon any uncopyrighted article, or shall fraudulently remove or alter the notice upon any copyrighted article, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000. Any person who shall knowingly sell or issue any article bearing a notice of United States copyright which has not been copyrighted in this country, or who shall knowingly import any article bearing such notice, shall be liable to a fine of $100.

(d) To any book published abroad with the authorization of the author or copyright proprietor under the following circumstances:

2. When imported by or for the use of the United States;

3. When imported, for use and not for sale, not more than one copy of any such book in any one invoice, in good faith, by or for any society or institution incorporated for educational, literary, philosophical, scientific or religious purposes, or for the encouragement of the fine arts, or for any college, academy school or seminary of learning, or for any state school, college, university or free public library in the United States;

4. When such books form parts of libraries or collections purchased en bloc for the use of societies, institutions or libraries, or form parts of the library or personal baggage belonging to persons or families arriving from foreign countries and are not intended for sale.

No criminal actions shall be maintained under the copyright law unless the same be begun within three years after the cause of action arose.

Copyright may be assigned, mortgaged or bequeathed by will.

There shall be appointed by the librarian of congress a register of copyrights at a salary of $4,000 a year and an assistant register at $3,000 a year.

These with their subordinate assistants shall perform all the duties relating to the registration of copyrights. The register of copyrights shall keep such record books in the copyright office as are required to carry out the provisions of the law, and whenever desired has been made in the copyright office of a copy of any work under the provisions of the act he shall make entry thereof.

In the case of each entry the person recorded as the claimant of the copyright shall be entitled to a certificate of registration under seal of the copyright office.

The register of copyrights shall receive and the persons to whom the services designated are rendered shall pay the following fees: For the registration of any work subject to copyright, $1, which sum is to include a certificate of registration under seal: provided that in the case of photographs the fee shall be 50 cents where a certificate is not demanded. For any requested search of copyright office records, indexes or deposits, 50 cents for each full hour consumed in making such search. Only one registration at one fee shall be required in the case of several volumes of the same book deposited at the same time.

APPLICATIONS FOR PATENTS.

[Condensed from Rules of Practice

A patent may be obtained by any person who has invented or discovered any new and useful art, machine, manufacture or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof not previously patented or described in this or any other country, for more than two years prior to his application, unless the same is proved to have been abandoned. A patent may also be obtained for any new design for a manufacture, bust, statue, alto-relievo or bas-relief; for the printing of wooden, silk or other fabrics; for any new impression, ornament, pattern, print or picture to be placed on or woven into any article of manufacture; and for any new, useful and original shape or configuration of any article of manufacture, upon payment of fees and taking the other necessary steps.

Applications for patents must be in writing, in the English language and signed by the inventor if alive. The application must include the first fee of $15, a petition, specification and oath, and drawings, model or specimen when required. The petition must be addressed to the commissioner of patents and must give the name and full address of the applicant, must designate by title the invention sought to be patented, must contain a reference to the specification for a full disclosure of such invention and must be signed by the applicant.

The specification must contain the following in the order named: Name and residence of the applicant with title of invention; a general statement of the object and nature of the invention; a brief description of the several views of the drawings of the invention and a full and complete illustration; a detailed description; claim or claims; signature of inventor and signatures of two witnesses. Claims for a machine and its product and claims for a machine and the process in the performance of which the machine is used must be presented in separate applications, but claims for a process and its product may be presented in the same application.

The applicant, if the inventor, must make oath or affirmation that he believes himself to be the first inventor or discoverer of that which he seeks to have patented. The oath or affirmation must also state of what country he is a citizen and where he resides. In every original application the applicant must swear or affirm that the invention has not been patented to himself or to others with his knowledge or consent in this or any foreign country for more than two years prior to his application, or on an application for a patent filed in any foreign country by himself or his legal representatives or assigns more than seven months prior to his application. If application has been made in any foreign country, full and explicit details must be given. The oath or affirmation may be made before any one who is authorized by the laws of his country to administer oaths.

Drawings must be on white paper with India ink and the sheets must be exactly 10x15 inches in size, with a margin of one inch. They must show all details clearly and without the use of superfluous lines.

Applications for reissues must state why the original patent is believed to be defective and tell precisely how the errors were made. These applications must be accompanied by the original patent and an offer to surrender the same; or, if the original be lost, by an affidavit to that effect and certified copy of the patent. Every applicant whose claims have been twice rejected for the same reasons may appeal from the primary examiners to the examiners in chief upon the payment of a fee of $10.

The duration of patents is for seventeen years except in the case of design patents, which may be for three and a half, seven or fourteen years, as the inventor may elect.

Caveats or notices given to the patent office of claims to inventions to prevent the issue of patents to other persons upon the same invention, without notice to caveaters, may be filed upon the payment of a fee of $10. Caveats must contain the same information as applications for patents.

REGISTRATION OF TRADE-MARKS.

Under the law passed by congress Feb. 20, 1905, and effective April 1, 1905, citizens of the United States, or foreigners living in countries affording similar privileges to citizens of the United States, may obtain registration of trade-marks used in commerce with foreign nations, or among the several states, or with Indian tribes, by complying with the following requirements: First, filing in the patent office an application therefor. In writing, addressed to the commissioner of patents, signed by the applicant, specifying his name, domicile, location and citizenship; the class of merchandise and the particular description of goods comprised in such class to which the trade-mark is appropriated; a statement of the mode in which the same is applied and affixed to goods, and the length of time during which the trade-mark has been used. With this statement shall be filed a drawing of the trade-mark, signed by the applicant or his attorney, and such number of specimens of the trade-mark as may be required by the commissioner of patents. Second, by paying into the treasury of the United States the sum of $10 and otherwise complying with the requirements of the law and such regulations as may be prescribed by the commissioner of patents.

The application must be accompanied by a written declaration to the effect that the applicant believes himself to be the owner of the trade-mark sought to be registered and that no other person or corporation has the right to use it; that such trade-mark is in use and that the description and drawing presented are correct. Trade-marks consisting of or comprising immoral or scandalous matter, the coat of arms, flag or other insignia of the United States or of any state or foreign nation cannot be registered. Fees for renewal of trade-marks and for filing opposition to registration are $10 each; for appeals from examiners to the commissioner of patents, $15 each.

Further information may be had by applying to the commissioner of patents, Washington, D. C.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE.

Civil-service act approved Jan. 16, 1883.

Officers—Three commissioners are appointed by the president to assist him in classifying the government offices and positions, formulating rules and enforcing the law. Their office is in Washington, D. C. The chief examiner is appointed by the commissioners to secure accuracy, uniformity and justice in the proceedings of the examining boards. The secretary to the commission is appointed by the president.

General Rules—The fundamental rules governing appointments to government positions are found in the civil-service act itself. Based upon these are many other regulations formulated by the commission and promulgated by the president from time to time as new contingencies arise. The present rules were approved March 20, 1903, and went into effect April 15, 1903. In a general way they require that there must be free, open examinations of applicants for positions in the public service; that appointments shall be made from those graded highest in the examinations; that appointments to the service in Washington shall be appointed among the states and territories according to population; that there shall be a period (six months) of probation before any absolute appointment is made; that no person in the public service is for that reason obliged to contribute to any political fund or is subject to dismissal for refusing to so contribute; that no person in the public service has any right to use his official authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person. Applicants for positions shall not be questioned as to their political or religious beliefs and no discrimination shall be exercised against or in favor of any applicant or employee on account of his religion or politics. The classified civil service shall include all officers and employees in the executive civil service of the United States except laborers and persons whose appointments are subject to confirmation by the senate.

Examinations—These are conducted by boards of examiners chosen from among persons in government employ and are held twice a year in all the states and territories at convenient places. In Illinois, for example, they are usually held at Cairo, Chicago and Peoria. The dates are announced through the newspapers or by other means. They can always be learned by applying to the commission or to the nearest postoffice or custom house. Those who desire to take examinations are advised to write to the commission in Washington for the "Manual of Examinations," which is sent free to all applicants. It is revised semiannually to Jan. 1 and July 1. The January edition contains a schedule of the spring examinations and the July edition contains a schedule of the fall examinations. Full information is given as to the methods and rules governing examinations, manner of making application, qualifications required, regulations for rating examination papers, certification for and chances of appointment, and as far as possible it outlines the scope of the different subjects of general and technical examinations. These are practical in character and are designed to test the relative capacity and fitness to discharge the duties to be performed. It is necessary to obtain an average percentage of 70 to be eligible for appointment, except that applicants entitled to preference because of honorable discharge from the military or naval service for disability resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty may obtain but 65 per cent. The period of eligibility is one year.

Qualifications of Applicants—No person will be examined who is not a citizen of the United States; who is not within the age limitations prescribed; who is physically disqualified for the service which he seeks; who has been guilty of criminal, infamous, dishonest or disgraceful conduct; who has been dismissed from the public service for delinquency and misconduct or has failed to receive absolute appointment after probation; who is addicted to the habitual use of intoxicating liquors to excess, or who has made a false statement in his application. The age limitations in the more important branches of the public service are: Postoffice, 18 to 45 years; rural letter carriers, 17 to 55; internal revenue, 21 years and over; railway mail, 18 to 35; lighthouse, 18 to 50; life saving, 18 to 45; general departmental, 20 and over. These age limitations are subject to change by the commission. They do not apply to applicants of the preferred class. Applicants for the position of railway mail clerk must be at least 5 feet 6 inches in height, exclusive of boots or shoes, and weigh not less than 135 pounds in ordinary clothing and have no physical defects. Applicants for certain other positions have to come up to similar physical requirements.

Method of Appointment—Whenever a vacancy exists the appointing officer makes requisition upon the civil-service commission for a certification of names to fill the vacancy, specifying the kind of position vacant, the sex desired and the salary. The commission thereupon takes from the proper register of eligibles the names of three persons standing highest of the sex called for and certifies them to the appointing officer, who is required to make the selection. He may choose any one of the three names, returning the other two to the register to await further certification. The time of examination is not considered, as the highest in average percentage on the register must be certified first. If after a probationary period of six months the name of the appointee is continued on the roll of the department in which he serves the appointment is considered absolute.

Removals—No person can be removed from a competitive position except for such cause as will promote the efficiency of the public service and for reasons given in writing. No examination of witnesses nor any trial shall be required except in the discretion of the officer making the removal.

Salaries—Entrance to the department service is usually in the lowest grades, the higher grades being generally filled by promotion. The usual entrance grade is about $900, but the applicant may be appointed at $840, $760 or even $600.

THE SHERMAN ANTITRUST LAW.

Passed by the 51st congress and approved July 2, 1890.

Section 1. Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations is hereby declared to be illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 2. Every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3. Every contract, combination in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce in any territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia, or in restraint of trade or commerce between any such territory and another, or between any such territory or territories and any state or states or the District of Columbia or with foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia and any state or states or foreign nations, is hereby declared illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 4. The several Circuit courts of the United States are hereby invested with jurisdiction to prevent or restrain violations of this act; and it shall be the duty of the several district attorneys of the United States, in their respective districts, under the direction of the attorney-general, to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain such violations. Such proceedings may be by way of petition setting forth the case and praying that such violation shall be enjoined or otherwise prohibited. When the parties complained of shall have been duly notified of such petition the court shall proceed, as soon as may be, to the hearing and determination of the case; and pending such petition and before final decree the court may at any time make such temporary restraining order or prohibition as shall be deemed just in the premises.

Sec. 5. Whenever it shall appear to the court before which any proceeding under section 4 of this act may be pending that the ends of justice require that other parties should be brought before the court, the court may cause them to be summoned, whether they reside in the district in which the court is held or not; and subpoenas to that end may be served in any district by the marshal thereof.

Sec. 6. Any property owned under any contract or by any combination or pursuant to any conspiracy (and being the subject thereof) mentioned in section 1 of this act and being in the course of transportation from one state to another or to a foreign country shall be forfeited to the United States and may be seized and condemned by like proceedings as those provided by law for the forfeiture, seizure and condemnation of property imported into the United States contrary to law.

Sec. 7. Any person who shall be injured in his business or property by any other person or corporation by reason of anything forbidden or declared unlawful by this act may sue therefor in any Circuit court of the United States in the district in which the defendant resides or is found, without respect to the amount in controversy, and shall recover threefold the damages by him sustained and the cost of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

Sec. 8. That the word "person" or "persons" wherever used in this act be deemed to include corporations and associations existing under or authorized by the laws of either the United States, the laws of any of the territories, the laws of any state or the laws of any foreign country.

FOUNDATION FOR THE PROMOTION OF INDUSTRIAL PEACE.

Established in 1907.

In 1906 President Theodore Roosevelt was awarded the Alfred B. Nobel peace prize and at his suggestion an act was passed by congress March 2, 1907, establishing the Foundation for the Promotion of Industrial Peace. To this organization he turned over the money received from the Nobel committee to be used as the nucleus of a fund the income of which is to be used in promoting an annual conference in Washington between representatives of capital and of labor with a view to bringing about a better understanding between employers and employes, thus promoting industrial peace. The chief justice of the United States Supreme court, the secretary of agriculture and the secretary of commerce and labor, and their successors in office, and four persons appointed by the president of the United States to represent capital, labor and the general public, are the trustees. The trustees are authorized to pay over the funds from time to time to a committee of nine members, known as "the industrial peace committee," whose duty it is to make arrangements for the conferences.

THE SAGE FOUNDATION.

March 12, 1907, Mrs. Russell Sage of New York announced that she had set aside the sum of $10,000,000 to be known as the Sage Foundation and to be devoted to the improvement of the social and living conditions in the United States. As trustees she appointed Robert W. DeForest, Cleveland H. Dodge, Daniel C. Gilman, John M. Glenn, Miss Helen Gould, Mrs. William B. Rice and Miss Louise L. Schuyler.

Following is a part of the statement given out by Mrs. Sage as to the object of the gift: "I have set aside $10,000,000 for the endowment of this foundation. Its object is the improvement of social and living conditions in the United States. The means to that end will include research, publication, education, the establishment and maintenance of charitable and beneficial activities, agencies and institutions and the aid of any such activities, agencies and institutions already established."

APPORTIONMENT OF REPRESENTATIVES.

[From census bureau report.]

The apportionment of representatives in congress, under the first six censuses—1790 to 1840, inclusive—was made by congress, each by a separate act. The law for taking the census of 1850, which was intended to be permanent, presented a rule of apportionment, fixed the number of members of the house at 233 and directed the secretary of the interior thereafter to make the apportionment. The apportionment of 1860 was also made under this law, but congress, on March 4, 1862, fixed the total number of representatives at 241, and the secretary of the interior apportioned the new quotas to the states. The apportionments from and after the census of 1870 were made by congress, each by a separate act, hence it may be assumed that the power conferred on the secretary of the interior by the act of May 23, 1850, was repealed by implication. The following shows the dates of the apportionment acts and the ratio of population to each representative:

DEATH OF KING FREDERICK VIII.

King Frederick VIII. of Denmark died in Hamburg, Germany, May 14, 1912. He was on his way home from a trip to the south of Europe, where he had been convalescing from an attack of inflammation of the lungs. With the queen and the royal suite he took quarters at the Hamburgerhof hotel and in the evening about 10 o'clock went out unattended for a stroll. He had gone but a short distance when he was overcome by a stroke of apoplexy and, not being recognized, was taken to the nearest hospital, where the physicians found that death had been instantaneous. It was late at night before he was missed by his attendants and a search made for him, which resulted in the discovery of his dead body in the hospital. He was born June 3, 1843, and ascended the throne of Denmark Jan. 29, 1906. He was succeeded by Crown Prince Christian, who took the title of Christian X.

CITIZENSHIP IN THE UNITED STATES.

All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. (Fourteenth amendment to the constitution.)

All persons born in the United States and not subject to any foreign power, excluding Indians not taxed, are declared to be citizens of the United States. (Sec. 1992, U. S. Revised Statutes.)

All children heretofore born or hereafter born out of the limits and jurisdiction of the United States, whose fathers were or may be, at the time of their birth, citizens thereof, are declared to be citizens of the United States; but the rights of citizenship shall not descend to children whose fathers never resided in the United States. (Sec. 1993, U. S. Revised Statutes.)

Any woman who is now or may hereafter be married to a citizen of the United States and who might herself be lawfully naturalized shall be deemed a citizen. (Sec. 1995, U. S. Revised Statutes.)

Children born in the United States of alien parents are citizens of the United States.

When any alien who has formally declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States dies before he is actually naturalized the widow and children of such alien are citizens.

Children of Chinese parents who are themselves aliens and incapable of becoming naturalized are citizens of the United States.

Children born in the United States of persons engaged in the diplomatic service of foreign governments are not citizens of the United States.

Children born of alien parents on a vessel of a foreign country while within the waters of the United States are not citizens of the United States, but of the country to which the vessel belongs.

Children born of alien parents in the United States have the right to make an election of nationality when they reach their majority.

Minors and children are citizens within the meaning of the term as used in the constitution.

Deserters from the military or naval service of the United States are liable to loss of citizenship.

Any alien being a free white person, an alien of African nativity or of African descent may become an American citizen by complying with the naturalization laws.

"Hereafter no state court or court of the United States shall admit Chinese to citizenship; and all laws in conflict with this act are repealed." (Sec. 14, act of May 6, 1882.)

The courts have held that neither Chinese, Japanese, Hawaiians, Burmese nor Indians can be naturalized.

The naturalization laws apply to women as well as men. An alien woman who marries a citizen, native or naturalized, becomes a naturalized citizen of the United States.

Aliens may become citizens of the United States by treaties with foreign powers, by conquest or by special acts of congress.

In an act approved March 2, 1907, it is provided that any American citizen shall have expatriated himself when he has been naturalized in any foreign state in conformity with its laws, or when he has taken an oath of allegiance to any foreign state.

When any naturalized citizen shall have resided for two years in the foreign state from which he came, or five years in any other foreign state, it shall be presumed that he has ceased to be an American citizen, and the place of his general abode shall be deemed his place of residence during said years; provided, however, that such presumption may be overcome on the presentation of satisfactory evidence to a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States under such rules and regulations as the department of state may prescribe; and, provided also, that no American citizen shall be allowed to expatriate himself when this country is at war.

Any American woman who marries a foreigner shall take the nationality of her husband. At the termination of the marital relation she may resume her American citizenship, if abroad, by registering as an American citizen within one year with a consul of the United States, or by returning to reside in the United States, or, if residing in the United States at the termination of the marital relation, by continuing to reside therein.

Any foreign woman who acquires American citizenship by marriage to an American citizen shall be assumed to retain the same after the termination of the marital relation if she continue to reside in the United States, unless she makes formal renunciation thereof before a court having jurisdiction to naturalize aliens, or, if she resides abroad, she may retain her citizenship by registering as such before a United States consul within one year after the termination of such marital relation.

A child born without the United States, of alien parents, shall be deemed a citizen of the United States by virtue of the naturalization of or resumption of American citizenship of the parent; provided that such naturalization or resumption takes place during the minority of such child; and, provided further, that the citizenship of such minor child shall begin at the time such minor child begins to reside permanently in the United States.

All children born outside the limits of the United States, who are citizens thereof in accordance with the provisions of section 1993 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (see above), and who continue to reside outside of the United States, shall, in order to receive the protection of the government, be required, upon reaching the age of 18 years, to record at an American consulate their intention to become residents and remain citizens of the United States and shall further be required to take the oath of allegiance to the United States upon attaining their majority.

NATURALIZATION LAWS.

Approved June 29, 1906.

Exclusive jurisdiction to naturalize aliens resident in their districts is conferred upon the United States Circuit and District courts and all courts of record having a seal, a clerk and jurisdiction in actions in law or equity or both in which the amount in controversy is unlimited.

An alien may be admitted to citizenship in the following manner and not otherwise:

1. He shall declare on oath before the clerk of the proper court at least two years before his admission, and after he has reached the age of 18 years, that it is bona fide his intention to become a citizen of the United States and to renounce allegiance to any foreign state or sovereignty.

Such declaration shall set forth the same facts as are registered at the time of his arrival.

2. Not less than two years nor more than seven after he has made such declaration he shall file a petition, signed by himself and verified, in which he shall state his name, place of residence, occupation, date and place of birth, place from which he emigrated, name of the vessel on which he arrived; the time when and the place and name of the court where he declared his intention of becoming a citizen; if he is married, he shall state the name of his wife, the country of her nativity and her place of residence at the time the petition is filed, and if he has children, the name, date and place of birth and place of residence of each child living. The petition shall also set forth that he is not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized government or a member of any body of persons opposed to organized government, and that he is not a polygamist or a believer in polygamy; that he intends to become a citizen of and to live permanently in the United States, and every other fact material to his naturalization and required to be proved upon the final hearing of his application. The petition shall be verified by the affidavit of at least two credible witnesses who are citizens. At the time of the filing of the petition there shall be also filed a certificate from the department of commerce and labor stating the date, place and manner of his arrival in the United States and the declaration of intention of such petitioner, which certificate and declaration shall be attached to and be a part of his petition.

3. He shall, before he is admitted to citizenship, declare on oath in open court that he will support the constitution of the United States, and that he absolutely renounces all allegiance to any foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty.

4. It shall be made apparent to the satisfaction of the court admitting any alien to citizenship that immediately preceding the date of his application he has resided continuously within the United States five years at least, and within the state or territory where such court is at the time held one year at least, and that during that time he has behaved as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the constitution. In addition to the oath of the applicant, the testimony of at least two witnesses, citizens of the United States, as to the facts of residence, moral character and attachment to the principles of the constitution shall be required.

5. He must renounce any hereditary title or order of nobility which he may possess.

6. When any alien, who has declared his intention, dies before he is actually naturalized the widow and minor children may, by complying with the other provisions of the act, be naturalized without making any declaration of intention.

Immediately after the filing of the petition the clerk of the court shall give notice thereof by posting in a public place the name, name and residence of the alien, the date and place of his arrival in the United States and the date for the final hearing of his petition and the names of the witnesses whom the applicant expects to summon in his behalf. Petitions for naturalization may be filed at any time, but final action thereon shall be had only on stated days and in no case until at least ninety days have elapsed after the filing of the petition. No person shall be naturalized within thirty days preceding a general election within the territorial jurisdiction of the court.

No person who is a disbeliever in or who is opposed to organized government, or who is a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching such disbelief in or opposition to organized government, or who advocates or teaches the duty, necessity or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers of the government of the United States, or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character, or who is a polygamist, shall be naturalized.

No alien shall hereafter be naturalized or admitted as a citizen of the United States who cannot speak the English language. This requirement does not apply to those physically unable to comply with it; or to those making homestead entries upon the public lands of the United States.

UNITED STATES PASSPORT REGULATIONS.

Passports are issued to citizens of the United States upon application to the state department in Washington. The application must be accompanied by an affidavit, attested by a notary public or other officer empowered to administer oaths, stating that the applicant is a citizen and giving the place of birth and age, and it must be accompanied by the certificate of one other citizen to whom he is personally known that the declaration made by the applicant is true. The application must also be accompanied by a description of the person, particularly as to age, height, complexion, forehead, eyes, nose, mouth, chin, hair and face.

Blank forms are furnished by the state department upon application. The fee for each passport is $1. Citizens traveling abroad may also in some cases obtain passports by applying to United States ambassadors and ministers. Where any person has made a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States and has resided in the United States for three years a passport valid for six months may be issued to him. This passport is not renewable and does not entitle the holder to the protection of this government in the country of which he was originally a citizen.

RAILROAD WRECK AT WESTERN SPRINGS, ILL.

Thirteen persons were killed and nearly a score injured in a train collision on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad at Western Springs, Ill., July 14, 1912. The Overland limited was standing on the track, having been halted by a hot box, when the fast mail, running sixty or seventy miles an hour, crashed into the rear sleeper and demolished it, killing or injuring its occupants. A heavy fog prevailed at the time and the engineer of the mail train failed to see the semaphore signal which was set against him. He was killed at his post and his fireman was badly injured.

DECLARATION OF LONDON ON LAWS OF NAVAL WAR.

What is popularly known as the "Declaration of London" is the agreement entered into Feb. 26, 1909, at a naval conference closing on that date in London, England, between representatives of the following powers: Germany, United States, Austria-Hungary, Spain, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands and Russia. The conference was held at the invitation of Great Britain in order to arrive at an agreement as to what are the generally recognized rules of international law within the meaning of article 7 of the convention of Oct. 18, 1907 (at The Hague) relative to the establishment of an international prize court. The agreement contains nine chapters and seventy-one articles, embodying what the signatory powers declare to correspond in substance with the generally recognized principles of international law. The subjects of the chapters are as follows: Chapter I, blockade in time of war; chapter II, contraband of war; chapter III, unneutral service; chapter IV, destruction of neutral prizes; chapter V, transfer to a neutral flag; chapter VI, enemy character; chapter VII, convoy; chapter VIII, resistance to search; chapter IX, compensation.

The signatory powers undertake to insure the mutual observance of the rules contained in the present declaration in any war in which all the belligerents are parties thereto. Ratifications are to be deposited in London. Powers not represented at the naval conference were requested to accede to the declaration of London, those doing so being placed on the same footing as the signatory powers.

SUGGESTIONS—Direct your mail matter to a post-office, writing the name of the state plainly, and if to a city add the street and number or postoffice box of the person addressed. Write or print your name and address, and the contents, if a package, upon the upper lefthand corner of all mail matter. This will insure the immediate return of all first-class matter to you for correction, if improperly addressed or insufficiently paid; and if it is not called for at destination it can be returned to you without going to the dead letter office. If a letter, it will be returned free. Undelivered second, third and fourth class matter will not be forwarded or returned without a new prepayment of postage. When a return card appears on this matter either the sender or addressee is requested to send the postage. Register all valuable letters and packages.

WEIGHTS OF DIAMONDS AND FINENESS OF GOLD.

The weight of diamonds and other precious stones is expressed in carats, grains and quarter grains. The grains are pearl grains, one of which is equal to four-fifths of a troy grain. Four quarter-grains make one grain and four grains make one carat. A carat is therefore equal to four-fifths of a troy grain, or 3.2.

The fineness of gold is also expressed in carats. Pure gold is said to be twenty-four carats fine. If it contains eight parts of a baser metal or alloy it is only sixteen carats fine. The carats therefore indicate the proportion of pure gold to alloy. Most of the gold used by jewelers is about fourteen carats fine, having ten parts of alloy.

The governor of the Panama canal shall be appointed by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, commissioned for a term of four years and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified. He shall receive a salary of $10,000 a year. All other persons necessary for the completion, care, maintenance, sanitation, government, operation and protection of the Panama canal and canal zone shall be appointed by the president, or by his authority, removable at his pleasure, and the compensation of such persons shall be fixed by the president, or by his authority, until such time as congress may by law regulate the same, but salaries or compensation fixed hereunder by the president shall in no instance exceed by more than 25 per cent the salary or compensation paid for the same or similar services to persons employed by the government in continental United States. Upon the completion of the Panama canal the president shall cause the same to be officially and formally opened for use and operation.

Before the completion of the canal the commission of arts may make report to the president of its recommendation regarding the architecture of the structures of the canal, such report to be transmitted to congress.

TOLLS.

The president is authorized to prescribe and from time to time change the tolls that shall be levied by the government of the United States for the use of the Panama canal: Provided, That no tolls, when prescribed as above, shall be changed unless six months' notice thereof shall have been given by the president by proclamation. No tolls shall be levied upon vessels engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States. Section 432 of the revised statutes is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Vessels built within the United States and belonging wholly to citizens thereof; and vessels which may be captured in war by citizens of the United States and lawfully condemned as prize, or which may be adjudged to be forfeited for a breach of the laws of the United States; and seagoing vessels, whether steam or sail, which have been certified by the steamboat inspection service as safe to carry dry and perishable cargo, not more than five years old when they apply for registry, whether built, which are to engage only in trade with foreign countries or with the Philippine islands and the islands of Guam and Tutula, being wholly owned by citizens of the United States or corporations organized and chartered under the laws of the United States or of any state thereof, the president and managing directors of which shall be citizens of the United States, or corporations organized under the laws of the United States, or of any state thereof, the president and managing directors of which shall be citizens of the United States, and no other vessels may be registered as directed in this title. Foreign built vessels registered pursuant to this act shall not engage in the coastwise trade: Provided, That a foreign built yacht, pleasure boat or vessel not intended to be used for trade admitted to American registry pursuant to this section shall not be exempt from the collection of ad valorem duty provided in section 37 of the act approved Aug. 5, 1909, entitled 'An act to provide revenue, equalize duties and encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes.' That all materials of foreign production which may be necessary for the construction or repair of vessels built in the United States and all such materials necessary for the construction or repair of their machinery, and all articles necessary for their outfit and equipment may be imported into the United States free of duty under such regulations as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe: Provided further, That such vessels so admitted under the provisions of this section may contract with the postmaster-general under the act of March 3, 1891, entitled 'An act to provide for ocean mail service between the United States and foreign ports, and to promote commerce' so long as such vessels shall in all respects comply with the provisions and requirements of this act."

Tolls may be based upon gross or net registered tonnage, or otherwise, and may be based on one form of tonnage for warships and another for ships of commerce. The rate of tolls may be lower upon vessels in ballast than upon vessels carrying passengers or cargo. When based upon net registered tonnage for ships of commerce the tolls shall not exceed $1.25 per net registered ton, nor be less, other than for vessels of the United States and its citizens, than the estimated proportionate cost of the actual maintenance and operation of the canal, subject, however, to the provisions of article 19 of the convention between the United States and the republic of Panama, entered into Nov. 18, 1903. If the tolls shall not be based upon the net registered tonnage they shall not exceed the equivalent of $1.25 per net registered ton as nearly as the same may be determined, nor be less than the equivalent of 75 cents per net registered ton. The toll for each passenger shall not be more than $1.50. The president is authorized to make and from time to time amend regulations governing the operation of the Panama canal, and the passage and control of vessels through the same or any part thereof, including the locks and approaches thereto, and all rules and regulations affecting pilots and pilotage in the canal or the approaches thereto through the adjacent waters.

Such regulations shall provide for prompt adjustment by agreement and immediate payment of claims for damages which may arise from injury to vessels, cargo or passengers from the passing of vessels through the locks under the control of those operating them under such rules and regulations. In case of disagreement suit may be brought in the District court of the canal zone against the governor of the Panama canal. The hearing and disposition of such cases shall be expedited and the judgment shall be immediately paid out of any moneys appropriated or allotted for canal operation.

PERSONAL INJURY CLAIMS.

The president shall provide a method for the determination and adjustment of all claims arising out of personal injuries to employees thereafter occurring while directly engaged in actual work in connection with the construction, maintenance, operation or sanitation of the canal or of the Panama railroad, or of any of its locks, locks, or other works necessary and convenient for the construction, maintenance, operation or sanitation of the canal, whether such injuries result in death or not, and prescribe a schedule of compensation therefor, and may revise and modify such method and schedule at any time; and such claims, to the extent they shall be allowed on such adjustment, if allowed at all, shall be paid out of the moneys hereafter appropriated for that purpose or out of the funds of the Panama Railroad company, if said company was responsible for said injury, as the case may require. And after such method and schedule shall be provided by the president the provisions of the act granting to certain employees of the United States the right to receive from it compensation for injuries sustained in the course of their employment, approved May 30, 1908, and of the act relating to injured employees on the isthmian canal, approved Feb. 24, 1909, shall not apply to personal injuries thereafter received and claims for which are subject to determination and adjustment as provided in this section.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH.

The president is authorized to cause to be erected, maintained and operated, subject to the international convention and the act of congress to regulate radio-communication, at suitable places along the Panama canal and the coast adjacent to its two terminals, in connection with the operation of said canal, such wireless telegraphic installations as he may deem necessary for the operation, maintenance, sanitation and protection of said canal, and for other purposes.

DOCKS AND WHARVES.

The president is also authorized to establish and operate, through the Panama Railroad company or otherwise, dry docks, repair shops, docks, wharves, warehouses and other necessary facilities for the purpose of providing coal and other materials, labor, repairs and supplies for vessels of the government of the United States and, incidentally, for supplying such at reasonable prices to passing vessels. Moneys received for the conduct of the business may be reinvested for such purposes without being turned into the treasury of the United States, but net profits shall annually be covered into the treasury of the United States.

GOVERNMENT OF ZONE.

The governor of the Panama canal shall have official control and jurisdiction over the canal zone and shall perform all duties in connection with the civil government of the canal zone, which is to be treated as an adjunct to the canal. Unless in this act otherwise provided, all existing laws of the canal zone referring to the civil governor or civil administration of the zone shall be applicable to the governor of the Panama canal.

COURTS.

The act makes provision for magistrate courts, for constables and for notaries public. It also provides for a District court with two divisions, one including Balboa and the other including Cristobal. In general the machinery, powers and jurisdiction of the court are similar to District courts in the United States proper. The Circuit Court of Appeals of the 5th circuit of the United States shall have jurisdiction to review, affirm or reverse the final judgments and decrees of the District court of the canal zone.

After the Panama canal shall have been opened for operation the governor shall have the right to make such rules and regulations, subject to the approval of the president, touching the right of any person to remain upon or pass over any part of the canal zone as may be necessary. It shall be unlawful for any person in any way to injure or obstruct any part of the canal, its locks or approaches thereto. Any person violating this provision shall be guilty of a felony and on conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $10,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding twenty years, or both, in the discretion of the court. If the act shall cause the death of any person within a year and a day thereafter the person so convicted shall be guilty of murder and shall be punished accordingly.

RAILROAD OWNED VESSELS EXCLUDED.

Section 5 of the act to regulate commerce, approved Feb. 4, 1887, as heretofore amended, is amended by adding a new paragraph at the end thereof, as follows:

"From and after the first day of July, 1914, it shall be unlawful for any railroad company or other common carrier subject to the act to regulate commerce to own, lease, operate, control or have any interest whatsoever (by stock ownership or otherwise, either directly, indirectly, through any common or in any other manner) in any common carrier by water operated through the Panama canal or elsewhere with which said railroad or other carrier aforesaid does or may compete for traffic or any vessel carrying freight or passengers upon said water route or elsewhere with which said railroad or other carrier aforesaid does or may compete for traffic; and in case of the violation of this provision each day in which such violation continues shall be deemed a separate offense."

Jurisdiction is conferred on the Interstate commerce commission to determine questions of fact as to the competition or possibility of competition, after full hearing, on the application of any railroad company or other carrier. If the interstate commerce commission shall be of the opinion that any such existing specified service by water other than through the Panama canal is being operated in the interest of the public and is of advantage to the convenience and commerce of the people, and that such extension will neither exclude, prevent nor reduce competition on the route by water under consideration, the interstate commerce commission may, by order, extend the time during which such service by water may continue to be operated beyond July 1, 1914. In every case of such extension the rates, schedules and practices of such water carrier shall be filed with the interstate commerce commission.

No vessel permitted to engage in the coastwise or foreign trade of the United States shall be permitted to enter or pass through the canal if such ship is owned, chartered, operated or controlled by any person or company which is doing business in violation of the acts of the United States against trusts and monopolies.

IN TIME OF WAR.

In time of war in which the United States shall be engaged, or when, in the opinion of the president, war is imminent, such officer of the army as the president may designate shall, upon the order of the president, assume and have exclusive authority and jurisdiction over the operation of the Panama canal, including the entire control and government of the canal zone, and during a continuance of such condition the governor of the Panama canal shall be subject to the order and direction of such officer of the army. (Approved Aug. 24, 1912.)

That for the purposes of this section the United States and its several territories and possessions, excepting the Philippine islands, shall be divided into units of area thirty minutes square, identical with a quarter of the area formed by the intersecting parallels of latitude and meridians of longitude, represented on appropriate postal maps or plans, and such units of area shall be the basis of eight postal zones, as follows:

The first zone shall include all territory within such quadrangle, in conjunction with every contiguous quadrangle, representing an area having a mean radial distance of approximately fifty miles from the center of any given unit of area.

The second zone shall include all units of area outside the first zone lying in whole or in part within a radius of approximately 150 miles from the center of a given unit of area.

The fifth zone shall include all units of area outside the fourth zone lying in whole or in part within a radius of approximately 1,000 miles from the center of a given unit of area.

The sixth zone shall include all units of area outside the fifth zone lying in whole or in part within a radius of approximately 1,400 miles from the center of a given unit of area.

The seventh zone shall include all units of area outside the sixth zone lying in whole or in part within a radius of approximately 1,800 miles from the center of a given unit of area.

The eighth zone shall include all units of area outside the seventh zone.

That the rate of postage on fourth-class matter weighing not more than four ounces shall be 1 cent for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, and on such matter in excess of four ounces in weight the rate shall be by the pound, as hereinafter provided, the postage in all cases to be prepaid by distinctive postage stamps affixed.

That except as provided in the next preceding paragraph postage on matter of the fourth class shall be prepaid at the following rates:

On all matter mailed at the postoffice from which a rural route starts, for delivery on such route, or mailed at any point on such route for delivery at any other point thereon, or at the office from which the route starts, or on any rural route starting therefrom, and on all matter mailed at a city carrier office, or at any point within its delivery limits, for delivery by carriers from that office, or at any office for local delivery, 5 cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and 1 cent for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

For delivery within the first zone, except as provided in the next preceding paragraph, 5 cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and 3 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

For delivery within the second zone, 6 cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and 4 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

For delivery in the third zone, 7 cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and 5 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

For delivery within the sixth zone, 10 cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and 8 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

For delivery within the seventh zone, 11 cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and 10 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

For delivery within the eighth zone and between the Philippine islands and any portion of the United States, including the District of Columbia and the several territories and possessions, 12 cents for the first pound or fraction of a pound and 12 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

That the postmaster-general shall provide such special equipment, maps, stamps, directories and printed instructions as may be necessary for the administration of this section, and for the purposes of this section, and to supplement existing appropriations, including the hiring of teams and drivers, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $750,000.

The classification of articles mailable as well as the weight limit, the rates of postage, zone or zones and other conditions of mailability under this act, if the postmaster-general shall find or experience that they or any of them are such as to prevent the shipment of articles desirable, or to permanently render the cost of the service greater than the receipts of the revenue therefrom, he is hereby authorized, subject to the consent of the interstate commerce commission after investigation, to reform from time to time such classification, weight limit, rates, zone or zones or conditions, or either, in order to promote the service to the public, to amend the receipt of revenue from such service adequate to pay the cost thereof.

The postmaster-general shall make provision by regulation for the indemnification of shippers, for shipment injured or lost, by insurance or otherwise, and, when desired, for the collection on delivery of the postage and price of the article shipped, fixing such charges as may be necessary to pay the cost of such additional services.

The postmaster-general may readjust the compensation of star route and screen wagon contractors if it should appear that as a result of the parcel post system the weight of the mails handled by them has been materially increased. Before such readjustment, however, a detailed account must be kept as to the amount of business handled by such star route or screen wagon contractors before and after this section becomes effective for such a period as to clearly demonstrate the amount of the increase and that such increase in the weight of the mails was due to the adoption of the parcel post system.

That the establishment of zones and postage rates of this section shall go into effect Jan. 1, 1913.

That this act shall not in any way affect the postage rate on seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants, as fixed by section 482 of the postal laws and regulations.

That for the purpose of a further inquiry into the subject of the general parcel post and all related subjects a joint committee of six persons (members of congress), three of whom shall be appointed by the president of the senate and three by the speaker of the house of representatives, is constituted, with full power to appoint clerks, stenographers and experts to assist them in this work. That the postmaster-general and the interstate commerce commission shall furnish such data and otherwise render such assistance to the said committee as may be desired or available. For the purpose of defraying the expenses of this committee the sum of $25,000 is hereby appropriated out of the moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. The committee shall report fully to congress at the earliest date possible.

That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this section are hereby repealed.

The president, by executive order, may waive the provisions and stipulations in this act as to any specific contract or contracts during time of war or a time when war is imminent, and until Jan. 1, 1915, as to any contract or contracts entered into in connection with the construction of the isthmian canal. No penalty shall be imposed for any violation of this provision in such contract due to any extraordinary events or conditions of manufacture, or to any emergency caused by fire, famine or flood, by to danger to life or to property, or by other extraordinary event or condition on account of which the president shall subsequently declare the violation to have been excusable. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE.

The public health and marine hospital service of the United States shall hereafter be known and designated as the public health service, and all laws pertaining to the public health and marine hospital service of the United States shall hereafter apply to the public health service. The public health service may study and investigate the diseases of man and conditions influencing the propagation and spread thereof, including sanitation and sewage and the pollution either directly or indirectly of the navigable streams and lakes of the United States, and it may from time to time issue information in the form of publications for the use of the public. (Approved Aug. 14, 1912.)

RADIO-COMMUNICATION.

The act requiring apparatus and operators for radio-communication on certain ocean steamers, approved June 24, 1910, is amended as follows:

After Oct. 1, 1912, it shall be unlawful for any steamer of the United States or of any foreign country navigating the ocean or the great lakes and licensed to carry, or carrying, fifty or more persons, including passengers or crew or both, to leave or attempt to leave any port of the United States unless such steamer shall be equipped with an efficient apparatus for radio-communication, in good working order, capable of transmitting and receiving messages over a distance of at least 100 miles, day or night. An auxiliary power supply, independent of the vessel's main electric power plant, must be provided which will enable the sending set for at least four hours to send messages over a distance of at least 100 miles, day or night, and efficient communication between the operator in the radio room and the bridge shall be maintained at all times.

The radio equipment must be in charge of two or more persons skilled in the use of such apparatus, one or the other of whom shall be on duty at all times while the vessel is being navigated. Such equipment, operators, the regulation of their watches and the transmission and receipt of messages, except as may be regulated by law or international agreement, shall be under the control of the master. In the case of a vessel of the United States; and every willful failure on the part of the master to enforce at sea the provisions of this paragraph as to equipment, operators, and watches shall subject him to a penalty of $100.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to steamers plying between ports, or places, less than 200 miles apart.

This act, so far as it relates to the great lakes, shall take effect on and after April 1, 1913, and so far as it relates to ocean cargo steamers shall take effect on and after July 1, 1913. (Approved July 23, 1912.)

RADIO REGULATIONS.

It is enacted that no person, company or corporation within the jurisdiction of the United States shall operate any apparatus for radio-communication as a means of commercial intercourse among the states, or with foreign nations, or upon any vessel of the United States engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, or for the transmission of radiograms beyond the state in which they are made, or where interference would be caused thereby with the receipt of messages or signals from beyond the state, except under a license granted by the secretary of commerce and labor. The act does not apply to the exchange of radiograms between points in the same state. Violation of this section shall be considered a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $500 and confiscation of apparatus. Licenses are to be issued upon specified conditions to citizens of the United States and Porto Rico and only licensed persons shall operate the apparatus coming within the provisions of the act. Special licenses may be issued to persons conducting special scientific tests.

The act regulates the length and kind of "waves" to be used at radio stations and provides that the distress call used shall be the international one, namely, (sos). All stations are required to give absolute priority to signals and radiograms relating to ships in distress. Violation of messages is provided for persons violating this requirement being subject to fine or imprisonment or both. The sending of a false signal of distress is punishable by a fine of not more than $2,500 or imprisonment for not more than five years or both. (Approved Aug. 13, 1912.)

LIFE SAVING AT SEA.

The right to remuneration for assistance or salvage services shall not be affected by common ownership of the vessels rendering and receiving such assistance or salvage services. The master or person in charge of a vessel shall, so far as he can, do so without serious danger to his own vessel, crew or passengers, render assistance to every person who is found at sea in danger of being lost, and if he fails to do so he shall, upon conviction, be liable to a penalty of not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or both. Salvors of human life, who have taken part in the services rendered on the occasion of the accident giving rise to salvage, are entitled to a fair share of the remuneration awarded to the salvors of the vessel, her cargo and accessories. (Approved Aug. 1, 1912.)

LIFEBOATS ON ARMY TRANSPORTS.

The sum of $300,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is appropriated for the purpose of equipping all army transports with all lifeboats and rafts, including such number of steel self-righting, self-bailing motor lifeboats for each vessel, as the secretary of war may deem advisable, necessary to accommodate every person for whom transportation facilities are now provided on the transports, and the crew of; the sum to be expended under the direction of the secretary of war, who is directed to make to congress an itemized statement showing how the sum has been expended. (Approved June 14.)

MARITIME CONFERENCE.

Resolved, That the president be authorized to convey to maritime nations the desire of congress that an international maritime conference be held, and that he be also authorized to appoint commissioners to represent the United States at any such conference, whether called by the United States or any other nation, the purpose of said conference being to consider uniform laws and regulations for the greater security of life and property on merchant vessels at sea, including, if practicable, regulations to establish standards of efficiency of the officers and crews of merchant vessels and the manning of such vessels; regulations for the construction and inspection of hulls, boilers and machinery; regulations for equipment of ocean steamers with radio apparatus, searchlights, submarine bells, lifeboats and other life saving and fire extinguishing appliances; regulations concerning lights, sound signals, steering and sailing rules; regulations for an international system of reporting and disseminating information relating to aids and perils to navigation; the establishment of lane routes to be followed by transatlantic steamers, and such other matters relating to the security of life and property at sea as may be proposed.

That, in case such international maritime conference shall be called by the United States or any other nation, the sum of $10,000 is hereby appropriated for the expenses of the representatives of the United States at the conference. (Approved June 23.)

The legislative power of the territory shall be vested in a legislature, which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives. The senate shall consist of eight members, two from each of the four judicial divisions into which Alaska is now divided by act of congress. The term of office shall be four years. The house shall consist of sixteen members, four from each judicial district. The term of a representative shall be two years. Each member of the legislature shall be paid by the United States the sum of $15 per day for each day's attendance while the legislature is in session, and mileage, in addition, at the rate of 15 cents per mile from his home to the capital and return by nearest traveled route.

The legislature shall convene in Juneau on the first Monday in March, 1913, and on the first Monday in March every two years thereafter. The regular sessions are limited to sixty days and special sessions to fifteen days.

The delegate to congress is to be elected in the same manner as heretofore, except that the date is changed from August to the Tuesday following the first Monday in November, in 1914, and every second year thereafter.

An officer of the engineer corps of the United States army, a geologist in charge of Alaska surveys, an officer in the engineer corps of the United States navy and a civil engineer, who has had practical experience in railroad construction, are to be appointed by the president as a railroad commission to conduct an examination into the transportation question in Alaska and to make a report of the facts to congress with recommendations as to the best railroad routes. (Approved Aug. 24, 1912.)

PROTECTION OF FUR SEALS.

The act gives effect to the convention between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Russia for the preservation and protection of the fur seals and sea otter which frequent the waters of the north Pacific ocean. It provides that no citizen of the United States shall kill, capture or pursue at any time any fur seal in the waters of the north Pacific ocean north of the 30th parallel of the north latitude and including the seas of Bering, Kamchatka, Okhotsk and Japan; nor shall any person or vessel kill, capture or pursue sea otter in any of the waters mentioned beyond the distance of three miles from the shore line of the territory of the United States. No citizen of the United States shall equip or furnish aid in equipping or furnish supplies to any vessel used in pelagic sealing or sea otter hunting in the waters named, and no vessel so used shall use any of the ports or harbors of the United States. These provisions do not apply to Indians, Aleuts or other aborigines on the American coasts of the waters named, who carry on pelagic sealing in canoes or undecked boats not used in connection with other vessels. The importation of skins of fur seals or sea otters from the waters mentioned, except such as have been taken under the authority of the respective parties to the convention, is forbidden. A guard or patrol is to be maintained in the waters frequented by the seal herd or herds and sea otter, in the protection of which the United States is especially interested. All killing of fur seals on the Pribilof islands, or anywhere within the jurisdiction of the United States in Alaska, shall be suspended for five years. (Approved Aug. 24, 1912.)

INCREASE OF THE NAVY.

Eight submarine torpedo boats in an amount not exceeding in the aggregate $4,480,000, and the sum of $1,600,000 is appropriated for said purpose, and the secretary of the navy is directed to consider the advisability of stationing four of the submarine torpedo boats at or near the mouth of the Mississippi river and the United States seaports of the Gulf of Mexico as a proper naval defense thereof and the other four upon the Pacific coast.

One submarine tender, to cost not to exceed $1,000,000, and the sum of $400,000 is appropriated toward said purpose. (Approved Aug. 22, 1912.)

Violations of the law are punishable by fines, or imprisonment, or both. The act applies only to the common poisonous white or yellow phosphorus used in the manufacture of matches and not to nonpoisonous forms or compounds of white or yellow phosphorus. (Approved April 9, 1912.)

NATIONAL RED CROSS IN TIME OF WAR.

Whenever in time of war, or when war is imminent, the president may deem the co-operation and use of the American National Red Cross with the sanitary services of the land and naval forces to be necessary, he is authorized to accept the assistance tendered by the said Red Cross and to employ the same under the sanitary services of the army and navy in conformity with such rules and regulations as he may prescribe.

Sec. 2. That when the Red Cross co-operation and assistance with the land and naval forces in time of war or threatened hostilities shall have been accepted by the president, the personnel entering upon the duty specified in section 1 of this act shall, while proceeding to their place of duty, while serving thereat and while returning therefrom, be transported and subsisted at the cost and charge of the United States as civilian employees employed with the said forces, and the Red Cross supplies that may be tendered as a gift and accepted for use in the sanitary service shall be transported at the cost and charge of the United States. (Approved April 24, 1912.)

LANDS FOR SPINELESS CACTI.

There shall be set aside for a period of five years such portions of the unappropriated, nonmineral, nonirrigable, nontimbered and unreserved public lands situated in California, New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada as Luther Burbank of Santa Rosa, Cal., may select, not to exceed twelve sections in all, and the right to enter the same and propagate the spineless cacti thereon, erecting all necessary improvements and clearing and filling the soil thereof, shall be granted the said Luther Burbank, his heirs and successors in interest.

The secretary of the interior is directed to issue patent to the said Luther Burbank, his heirs or successors in interest, for all or any legal subdivision of the said lands so set aside upon the payment of $1.25 per acre, or $2.50 per acre if the same be reserved sections within any railroad grant, as purchase price, provided said payment is made within the said five years: Provided, That no patent shall issue until the said Luther Burbank or his heirs or successors in interest shall have had at least 100,000 growing plants of spineless cacti of a character suitable for animal food upon said lands or some part thereof for the period of two years, and until it has been shown to the satisfaction of the secretary of the interior that the lands to be patented are suitable for the growth of spineless cacti valuable for domestic animal food. (Approved Aug. 24, 1912.)

ENLARGED HOMESTEAD.

Section 1 of the act entitled "An act to provide for an enlarged homestead," approved Feb. 19, 1909, is amended so as to read as follows:

RESIDENCE PERIOD REDUCED.

Sections 2291 and 2297 of the revised statutes are amended so as to reduce from five to three years the period of residence required on homestead lands before patents are issued. The act further permits entrymen and their families during that period to be absent from their homesteads five months in each year. (Approved June 7, 1912.)

DIRECT ELECTION OF SENATORS.

The senate (Bristow) amendment to the house joint resolution providing for the election of United States senators by popular vote was agreed to by the house May 13, 1912. The following is the resolution as it was finally adopted:

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled (two-thirds of each house concurring therein), That in lieu of the first paragraph of section 3 of article 1 of the constitution of the United States, and in lieu of so much of paragraph two of the same section as relates to the filling of vacancies, the following be proposed as an amendment to the constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states:

"The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years, and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the senate the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election, as the legislature may direct.

"This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the constitution."

(Approved Aug. 23, 1912.)

By joint resolution the chief of engineers, United States army, is authorized and directed to grant permission for the erection on public grounds in the United States in the city of Washington, other than those of the capitol, the library of congress and the white house, of a joint memorial, of simple and artistic form, to Maj. Archibald W. Butt.

(Approved Aug. 24, 1912.)

REBUILDING LEVEES.

The secretary of war is authorized and directed to rebuild, by contract or otherwise, in accordance with such plans, specifications and recommendations of the Mississippi river commission as may be approved by the chief of engineers, such portions of the levees on the Mississippi river and its tributaries as may have been or may hereafter be broken by the existing flood in said rivers, or so materially weakened as to necessitate rebuilding, and the sum of $1,500,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary is appropriated for this purpose: Provided, That the secretary of war shall keep an account of the actual cost of all work done under the provisions of this resolution, and upon completion of the work he shall report the total cost thereof to the secretary of the treasury and the secretary of the treasury shall cause a sum equal to the cost so reported to be deducted from the appropriations that shall first hereafter be made for improving the Mississippi river from Head of Passes to the mouth of the Ohio river, and to be carried to the surplus fund and covered into the treasury. (Approved April 30, 1912.)

POSTAL EMPLOYEES AND UNIONS.

Following is part of section 6 of the postoffice appropriation bill, approved Aug. 24, 1912: Membership in any society, association, club or other form of organization of postal employees not affiliated with any outside organization imposing an obligation or duty upon them to engage in any strike, or proposing to assist them in any strike, against the United States, having for its objects, among other things, improvements in the condition of labor of its members, including hours of labor and compensation therefor and leave of absence, by any person or groups of persons in said postal service, or the presenting by any such person or groups of persons of any grievance or grievances to the congress or any member thereof shall not constitute or be cause for reduction in rank or compensation or removal of such person or groups of persons from said service. The right of persons employed in the civil service of the United States, either individually or collectively, to petition congress, or any member thereof, or to furnish information to either house of congress, or to any committee or member thereof, shall not be denied or interfered with.

GENERAL ARBITRATION TREATIES "RATIFIED."

The general arbitration treaties negotiated between the United States, Great Britain and France and signed Aug. 3, 1911, were ratified by the senate March 7, 1912, but with so many amendments as practically to negative them. Neither Great Britain nor France was asked to accept the amendments and no further action was taken by any of the powers interested. As amended the treaties, if they went into force, would exclude from arbitration questions connected with the admission of Japanese and other orientals and their attendance in state educational institutions and also questions affecting the territorial integrity of the United States, the indebtedness of the southern states, the application of the Monroe doctrine and other purely governmental policies. The clause binding the contracting parties to submit to a joint high commission composed of representatives of the two countries all disputes on which they could not agree as to their being arbitrable was eliminated by a vote of 42 to 40. This clause was strongly opposed by Theodore Roosevelt. (For full text of proposed treaties see The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book for 1912, page 477.)

VETOED BY PRESIDENT.

METAL TARIFF BILL.

The house passed a bill Jan. 29 revising schedule C of the tariff law, relating to metals and manufactures of metals. Among other things it placed all machine tools on the free list. The bill was passed by the senate May 30 and was vetoed by the president Aug. 14. In his veto message the president said in part:

"There is nothing to show me that the duties provided in the bill will equal the difference in the cost of production here and abroad in the great lines of industries, and that the wages of workmen will not be reduced by a measure which avowedly discards entirely the principle of fair protection. It should be noted that the labor employed in the secondary industries, which has had so little consideration in this bill, is in a large measure high grade, skilled labor, commanding a high level of wages. * * * There is little logical relation between the reductions made by this bill in the schedule. For example, steam engines and machine tools in the present law are dutiable at 30 per cent. In this revision steam engines are reduced to 15 per cent and the whole machine tool industry is put on the free list, without any reason whatever being given in the report of the ways and means committee in either case for such action.

"It is further difficult to understand by what process of reasoning it is possible to justify a transfer to the free list of a great line of finished articles, while nearly every one of the crude products from which they are made is retained on the dutiable list. A bill for a complete revision of this schedule was presented to me a year ago in the extra session of this congress. Many increases and decreases of rates are now made from those named in the former measure. The changes are not explained and indicate the hasty method pursued in the preparation of both. Is it not fair to ask, either on the basis of protection or revenue, which was right?

"On the whole, therefore, I am not willing to approve of legislation of this kind, which vitally affects not only millions of workmen and the families dependent on them, but hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of stocks of goods in the hands of storekeepers and distributors generally, without first providing for a careful and disinterested inquiry into the conditions of the whole industry.

"From the outset of my administration I have urged a revision of the tariff based on a nonpartisan study of the facts. I have provided the means for securing such information in the appointment of a tariff board. Their thorough work, already completed on several schedules, has justified my confidence in this method. The principle is indorsed by chambers of commerce and boards of trade in almost every city of importance in the country. The proposed bill has not been framed on the basis of any such study of the industry."

The house immediately passed the bill over the president's veto by a vote of 174 yeas to 83 nays, 134 not voting. The senate, however, by a vote of 39 yeas to 32 nays refused to override the veto and the bill failed.

WOOL TARIFF BILL.

The house April 1 passed a bill to reduce the duties on wool and manufactures of wool. It was practically the same bill as that disapproved by the president in August, 1911. It was passed by the senate July 25 and vetoed by the president Aug. 9. In his veto message the president said in part:

"On Dec. 30, 1911, I sent a message to the congress recommending a prompt revision of the tariff on wool and woolsens. I urged a reduction of duties which should remove all the excesses and inequalities of the schedule, but should leave a degree of protection adequate to maintain the continued employment of machinery and labor already established in that great industry. With that message I transmitted a report of the tariff board, which furnished for the first time the information needed to frame a revision bill of this character, and recommended that legislation should be at once undertaken in the light of this information. Despite the efforts which have been made to discredit the work of the tariff board, their report on this schedule has been accepted, with scarcely a dissenting voice, by all those familiar with the problems discussed, including active representatives of organizations formed in the interest of the public and the consumer. Importers and merchants, as well as producers and manufacturers, have testified to the accuracy and impartiality of the findings of fact. My position has been made perfectly plain. I shall stand by my pledges to maintain a degree of protection necessary to offset the difference in cost of production here and abroad and will heartily approve of any bill reducing duties to this level. Bills have been introduced into congress, carefully framed and based on the findings of the tariff board, which, while maintaining the principle of protection, have provided for sweeping reductions. Such a bill was presented by the minority members of the ways and means committee, which, while providing protection to the wool grower, reduces the duty on most wools 20 per cent, and the duties on manufactures by from 20 to more than 50 per cent, and gives in many instances less net protection to the manufacturer than was granted by the Gorman-Wilson free wool act of 1894.

"Instead of such a measure of thorough and genuine revision, based on full information of the facts, and with rates properly adjusted to all the different stages of the industry, there is now presented for my approval H. R. 22195, 'An act to reduce the duties on wool and the manufactures of wool,' a bill identical with the one which I vetoed in August, 1911, before the report of the tariff board had been made. The tariff board's report fully and completely justifies my veto of that date. The amount of ad valorem duty necessary to offset the difference in the cost of production of raw wool here and abroad varies with every grade of wool. Consequently an ad valorem rate of duty adjusted to meet the difference in the cost of production of high priced wools is not protective to low priced wools. In any case the report of the tariff board shows that the ad valorem duty of 29 per cent on raw wool, imposed in the bill now submitted to me, is inadequate to meet this difference in cost in the case of four-fifths of our total wool clip.

"The disastrous effect upon the business of our farmers engaged in wool raising cannot be more clearly stated. To maintain the status quo in the wool growing industry, the minimum ad valorem rate necessary, even for high grade wool in years of high prices, would be 35 per cent.

"The rate provided in this bill on cloths of all kinds is 49 per cent. The amount of net protection given by this rate, in addition to proper compensation for the duty on wool, depends on the ratio between the cost of the raw material and the cost of making the cloth. The cost of the raw material in woolen and worsted fabric varies in general from 50 per cent to 70 per cent of the total value of the fabric. Consequently the net protective duty, with wool at 29 per cent, would vary from 23.7 per cent to 34.5 per cent. In the great majority of cases these rates are inadequate to equalize the difference in the cost of manufacture here and abroad. This is especially true of the finest goods involving a high proportion of labor cost. One of the striking developments of the last few years has been the growth in this country of a fine goods industry. The rates provided in this bill, inadequate as they are for most of the cloths produced in this country, would make the continuance here of the manufacture of fine goods an impossibility.

"Even more dangerous in their effects are the rates proposed on tops and yarns. Tops are the result of the first stage in the making of raw wool into cloth. Yarn is the result of the second stage. Taken in connection with a rate of 29 per cent on wool and 49 per cent on cloths, the rates of 32 per cent on tops and 35 per cent on yarn, fixed in this bill, seem impossible of justification. They would disrupt, and to no purpose, the existing adjustment within the industry of all its different branches. It is improbable in the highest degree that raw wool would be imported in great quantities when the cloth maker can import his tops at a duty of 32 per cent and yarns at a duty of 35 per cent. The report of the tariff board shows the difference in relative costs to be uniformly greater than the amount of protection on yarns given by this bill. In a year of low prices the net protection granted by the proposed rates would not be more than half the difference in costs. The free wool act of 1894 gave a protective rate of 40 per cent on all yarns over 40 cents a pound in value, with free raw material. The present bill gives only 35 per cent on such yarns, with a duty of 29 per cent on the raw material. The great increase in the imports of tops and yarns which would result from the rates in the bill now submitted to me would destroy the effect of the protection to raw wool and at the same time would be at the cost of widespread disaster to the wool combing and spinning branches of the industry. The last fifteen years has witnessed a great growth of top making and worsted spinning in this country, and the capacity of the plants is now equal to domestic requirements. Under the rates proposed such plants could be continued, if at all, only by writing off most of the investment as a net loss and by a reduction of wages. To sum up, then, most of the rates in the submitted bill are so low in themselves that if enacted into law the inevitable result would be the irretrievable injury to the wool growing industry, the enforced idleness of much of our wool combing and spinning machinery and of thousands of looms and the consequent throwing out of employment of thousands of workmen. In view of these facts, in view of the platform upon which I was elected, in view of my promise to follow and maintain the protective policy, no course is open to me but to withhold my approval from this bill."

The bill was passed by the house over the veto Aug. 13 by a vote of yeas, 174; nays, 80; 136 not voting. The senate, Aug. 16, refused to pass the bill over the veto, 39 voting yeas, 36 nays and 19 not voting. Less than two-thirds of those voting having voted in the affirmative, the bill failed.

TERMS OF CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYEES.

The bill making appropriations for legislative, executive and judicial expenses of the government passed by the house May 19 and by the senate June 14 contained a section (5) providing that every appointment in the classified service after Sept. 1, 1913, shall be for a term of seven years after the probationary period of six months has expired, and that at the expiration of each such appointment the employment of each person so appointed shall cease and determine; and that the employment of all persons appointed prior to Sept. 1, 1912, in the classified service at annual rates of compensation shall cease and determine within one year after Aug. 31, 1913, the date of termination during that year to be determined by the head of the appropriate department according to previous length of service.

In his veto message the president said he objected to the section because he believed it would prove ineffective in eliminating inefficient employees and also for the following reason: "It impairs that feature of the civil service which I regard as a most valuable one, to wit: The permanence of tenure on the one hand, balanced by a wide and almost absolute power of removal in the department head on the other. If at the end of each seven years it becomes necessary for one who has spent the best years of his life in the public service to ascertain whether he is to continue, it is certain that he will bring pressure to bear in every direction upon the appointing power to continue him in office. I am perfectly aware that the motive for not reappointing him will be much reduced by the fact that his successor must be appointed from the eligibles of the civil service commission, but the play which this will give for prejudice and arbitrary action in the appointing power will constitute a serious injury to the present tenure of office."

COMMERCE COURT.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill also contained a provision repealing the statute creating a Commerce court for the purpose of passing on appeals from the decisions of the interstate commerce commission. In his veto message the president took exceptions to this provision and gave it as an additional reason for disapproving the measure. He said in part:

"It appears from the decisions of the Supreme court of the United States that the Commerce court in several cases has amplified its jurisdiction beyond that which a proper construction of the statute justified. It also appears that in a number of cases the decisions were against the shippers and for the railroads when the Supreme court decided that they ought to have been the other way. On the other hand it appears that in a number of other cases the decisions of the Commerce court were in favor of the shippers and in favor of giving relief to the shippers, against the railroad companies, but that the Supreme court has since denied the existence of such jurisdiction under the statute. A series of decisions of the Supreme court has satisfactorily established the limits of the jurisdiction of the new court, and there is no reason to believe that those limits thus established will in future be exceeded. There is every reason to believe that the dispatch of business already promoted by the court will continue. And now the question is, why should the court be abolished? Because it has made some mistakes that the Supreme court has rectified? Lower courts, especially when exercising new jurisdiction, are likely to make errors to be corrected by the Supreme court. The presiding judge of the Commerce court was the chairman of the interstate commerce commission for a great many years. Three of the Commerce court judges before their appointment to the Commerce court had been United States district judges of long experience and one had been a state judge of standing and experience. The personnel of the court is to change from year to year by the assignment of one of the Commerce court judges to a Circuit Court of Appeals and the designation of another Circuit judge to fill the vacancy thus made.

"I have read the arguments upon which this proposed legislation is urged and I cannot find in them a single reason why the court should be abolished except that those who propose to abolish it object to certain of its decisions. Some of those decisions have been questioned and others have been disapproved and modified by the Supreme court. It is utterly opposed to the abolition of a court because its decisions may not always meet the approval of a majority of the legislature. It is introducing a recall of the judiciary, which, in its way, is quite as objectionable as the ordinary popular method proposed. Next to impartial and just judgment the great desideratum in judicial reforms to-day is the promotion of the dispatch of business and the prompt decision of cases. The establishment of the Commerce court has brought this about in a substantial way by reducing the average delay from two years to six months, and I doubt not that as time goes on and the procedure becomes better understood this period of six months will be further reduced. It is greatly in the interest of the shippers and therefore of the public that this means of reducing the time of effective remedial litigation against railroads should be preserved."

The house refused to pass the bill over the veto, but Aug. 17 it passed a new bill of substantially the same character. This was passed by the senate Aug. 19 and was finally adopted by both houses with the civil service tenure clause eliminated, but still containing the provision abolishing the Commerce court. The president therefore again vetoed the measure, which was then passed by both houses (Aug. 21 and 22) with the Commerce court provision omitted, and the bill was approved Aug. 23.

ARMY LEGISLATION.

The army appropriation bill, passed by the house Feb. 15 and by the senate April 24, was vetoed by the president June 17, chiefly because of a clause providing that after March 5, 1913, no officer should be permitted to serve as chief of staff unless he should also have served at least ten years as a commissioned officer of the line in the army in grades below that of brigadier-general. This would have rendered ineligible after that date for service in the most important position in the army the present chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, and many other of the most efficient officers of the army. There were other grave objections to the legislative portion of the bill which, if enacted into law, would, in the opinion of the president, seriously disorganize the work of the bureau of insular affairs and of the Panama canal commission. The executive condemned the practice of attaching important new legislation to appropriation bills.

An amended bill was passed by the house July 2, by the senate Aug. 1, and was approved Aug. 24.

THE CAPITOL IN WASHINGTON.

The corner stone of the original capitol building was laid by President Washington Sept. 18, 1793. The north wing was finished in 1810 and the south wing in 1811, a wooden passageway connecting them. The original designs of the structure were made by Dr. William Thornton. The two wings were burned by the British in 1814, but were immediately restored. In 1827 the original building was completed at a cost of $2,433,844.13. Extensions of the wings were begun in 1851 and completed in 1859. The dome, which is 287 feet 5 inches in height, was completed in 1865. The capitol stands in latitude 38 degrees 53 minutes 20.4 seconds north and longitude 77 degrees 00 minutes 35.7 seconds west from Greenwich. The area covered by the building is 153,112 square feet.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

The library of congress was established in 1800 in the city of Washington, D. C. It was burned in 1814, and in 1851 lost 35,000 volumes by fire. The present library building, which cost $6,347,000, was opened to the public in November, 1897. It is located a short distance east of the capitol and is the largest and finest building of its kind in the world.

June 30, 1911, the library contained 1,811,729 books and pamphlets, 123,568 maps, 557,010 pieces of music and 336,966 photographs, prints, engravings and lithographs. The copyright office is a distinct division of the library with its own force of employees. The total number of employees in the library is 486 and the annual cost of maintenance is now about $625,000.

WEATHER FORECASTS AND SIGNALS.

The operations of the weather bureau of the department of agriculture are based on observations of the weather taken at about 200 observatories throughout the United States at the same moment of time and telegraphed daily to Washington, D. C., and to other important cities. These observations, comprising barometric pressure, temperature, precipitation, winds and clouds, are entered upon outline charts of the United States by means of symbols, forming the "daily weather map," from which the forecasts are made. These forecasts are issued every day for every state in the union, and whenever necessary special warnings are sent out of storms, frosts, cold waves, heavy

It is estimated that the total number of persons in the United States to whom the weather forecasts are available is more than 4,000,000.

When No. 4 is placed above No. 1, 2 or 3 it indicates warmer; when below, colder; when not displayed, the temperature is expected to remain about stationary. During the late spring and early fall the cold-wave flag is used to indicate anticipated frosts.

A red flag with a black center indicates that a storm of marked violence is expected. The pennants displayed with the flags indicate the direction of the wind: Red, easterly (from northeast to south); white, westerly (from southwest to

The forecasts are first telegraphed to about 2,300 principal distributing points, whence they are further disseminated by telegraph, telephone and through the mail by means of forecast cards, rural free delivery slips and newspapers.

By night a red light indicates easterly winds and a white light above a red light westerly winds.

Two red flags, with black centers, displayed one above the other, indicate the expected approach of tropical hurricanes, and also of those extremely severe and dangerous storms which occasionally move across the lakes and northern Atlantic coast. Hurricane warnings are not displayed at night.

The "Monroe doctrine" was enunciated by President Monroe in his message to congress Dec. 2, 1823. Referring to steps taken to arrange the respective rights of Russia, Great Britain and the United States on the northwest coast of this continent, the president went on to say:

"In the discussions to which this interest has given rise, and in the arrangements by which they may terminate, the occasion has been deemed proper for asserting, as a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power. * * * We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintain it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

ORGANIZATION OF THE REPUBLIC—The organization of the republic of Cuba, begun in 1900, was practically completed on the 20th of May, 1902, when the military occupation of the island by the United States came to an end and Gen. Tomas Estrada Palma was inaugurated as the first president.

UNITED STATES TARIFF COMMISSION.

Prof. Henry C. Emery, Yale university, New Haven, Conn.
 James B. Reynolds, assistant secretary of the treasury, Washington, D. C.
 Alvin H. Sanders, editor Breeders' Gazette, Chicago.
 Prof. James M. Page, economist, Virginia.
 William M. Howard, lawyer, Georgia.

The appointment of the commission was authorized in the second section of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law of 1909, the last sentence in the section reading: "To secure the information necessary in carrying out the provisions of this section the president is authorized to employ such persons as may be required." The maximum compensation of each member of the commission is $7,500.

SYNOPSIS OF TARIFF LEGISLATION SINCE 1884.

Morrison Bills—First bill presented to 48th congress during Chester A. Arthur's administration; proposed a horizontal reduction of 20 per cent with free iron ore, coal and lumber; defeated in house April 15, 1884, by vote of 159 to 155; house heavily democratic and senate republican. Second bill presented to 49th congress during Grover Cleveland's first administration; similar to first bill, proposing free wool, salt and lumber; defeated in house June 17, 1886, by a vote of 157 to 140; house democratic, senate republican.

Mills Bill—Presented to 50th congress during Cleveland's first administration; provided for free lumber and wool, reduction on pig iron and abolition of specific duties on cotton; passed by house July 21, 1888, by vote of 162 to 149, but failed in senate; house democratic, senate republican.

McKinley Bill—Passed by 51st congress during Benjamin Harrison's administration; became law Oct. 6, 1890; high protective measure, though remitting duties on sugar and providing for reciprocity treaties; both houses of congress republican.

Wilson Bill—Passed by 53d congress during Cleveland's second administration; became law Aug. 17, 1894, without the president's signature; both houses democratic; measure reduced duties in some cases and made additions to free list, notably wool.

Dingley Bill—Passed by 54th congress during McKinley's administration; approved July 24, 1897; passed by house 205 yeas to 122 nays, 27 members not voting; passed by senate 38 yeas to 28 nays, 23 not voting; house contained 206 republicans and 134 democrats and senate 46 republicans and 34 democrats; measure raised rates to produce more revenue, but was similar in many respects to the McKinley act.

Payne-Aldrich bill passed at extra session of 61st congress in first year of President William H. Taft's administration; approved Aug. 5, 1909; passed the house by a vote of 217 to 161 and the senate by a vote of 45 to 34. The conference vote in the house was 195 yeas to 183 nays, twenty republicans voting in the negative and two democrats in the affirmative. In the senate the vote on the final conference report was 47 to 31, seven republicans voting against it. In general the revision of the Dingley act was in the direction of lower duties, but there were some increases. The law is given practically in full in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book for 1910.

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION IN WASHINGTON.

The Smithsonian institution was established by statute in 1846, under the terms of the will of James Smithson, who bequeathed his fortune in 1826 to the United States for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." From the income of the fund a building, known as the Smithsonian building, was erected in Washington, D. C., on land given by the United States. The institution is legally an establishment having as its members the president and vice-president of the United States, the chief justice and the president's cabinet. It is governed by a board of regents consisting of the vice-president, the chief justice, three members of the United States senate, three members of the house of representatives and six citizens appointed by joint resolution of congress. It is under the immediate direction of the secretary of the Smithsonian institution, who is the executive officer of the board and the director of the institution's activities. The institution aids investigators by making grants for research and exploration, providing for lectures, initiating scientific projects and publishing scientific papers. It has administrative charge of the national museum, the national gallery of art, the international exchange service, the national zoological park, the astrophysical observatory and the regional bureau for the international catalogue of scientific literature. The institution's original endowment of $541,000 has been increased by gifts and accumulated interest to $987,000, yielding an annual income of $53,375. The secretary of the institution is Charles D. Walcott.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN THE UNITED STATES.

Capital punishment prevails in all of the states and territories of the union except Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Kansas and Maine. It was abolished in Iowa in 1872 and restored in 1878. It was also abolished in Colorado, but was restored in 1901. One of the constitutional amendments submitted to the voters of Ohio Sept. 3, 1912, was the following:

"All persons shall be liable by sufficient sureties, except those charged with murder in the first degree, where proof is evident or the presumption great. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted, nor shall life be taken as a punishment for crime. Until otherwise provided by law persons convicted of crimes heretofore punishable by death shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary during life."

The proposed amendment was not approved by the voters and capital punishment still prevails in Ohio.

EFFECT ON HOMICIDES.

What effect capital punishment has on the number of homicides is still a mooted question, though the tendency seems to be to doubt its efficacy as a preventive measure. Reliable official statistics bearing on the matter are almost totally lacking, criminal records, national and state, not being kept with any degree of completeness. Such figures as are available do not seem to be conclusive. The situation in the United States is very much the same as that in England. Mr. E. P. Bell, London correspondent of The Daily News, in an article published Oct. 1, 1912, wrote:

"Statistics appear to give no clear light as to the value of capital punishment as a deterrent of murder in England. Fewer murders are committed in this country than formerly; whether more would have been committed had capital punishment been abolished at any time nobody can tell. Persons of distinction and of special competence to discuss crime and crime statistics are found on both sides of the controversy which long has raged over capital punishment.

"For years an influential society has carried on a sustained fight for the abolition of capital punishment in England. This society holds that the extreme penalty is not an effective deterrent, because, generally speaking, it prevails only in the theory—that so few persons convicted of murder are actually executed that criminals discount the risk of undergoing the death penalty. The spokesmen of this society argue against capital punishment on the ground (1) that only God has the right to take human life; (2) that capital punishment involves great danger of executing innocent persons; (3) that the punishment does not fit the crime nor effect the reformation of the offender. The religious objection urged is that the sinner who is executed is deprived of his full time of repentance.

"Those in favor of the retention of capital punishment admit that its effect appears to be different in different countries. They also admit that juries often show disinclination to convict in cases where conviction means irrevocable punishment. This inference is drawn from the fact that in the thirty years from 1850 to 1879, inclusive, 2,005 persons were committed for trial in England on the charge of willful murder, and of this number only 665, or 33 per cent, were found guilty, whereas the number of convictions for noncapital crimes is 76 per cent. The uncertainty of the infliction of the extreme penalty is regarded by the advocates of capital punishment as a grave danger to society.

"The marked disproportion between the number of persons charged with and the number convicted of murder is put down (1) to the fact that not only the jury but the court leans to mercy except in very bad cases, (2) to the frequent exercise of the prerogative of mercy, (3) to the fact that circumstantial evidence must be conclusive in order to convict, (4) to the merciful treatment extended to deserted mothers charged with killing their children, (5) to the frequency of insanity in murderers and (6) to the fact that coroners' juries are recklessly free in returning inquisitions of murder without any real evidence of guilt."

Reports from states in which capital punishment has been abolished, temporarily or permanently, have been received by The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book and are given herewith.

COLORADO.

The following information relating to convictions for murder, life sentences to prison and executions in Colorado since 1871 was furnished to The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book by Mr. William Thomas, secretary of the state board of charities and correction in Denver. Prior to 1888 executions took place at the county seats and no record is available as to their number. From 1871 to Nov. 30, 1888, 128 persons were convicted and sent to the penitentiary for murder. By an act passed April 19, 1889, all executions thereafter took place in the penitentiary and the records are complete except for the biennial period ending Nov. 30, 1894, when no report was placed on file. Capital punishment was abolished by virtue of an act approved March 29, 1897, and was re-established by an act filed with the secretary of state May 2, 1901, which became a law without the governor's signature. The following table shows the number of convictions for murder, sentences to life terms in prison and execution in the biennial periods (ending Nov. 30) indicated:

Years.	Con- Life Executions.	Years.	Con- Life Executions.
1879-1880..30	24	1897-1898..40	16

*No record on file.

The population of Colorado in 1880 was 194,327; in 1890, 412,198; in 1900, 539,700, and in 1910, 789,024. For the years 1879-1880 the convictions for murder equaled 1 per year for approximately every 13,000 inhabitants; for 1889-1890, 1 per year for every 30,000 inhabitants; for 1899-1900 (when capital punishment was abolished), 1 per year for every 26,600 inhabitants, and in 1909-1910, after capital punishment had been restored, 1 per year for every 30,000 inhabitants.

MAINE.

From 1821 to 1829 treason, murder, arson, rape, burglary and robbery were punishable with death in Maine. From 1829 to 1837 only treason, murder and arson were so punishable. The law was further modified in 1837, 1844, 1867, 1869 and 1875, so that there were almost no executions. In 1876 the death penalty was abolished altogether, but in 1883 the death penalty for murder alone was re-established. In 1885 the governor called attention to the fact that there had been an unusual number of cold blooded murders within the last two years and that the re-establishment of the death penalty had not afforded the protection anticipated. In 1887 the death penalty was again abolished.

In a letter to The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book, Mr. Fred B. Wiggin, warden of the state prison at Thomaston, Me., writes:

"Our records do not shed much light upon the effect of the abolition of capital punishment so far as the number of murders is concerned. Covering the past fifty years, the largest number of convictions for murder in any one year has been five, and that experience occurred in three different years; once when capital punishment was in force and twice since it was abolished.

"It would appear from our records that under the law when capital punishment was in force jurors would more frequently convict of murder in the second degree, for which the penalty was life imprisonment. Since the abolition of capital punishment in this state—the last time in the '80s—the number of homicides shows no significant change either as to increase or decrease.

"My own opinion is that the penalty is not considered when a homicide is committed."

In 1904 there were only two prisoners committed for homicide in Maine, or 0.3 per 100,000 of population. In New Hampshire, where the death penalty is inflicted, the number was five, or 1.2 per 100,000.

RHODE ISLAND.

Capital punishment except for murder by a person under sentence of life imprisonment was abolished in Rhode Island Feb. 11, 1852. There has been no execution under the exception. It appears from the prison records that in the decade between 1840 and 1850 there were two commitments for murder to each 73,772 of inhabitants. In the decade 1850 to 1860, just after the abolition of the death penalty, the proportion was 1 to 21,827, the worst condition the state has known. Other decades showed the following proportions: 1860 to 1870, 1 to 27,170; 1870 to 1880, 1 to 34,504; 1880 to 1890, 1 to 34,550; 1890 to 1900, 1 to 32,966. These figures are the nearest approach possible to reaching any conclusion as to the effect or absence of effect of the abolition of capital punishment in Rhode Island.

According to the United States census bureau the number of commitments for murder in Rhode Island in 1904 was six, or 1.3 per 100,000 of population. In the adjoining state of Connecticut the commitments in the same year were thirteen, or 1.3 per 100,000 population. In other words, the average was precisely the same in the two states, one having capital punishment and the other not having it.

In this connection, however, it may be noted that out of fifty-six prisoners sentenced to the Rhode Island state prison for murder between 1830 and 1905, twenty were pardoned by the governors. Attention was called to this fact by Attorney-General Charles F. Stearns when he retired from office a few years ago. His conclusion was that the murderer's hope of escaping full punishment for his crime was well founded. He was in favor of imposing the death penalty in the most serious cases.

WISCONSIN.

[By Daniel Woodward, warden of state prison at Waupun.]

Capital punishment was abolished in this state before we had any record of vital statistics and for that reason it is impossible to make a comparative statement. However, as warden of this institution, and after a careful study of criminology, it is my opinion that no state or nation can go into the cold blooded execution of a human being.

There is very little that can be presented as an argument for the death penalty for the reason that in very few cases is murder the result of deliberate calculation, which takes into account risks and dangers. In the majority of cases the murder is the result of sudden passion or intoxication, the condition of mind being such that it will not permit the reckoning of consequences. Therefore, no punishment, mild or severe, would serve as a deterrent.

Modern penology is giving much attention to the reformation of prisoners confined in institutions of this kind. Our state has passed a law which provides that life prisoners may be paroled when they have served a thirty year term. Deducting allowance for good behavior, life prisoners become eligible for parole in sixteen years and three months. While on parole they are in the legal custody of the state and subject to return to the institution for violation of certain fixed rules and regulations.

This law has been in force four years and nine life prisoners have been released under its provisions. Not a single one of them has violated the trust and confidence we placed in them; in fact, it may be said that our life prisoners, as a rule, are of a better class than the ordinary prisoners.

KANSAS.

[By J. K. Coddling, warden state penitentiary at Lansing.]

We have not the statistics showing the number of homicides before and after the abolition of capital punishment. As a matter of fact it has been so many years in Kansas since there has been any legal hanging, and our state has changed from a frontier community to one of civilization in the last forty years, that it is proper to put us in the list of those states that have not had capital punishment in the last thirty-five years.

If you will make a comparison from the census reports between Kansas and Texas or Kansas and New York or other places, you will readily see that we have proportionately far less homicides than have those states in which capital punishment is provided for. Capital punishment simply brutalizes men and sets a lower value on human life. Crime is a moral disease just as much as smallpox is a physical one, and it is not proper to kill diseased people.

In states where there is capital punishment it is harder to secure convictions for murder in the first degree. Men committing crimes rarely take into thought the punishment, as they expect to escape that. I do not need to say that I am opposed to capital punishment.

MICHIGAN.

Michigan is usually classed as one of the states in which capital punishment has been abolished. This is not strictly correct, but practically it is true, since treason is the only crime now punishable by death. This, according to the statute, is to be inflicted by hanging. Previous to 1846 the laws of Michigan provided that all murders perpetrated by poison, lying in wait, etc., should be punishable by death. In the year named the statutes of the state were revised under the direction of Sanford M. Green. In his revision presented to the legislature of 1846 for its action the death penalty was retained as the punishment for the crime of murder, but the lawmaking body amended the section dealing with the matter and made murder punishable "by solitary confinement at hard labor in the state prison for life."

MINNESOTA.

[By Lyndon A. Smith, attorney-general, St. Paul.]

There are not as yet any reliable statistics available in this state showing whether or not there has been an increase of murder since the abolition of the death penalty. I am of the opinion that the number of convictions for murder during the fall terms of court as compared with the fall terms of court the previous year would not be material evidence on the question of the increase of murder, because a conviction is much easier to obtain when the death penalty will not follow.

IOWA.

Capital punishment was abolished in Iowa in 1872, but was re-established in 1878. It was urged in its favor that crime had increased from year to year and that it was increasing more and more rapidly each year. It was also claimed that there had been a great increase of mob violence since the abolition of the death penalty. The bill met with considerable opposition, but was finally passed by the senate by a vote of 28 to 19 and by the house near the close of the session by a small majority.

PLAN OF THE CANAL.

The entire length of the Panama canal from deep water in the Atlantic to deep water in the Pacific is 50.5 miles. Its length on land is 40.5 miles. In passing through the canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific a vessel will enter a channel with a bottom width of 500 feet in Limon bay and follow this for about seven miles to Gatun, where it will enter a series of three locks in flight and be lifted eighty-five feet to the level of the Gatun lake. It will sail at full ocean speed through this lake, in a channel varying from 1,000 to 500 feet in width, for a distance of about twenty-four miles to Barro Colorado, where it will enter the Culebra cut. It will sail through the cut, a distance of about nine miles, in a channel with a bottom width of 300 feet, to Pedro Miguel. There it will enter a lock and be lowered 30½ feet to a small lake at an elevation of 54½ feet above sea level, and will sail through this for about 1½ miles to Miraflores. There it will enter two locks in series and be lowered to sea level, passing out into the Pacific through a channel 8½ miles in length, with a bottom width of 500 feet. The depth of the approach channel on the Atlantic side, where the tidal oscillation does not exceed 1½ feet, will be 41 feet at mean tide, and on the Pacific side, where the maximum oscillation is 23 feet, the depth will be 45 feet at mean tide.

GATUN DAM.

The Gatun dam, which forms Gatun lake by impounding the waters of the Chagres river and other streams, is nearly 1½ miles long, measured on its crest, nearly half a mile wide at its base, about 400 feet wide at the water surface, about 100 feet wide at the top and its crest is at an elevation of 115 feet above mean sea level, or 30 feet above the normal level of the lake. The interior of the dam is formed of a natural mixture of sand and clay, dredged by hydraulic process from pits above and below the dam, and placed between two large masses of rock and miscellaneous material, obtained from steam shovel excavation at various points along the canal. The top and upstream slope are riprapped. The spillway is a concrete lined opening 1,200 feet long and 300 feet wide, cut through a hill of rock nearly in the center of the dam, the bottom of the opening being ten feet above sea level. During the construction of the dam all the waters discharged from the Chagres river and its tributaries flow through this opening. When the lake is formed the spillway will be closed with a concrete dam, fitted with gates and machinery for regulating the water level of the lake.

The water level of Gatun lake, extending through the Culebra cut, is maintained at the south end by an earth dam connecting the locks at Pedro Miguel with the high ground to the westward, about 1,700 feet long, with its crest at an elevation of 105 feet above mean tide. A small lake between the locks at Pedro Miguel and Miraflores is formed by dams connecting the walls of Miraflores locks with the high ground on either side. The dam to the westward is of earth, about 2,700 feet long, having its crest about 15 feet above the water in Miraflores lake. The east dam is of concrete, about 500 feet long, and forms a spillway for Miraflores lake, with crest gates similar to those at the spillway of the Gatun dam.

GATUN LAKE.

Gatun lake covers an area of 164 square miles, with a depth in the ship channel varying from 85 to 45 feet. Throughout the first 16 miles from Gatun the width of the channel is 1,000 feet; then for 4 miles it is 800 feet and for 4 miles more 500 feet, when the entrance to Culebra cut, at Bas Obispo, is reached. The water level in the cut is that of the lake and the bottom width of the channel is 300 feet.

CANAL ZONE.

The canal zone contains about 448 square miles. It begins at a point three marine miles from mean low-water mark in each ocean and extends for five miles on each side of the center line of the route of the canal. It includes the group of islands in the Bay of Panama named Perico, Naos, Culebra and Flamenco. The cities of Panama and Colon are excluded from the zone, but the United States has the right to enforce sanitary ordinances and maintain public order there in case the republic of Panama should not be able to do so. Of the 448 square miles in the zone the United States owns 322 and private persons 126. The private property may, however, be acquired at any time by the United States by purchase or by the exercise of the right of eminent domain.

THE LOCKS.

There are twelve locks in the canal, all in duplicate; three pairs in flight at Gatun, with a com-weigh from 300 to 600 tons each. For the entire canal 92 leaves are required, the total weighing 57,000 tons. Intermediate gates are used in the locks to save water and time, if desired, in locking small vessels through, the gates being so fixed as to divide the locks into chambers 600 and 400 feet long, respectively. Of the vessels navigating the high seas 95 per cent are less than 600 feet long.

No vessel will be permitted to enter or pass through the locks under its own power. Electricity will be used to tow all vessels into and through the locks and to operate all gates and valves, power being generated by water turbines from the head created by Gatun lake. The time required to pass a vessel through all the locks is estimated at three hours, one hour and a half in the three locks at Gatun and about the same time in the three locks on the Pacific side. The time of the passage of a vessel through the entire canal is estimated as ranging from ten to twelve hours, according to the size of the ship and the rate of speed at which it can travel.

bined lift of 85 feet; one pair at Pedro Miguel, with a lift of 30½ feet, and two pairs at Miraflores, with a combined lift of 54½ feet at mean tide. The dimensions of all are the same—a usable length of 1,000 feet and a usable width of 110 feet. Each lock is a chamber, with walls and floors of concrete and water-tight gates at each end.

The side walls are 45 to 50 feet wide at the surface of floor, perpendicular on the face and narrow from the point 24½ feet above the floor until they are 8 feet wide at the top. The middle wall is 60 feet wide, approximately 31 feet high and each face is vertical. At a point 42½ feet above the surface of the floor and 15 feet above the top of the middle culvert this wall divides into two parts, leaving a space down the center much like the letter "U," which is 19 feet wide at the bottom. In this center space, which is 44 feet wide at the top, is a tunnel divided into three stories or galleries. The lowest gallery is for drainage; the middle for the wires that carry the electric current to operate the gate and valve machinery, which will be installed in the center wall, and the upper is a passageway for the operators. The lock chambers are filled and emptied through lateral culverts in the floors, connected with main culverts, 18 feet in diameter, in the walls, the water flowing in and out by gravity.

The lock gates are steel structures, 7 feet thick, 65 feet long and from 47 to 82 feet high. They

CANAL FORCE.

The total force at work on the canal and railroad July 31, 1912, was 35,165. Canal employes numbered 28,382 and Panama railroad 6,787. The number of "gold" or white American employes was 4,196. The great majority of laborers are West Indian negroes.

CANAL FORTIFICATIONS.

An initial expenditure of $3,000,000 for the fortification of the Panama canal was authorized in the sundry civil act passed by congress and approved March 4, 1911. Of this amount $2,000,000 was for the construction of seacoast batteries on the canal zone.

PANAMA RAILROAD.

The Panama railroad and the steamships run in connection with it between New York and Colon are owned and operated by the United States government. When the canal was purchased from the new French canal company the railroad and steamship property was included among the assets. It practically parallels the route of the canal nearly the whole distance. Since it was acquired by the Americans the line has been almost completely re-located to correspond with changes in the route and plan of the canal. It is 46½ miles long and runs between the cities of Colon and Panama.

CANAL ZONE CENSUS.

According to a census taken in February, 1912, the population of the Panama canal zone proper, excluding the cities of Colon and Panama, was 62,810, of whom 19,413 were white, 31,525 black, 10,323 mixed, 521 yellow, 378 Hindus, 2 Filipinos, 648 Indians.

OPENING OF CANAL.

It was officially announced Sept. 14, 1912, that the Panama canal would probably be opened for traffic in the fall of 1913, progress in the construction of the waterway having been more rapid than anticipated. The original date set for the opening was Jan. 1, 1915.

SUIT AGAINST NATIONAL CASH REGISTER COMPANY.

Thirty officials and employes of the National Cash Register company of Dayton, O., were indicted on charges of criminal violation of the Sherman antitrust law by a special federal grand jury in Cincinnati, O., Feb. 22, 1912. The principal officers indicted were John A. Patterson, president; E. A. Deeds, vice-president; G. C. Edgeter, secretary, and W. F. Bippus, treasurer. There were three counts. The first charged that nearly all the competitors concerned had been bought out or driven out of business through bribery and other illegal methods. The second and third counts charged the defendants with monopolizing the cash register business by the same means.

SPEED ON THE TYPEWRITER.

Miss Florence E. Wilson of New York, N. Y., copied 7,219 words in one hour on the typewriter at Spokane, Wash., July 13, 1912, in a speed contest held under the auspices of the National Commercial Teachers' federation. She made sixty-eight errors, for which a deduction of five words each was made, giving her a net score of 6,979 words, or an average of 115 words a minute.

UNIVERSITY BILL DECISION.

In a decision announced Feb. 23, 1912, the Supreme court of Illinois held that a legislative act, complete with its proposed amendments, must be printed and laid before the general assembly before it can reach its final enactment. The matter came before the court on an appeal from the Circuit court of Sangamon county in the suit of Dr. W. E. Neiberger, president of the Illinois State Homeopathic association, against State Treasurer Mitchell and State Auditor McCullough to restrain them from paying out any of the money appropriated for the maintenance by the University of Illinois of a medical school in Chicago on the ground that the act making the appropriation was unconstitutional. In the 1911 session of the legislature an item was inserted in the omnibus university bill then in conference providing for $60,000 a year, or $120,000 for the two year period, for the maintenance of such a school. It was shown that the item had been inserted as an amendment on the last night of the session and that it had not been printed in conformity with the state constitution. Judge James A. Creighton, sitting in the Sangamon Circuit court, upheld the constitutionality of the act. An appeal was taken to the Supreme court, which reversed the decision and remanded the case to the lower court.

The decision was held to be of much significance from the fact that many other laws, some of great importance, might be invalidated for the same reason, having been passed during the rush hours of the last sessions of the legislature.

DEPTH TO WHICH MAN CAN DIVE.

According to August Siebe, inventor of a diving dress, the greatest depth to which a man has ever descended in the ocean is 204 feet. This is equivalent to a pressure of 88½ pounds to the square inch. The same authority gives 150 feet as the limit for safe work in diving. The ordinary depth at which the diving dress is used is from 30 to 40 feet, but working at depths twice as great is not unusual, though difficult. Unless securely "anchored" a man at a depth of 50 or 60 feet can exert little force in any direction on account of his extreme buoyancy.

THE HANFORD IMPEACHMENT CASE.

Cornellus H. Hanford, United States District Judge at Seattle, Wash., resigned July 22, 1912, while impeachment proceedings against him were still in progress. The charges against him included drunkenness, corrupt decisions and misconduct generally, but the specific act which led congress to take action looking to his forced retirement from the bench was his revocation of the citizenship papers of Leonard Olsson of Tacoma, Wash., a member of the socialist labor party and of the Industrial Workers of the World. In appearing as a witness for another man Olsson said he was not attached to the constitution of the United States. The man who began disfranchisement proceedings against Olsson was John Speed Smith, chief naturalization examiner for Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana. He testified before the congressional subcommittee in Seattle that Olsson on two occasions had sworn that he was not attached to the principles of the constitution and that in the disfranchisement proceedings before Judge Hanford he testified that he did not "worship the constitution idolatrously and was not superstitiously attached to it."

The impeachment proceedings against Judge Hanford were brought by Congressman Victor L. Berger, socialist, of Wisconsin, in the house of representatives July 7, when a resolution was offered by him directing the committee on judiciary to inquire into the alleged misconduct of the judge. The resolution was adopted June 13 without opposition and the inquiry was begun by a subcommittee June 27, continuing until July 22, when the hearing was stopped owing to the resignation of Judge Hanford.

PRESIDENT OF HAITI KILLED.

The national palace at Port au Prince, Haiti, was blown up by a powder explosion and burned to the ground at 3 a. m., Aug. 8, 1912, and the president of the republic, Gen. Cincinnatus Leconte, was killed. Four hundred other persons in the building at the time were killed or injured, though the members of the president's family managed to escape. The executive kept a large quantity of ammunition in the cellars of the palace for use in case of an uprising, but whether the explosion was the result of a plot or was accidental could not be ascertained. Gen. Tancrede Auguste was named as president by the national assembly.

THE CARNEGIE HERO FUND.

April 15, 1904. Andrew Carnegie placed in the hands of a commission the sum of $5,000,000 to be known as "the hero fund." Its purpose is to reward with medals and money the men and women who perform heroic deeds, or, in case they lose their lives, to care for those dependent upon them. Widows are given support until they remarry and children are given allowances until they are 16 years of age. Only such as follow peaceful vocations on sea or land in the United States and Canada are eligible to become beneficiaries of the fund. The first awards of medals and money were made in May and others in October, 1905. The names of the recipients, with the reason for the award in each case, will be found in The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book beginning with the volume for 1906.

Up to Oct. 15, 1912, the commission had considered 9,160 cases and had made 635 awards of medals and money. The total amount expended up to Jan. 1, 1912, was $726,243.96. The pensions in force aggregated $41,220 a year.

CARNEGIE INSTITUTION OF WASHINGTON.
The Carnegie Institution was endowed by Andrew Carnegie with $10,000,000 and incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, Jan. 4, 1902. It was, however, deemed advisable to have it incorporated by act of congress, and this was effected May 18, 1904. Section 2 of the act specifies that the objects of the corporation shall be to encourage, in the broadest and most liberal manner, investigation, research and discovery, and the application of knowledge to the improvement of mankind. The projects considered by the institution are chiefly of three classes, namely:

First, large projects or departments of work, whose execution requires continuous research by a corps of investigators during a series of years.

Secondly, minor projects, which may be carried out by individual experts in a limited period of time.

Thirdly, research associates, aid being given to a few investigators possessing exceptional abilities and opportunities for research work.

An annual appropriation is made for the purpose of publishing the results of investigations made under the auspices of the institution, and for certain works which would not otherwise be readily printed. These publications are not distributed gratis except to a limited list of the greater libraries of the world.

Dec. 4, 1907, Andrew Carnegie added $2,000,000 to the endowment of the institution, and Jan. 20, 1911, he gave $10,000,000 more, making the total endowment $22,000,000.

The larger projects now under way and the names of the department directors or investigators are as follows:

Botanical research—D. T. MacDougal.
Economics and sociology—Henry W. Farnam.
Experimental evolution—Charles B. Davenport.
Geophysics—Arthur L. Day.
Historical research—J. F. Jameson.

Marine biology—A. G. Mayer.

Nutrition—F. G. Benedict.

Solar physics—George E. Hale.

Terrestrial magnetism—A. L. Bauer.

The officers are as follows:

President of the institution—Robert S. Woodward.
Officers of the board of trustees—John S. Billings, chairman; Elihu Root, vice-chairman; C. H. Dodge, secretary.

Executive committee—William H. Welch, chairman; John S. Billings, S. Weir Mitchell, Elihu Root, Robert S. Woodward, C. H. Dodge, C. D. Walcott, Barclay Parsons.

Trustees—John S. Billings, Robert S. Brookings, John L. Cadwalader, Cleveland H. Dodge, Simon Flexner, W. N. Frew, Lyman J. Gage, Henry L. Higginson, Charles L. Hutchinson, Seth Low, S. Weir Mitchell, Andrew J. Montague, William W. Morrow, Elihu Root, Barclay Parsons, Henry S. Pritchett, Martin A. Ryerson, Charles D. Walcott, Henry P. Walcott, Andrew D. White, Robert S. Woodward, William H. Taft, William H. Welch, George W. Wickersham.

The administration building of the institution is located on the southeast corner of 16th and P streets, N. W., Washington, D. C. The institution, however, is neither a branch of nor subject to any special regulations of the United States government. Neither is it a college or a university, nor does it maintain a library or museum. A prospectus of work and a list of publications may be obtained upon application to the president.

THE CARNEGIE FOUNDATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF TEACHING.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching was founded by Andrew Carnegie in 1905 and incorporated by the congress of the United States in 1906 for the purpose of providing retiring allowances for teachers and officers of universities, colleges and technical schools in the United States, Canada and Newfoundland, and, in general, of advancing the profession of the teacher and the cause of higher education. By the sixth annual meeting of the trustees in 1911, 300 allowances were being paid to teachers and seventy-three pensions to widows of teachers, the amount of the average allowance being $1,628.41, the total annual cost being $553,665, and the average age of retirement being about 70 years.

In the administration of its endowment, which now amounts to $14,000,000, the Foundation has restricted its allowances to professors and officers in a list of seventy-two institutions, selected for their educational standing, and has published a series of widely influential reports and bulletins concerning educational conditions. The president of the Foundation is Henry S. Pritchett; its trustees are presidents of universities and colleges and financiers. Further information may be had by addressing the secretary, Clyde Furst, 576 5th avenue, New York.

DEATH OF THE EMPEROR OF JAPAN.

Mutsuhito, emperor of Japan, died in Tokyo at 12:45 o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, July 30, 1912, from Bright's disease. His illness became acute July 19 and his condition grew steadily worse until the end came. Mutsuhito was born Nov. 3, 1852. He reigned for forty-four years and was one of the chief factors in making Japan a great power in the far east. He gave his people a constitution in 1889 and he himself scrupulously lived up to its terms. Tolerant in religious affairs, impartial in his dealings with all, willing to receive suggestions from the elder statesmen and his ministers and assiduous in the performance of his duties, he was held in high esteem by all his subjects and his death was sincerely mourned. At the funeral ceremonies, which began Sept. 13, the United States was represented by Secretary of State Philander C. Knox, Rear-Admiral Alfred Reynolds, Brig.-Gen.

John J. Pershing, U. S. A., and Ransford E. Miller of the state department.

Mutsuhito was succeeded on the throne by Yoshihito, the crown prince, who was born Aug. 31, 1879. The reign of the late emperor was designated as the era of Meiji, or the era of "Intelligent administration"; the reign of the new emperor will be known as the era of Taisei, or the era of "great righteousness."

SUICIDE OF GEN. NOGI.

Following an ancient Japanese custom, Gen. Count Maresuke Nogi, the hero of Port Arthur and supreme military counselor of the empire, and his wife, the Countess Nogi, committed suicide at their home just as the body of Emperor Mutsuhito was being taken from Tokyo for burial. The general killed himself with a short sword and his wife stabbed herself, both dying at the same time.

DEATH OF DANIEL HUDSON BURNHAM.

Daniel Hudson Burnham of Chicago, one of the world's noted architects, died in Heidelberg, Germany, June 1, 1912, while on a pleasure tour through Europe. Mr. Burnham won enduring fame as the head of the firm of Burnham & Root, which planned the main features of the world's fair buildings and grounds in Chicago in 1893, and as the chief designer of "the Chicago plan." He was also the author of plans for the beautification of other American cities and was the architect of some of the finest structures in the country, especially in Chicago. He was born in Henderson, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1846, and came to Chicago in 1856.

MARRIAGE LAWS.

Marriage may be contracted without the consent of parents by males who are 21 years of age or more. This is the rule in about all the states having laws on the subject. In Arizona the age is 18. For females the age is 21 in Connecticut, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming; 16 is the age in Arizona, Maryland and Nebraska and 15 in the other states. Marriages contracted before the age of consent are illegal in nearly all the states.

Marriage licenses are required in practically all the states.

Marriages between whites and negroes are prohibited by law in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and West Virginia. Michigan specifically declares such marriages valid.

Marriages between first cousins are prohibited in Arizona, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Wyoming. Step-relatives are not permitted to intermarry except in California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Minnesota, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Utah and Wisconsin.

MARRIAGE RATES.

For the year 1900 the marriage rate based on the total population of continental United States and including the total number of marriages reported was 90 per 10,000 population. In 1890 the rate was 87 per 10,000 population. The rate in 1900 per 10,000 unmarried population 15 years of age and over was 312; in 1890 it was 304.

DIVORCE RATES.

TORNADO AT REGINA, SASKATCHEWAN.

Regina, capital of the province of Saskatchewan, Canada, was partly destroyed by a tornado which visited the city at 6 o'clock on the evening of June 30, 1912. The storm came from the south and leveled everything in its path, sweeping away many residences, banks, warehouses, factories, retail stores and other establishments. It was at first reported that 400 persons were killed, but this proved to be an exaggeration and the number of fatalities was later reduced to about fifty. Many were injured, some fatally. The property loss was estimated at between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000. The provincial parliament building was badly damaged. It had just been completed at a cost of $2,000,000.

ATTEMPT TO KILL COUNT TISZA.

In the lower house of the Hungarian diet June 7, 1912, Deputy Julius Kovacs fired three shots at the president, Count Tisza, without hitting him and then shot himself. Kovacs had been suspended for disorderly conduct in the course of the debate on universal suffrage and had been ejected from the chamber. Evading the police, he gained entrance to the press gallery, whence he fired the shots. The attack upon the count was the outcome of an agitation which began with his election as speaker May 22. He was an opponent of universal suffrage and on this issue his election was contested with a bitterness that culminated in violence in the chamber and bloodshed in the streets. Free fights occurred around the voting urn, with the upshot that the opposition left the house in a body and Tisza was elected by the government party. The socialists called for a general strike in Budapest, with the result that in the next two days the city was the scene of riots, in which several persons were killed by the soldiers and police. The strikers returned to work May 25, but trouble continued in the diet. June 4 Count Tisza forced through the government's defense bills and when the next day the opposition made such an uproar that business could not be conducted the president called in the police, who expelled thirty members, including Kovacs.

COAL MINE DISASTERS.

AT M'CURTAIN, OKLA.

Through the explosion of gas in mine No. 2 of the Sans Bois Coal company at McCurtain, Okla., Wednesday morning, March 20, 1912, eighty-five men were killed and the mine was wrecked. Of 116 men at work only thirty-one escaped. Most of the day shift of miners were at work beyond the ninth level and those men who escaped were employed at special tasks above that level. The explosion occurred shortly after 9 o'clock and was of great violence, sending clouds of smoke and dust up to the surface through the mine shafts.

AT JED, W. VA.

Eighty men were killed by a gas explosion in the Jed Coal and Coke company's mine at Jed, W. Va., March 26, 1912. Only eleven men escaped alive and one of these died on reaching the surface. They had been working at the bottom of the shaft and as the cages were not damaged they were able to get out. Efforts at rescuing the others were made as soon as the gas had been partly cleared out, but all the other men were found lifeless. The mine had been inspected a few days before and pronounced safe.

DESTRUCTION OF DIRIGIBLE BALLOON AKRON.

Melvin Vaniman and four other men were killed near Atlantic City, N. J., July 2, 1912, when the dirigible balloon Akron exploded as it was crossing Absecon inlet, half a mile from shore. The craft was sailing at a height of about 500 feet when it was seen suddenly to burst into flames and fall into the sea. It was the intention of Melvin Vaniman to cross the Atlantic ocean in the craft in the course of the summer. It was constructed after a plan similar to that of the America, in which Walter Wellman and Melvin Vani-man attempted to cross to Europe in 1910. The four men who perished with Melvin Vaniman were Calvin Vaniman, his brother; George Bourillon, Fred Elmer and Walter Gest. The balloon cost $500,000. Experts declared that the disaster was due to a fault in construction which allowed the expanding gas to exhaust directly over the exhaust of the propeller engines. This caused the gas to ignite and the explosion followed. Melvin Vaniman's body was not found until July 15.

GREAT LAKES NAVAL TRAINING STATION.

North Chicago, Ill.

The great lakes naval training station at North Chicago, Ill., was placed in commission July 1, 1911, and the work of fitting young men for service in the enlisted force of the United States navy was at once begun. By Aug. 15, 389 recruits had been enrolled as apprentice seamen, most of them coming from the central west and south. The total amount expended for buildings and grounds, before the station opened, was $3,475,000 and for maintenance $406,648.

Enlistment—The term of enlistment is four years, except minors under 18 years of age, who are enlisted for the period of minority. Only such persons are enlisted as can be reasonably expected to remain in the service, and when enlisted they must serve out the term specified. The age limit is 17 to 35 years.

Physical Requirements—For a minor enlisting as an apprentice seaman the following minimum heights (barefooted) and weights (without clothes) are required:

Age.	Height.	Weight.
17.....	62 inches.....	110 pounds
18.....	64 inches.....	115 pounds
19.....	64 inches.....	120 pounds
20.....	64 inches.....	125 pounds

Any one of the following conditions will be sufficient to cause the rejection of an applicant: Feeble constitution, general poor physique or impaired general health; any disease or deformity, either congenital or acquired, that would impair efficiency; any acute disease.

Mental Requirements—Applicants for enlistment must be able to read and write English.

Other Requirements—Applicants for enlistment must be American citizens, native or naturalized. A minor must present a certificate of birth or verified written consent by his parents or other of them, or in case of their death, a similar statement by his legal guardian, showing the applicant to be of the age required by the navy regulations.

Pay—The pay of apprentice seamen is $17.60 per month. Each enlisted man is furnished with a free outfit of clothing, amounting to $60, on first enlistment.

How to enlist—Any one who wishes to enlist in the navy should write to the bureau of navigation, navy department, Washington, D. C., stating such facts, and the bureau will immediately reply, giving the address of the nearest recruiting station, where applicants are examined physically and either accepted or rejected. The government pays the expenses from the point of enlistment to the training station but not to the recruiting station.

There are similar training stations at Narragansett Bay, R. I., and San Francisco, Cal.

It publishes a monthly bulletin in which are given the latest official data concerning the resources, commerce and other features of the republics. The officers of the union occupy a fine building at the corner of 17th street and Potomac park in Washington, D. C. The structure, which was built with money given by Andrew Carnegie, was dedicated April 26, 1910.

THE UNITED STATES CENSUS BUREAU.

The bureau of the census in the department of commerce and labor, Washington, D. C., is charged with the duty of taking the periodical censuses of the United States and of collecting such special statistics as are required by congress, including statistics of the cotton production of the country as returned by the ginners, the consumption of cotton and statistics of cities having 30,000 or more inhabitants.

The act passed at the extra session of the 61st congress and approved July 2, 1909, for the taking of the thirteenth and subsequent censuses provided that a census should be taken of the population, agriculture, manufactures and mines and quarries of the United States in 1910 and every ten years thereafter, and that it should include each state and territory on the mainland, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico. An assistant director, a geographer, a chief statistician and other officers and clerks in addition to the regular force in the census office were provided for.

MOTORING.

[Compiled by C. G. Sinsabaugh.]

Summing up the motoring season of 1912, one finds a dearth of contests in comparison with previous years. American car manufacturers have not supported the sport as they formerly did; stock car events, which formerly were the predominating factors in contests in this country, were wiped off the slate altogether and everything was nonstock and free-for-all. The lack of interest among the American manufacturers left the field almost clear for the foreigners in a racing way and the result was that in road racing the cream went to the cars of European construction.

Reliability runs were fewer than ever and those that were contested brought out skimpy fields and failed to arouse enthusiasm. Even the Glidden tour of the American Automobile association, which had flourished for so many years, had to be abandoned because of a lack of entries, while hill climbs were as scarce as reliabilities. The only bright spot was in Chicago, where the usual team matches between clubs, events which interested the owners themselves, flourished. In Chicago in 1912 there were contested four different team matches, each of which brought out good sized fields and stirred up local enthusiasm in this branch of the sport.

The annual 500 mile race on the Indianapolis speedway was another success, brought about by the huge crowds that attended and the fact that an American car won. It is estimated that 80,000 persons saw the race and cheered for Joe Dawson in the National when he unexpectedly won, after Ralph De Palma, 15 minutes ahead, had broken down when he had only one more lap to go. As the winner received a cash prize of $25,000, not counting the perquisites from the accessory manufacturers, the disappointment of De Palma may be appreciated.

But the outlook for 1913 is not so gloomy. Evidently the manufacturers have realized their mistake in withdrawing their support, especially in a racing way. Indications point to a number of big concerns entering the racing game in 1913, and it is thought that there will be a revival of interest that will put the sport on the high plane it formerly occupied.

So far as dirt track racing goes, 1912 was about the same as usual. There is more of a commercial side to dirt track racing than there is to other divisions of motoring, for the game is kept alive by a few aggregations of speed merchants which arrange circuits taking in county fairs and the like, which reap rich harvests. There were three such outfits in 1912, one headed by Bob Burman, another by Barney Oldfield and a third by Louis Disbrow.

The record crop was a slim one. In the first place Bob Burman, who created the short distance straightaway records on the beach at Daytona, Fla., rested on his laurels, satisfied with his mile at the rate of 142 miles an hour. The road racing world's record, though, went by the boards when Teddy Tetzlaff in a Fiat maintained an average of 78.7 miles an hour in the free-for-all at Santa Monica. In neither the Grand Prix nor the Vanderbilt at Milwaukee was the previous high water mark touched, but at Elgin the course record was beaten in each of the four events that were run. The dirt track mile record was dropped to 46 seconds flat by Bob Burman in the Jumbo Benz at St. Louis.

Whereas American made cars were most prominent in road racing in 1911, taking all but four of the twenty-seven contests, in 1912 the foreigners won seven of the eighteen, including both the Grand Prix and Vanderbilt at Milwaukee, the two big races at Elgin and the free-for-alls at Tacoma and Santa Monica. In 1911 the Lozier won the Vanderbilt and the National the Elgin trophy, both American made cars.

To Ralph De Palma must be conceded the title of road racing champion of 1912, in view of the fact that he won four out of the five races in which he started. His one failure was the Grand Prix at Milwaukee, in which he would have been a sure second had it not been for the accident, caused by running into Bragg, the winner, as the two were making their final lap. De Palma was a consistent driver and is one of the most popular champions the sport ever has had. Teddy Tetzlaff is entitled to great consideration, too, for he won three road races on the Pacific coast earlier in the year, in one of which he smashed the world's record. He came east for the meets at Elgin and Milwaukee, expecting to add to his laurels and clinch the championship title. At Elgin his car broke down coming to the tape; in the Vanderbilt he was making a runaway race of it when mechanical troubles stopped him; in the Grand Prix he was a leader until more trouble overtook him. It is a remarkable fact that only two fatalities can be charged up against racing in 1912. The dirt track game showed a clean sheet, but at Milwaukee an accident robbed motoring of a brilliant driver when David Bruce-Brown was killed in practice. His mechanic, Tony Scudalleri, died a week later from his injuries.

This same David Bruce-Brown, accompanied by De Palma, drove in the French Grand Prix, and the former's work in that was so good that all Europe hailed him as king. The French Grand Prix was divided into two days of racing and at the end of the first day Bruce-Brown was the leader by 2 minutes over Boillot of France. The second day, though, brought hard luck to the American, who was forced to take on gasoline at a point away from the repair pits, which was against the rules and which resulted in disqualification. Bruce-Brown, delayed by this, continued and finished an unofficial third. De Palma also was disqualified for taking on fuel away from the pits.

Road racing in Europe was more popular in 1912 than it was in 1911. There were three big events and Boillot easily was the star because of his victory in the Grand Prix.

CHICAGO COMPETITIONS.

As was the case elsewhere in the country, Chicago found it hard sledding in promoting contests. An unusual angle was the abandoning of the annual Elgin road races by the Chicago Motor club, which, believing it was an off year, thought it would be impossible to secure sufficient entries. The Chicago Automobile club, which promoted the Crown Point races of 1909, thought otherwise and volunteered to make the attempt. The result was an unqualified success. As large an entry list as in 1911 was secured, the field included more brilliant drivers than ever before and brought the foreign cars into the competition, and a larger crowd saw the races the second day than ever before. De Palma in the Mercedes won both the races the second day, while on the first day Merz in a Stutz took the Illinois cup, Hughes in the Mercer the Aurora cup and Endicott in a Mason the Jencks trophy.

The Chicago Motor club ran off its Algonquin hill climb, in which the time honors went to Frank Kulick in a Ford Special, and also promoted a sensational reliability run around Lake Michigan, which carried the cars through wild country in northern Michigan.

Team matches were more numerous than ever. The Chicago Automobile club and the Chicago Athletic association met twice and each time the Cherry Circle triumphed, winning the annual summer match in a run to Milwaukee and back, and scoring again in a fall run to Brook, Ind., in which the Allen S. Ray and Carleton White trophies were the offerings. The Chicago Motor club and the Illinois Athletic club held a two day match to Ottawa, Ill., and back, in which the motor club was returned the winner. The amateur vs. trade match, a Chicago Motor club institution, was attempted, the drivers going to St. Joseph, Mich., but abandoning the return trip because of excessively bad weather conditions.

TWENTY-FOUR HOUR RECORDS.

The world's record for twenty-four hours is 1,581 miles 1,310 yards, an average pace of 65.9 miles an hour, made June 28-29, 1907, by S. F. Edge in a six-cylinder Napier on the three and one-quarter mile cement track at Weybridge, England.

The circular track twenty-four hour record was raised to 1,253 miles by Patschke and Poole in a Stearns at Brighton Beach track, New York, Aug. 19-20, 1910. The former record was 1,190 miles, made by Patschke and Mulford in a Lozier in 1909. An American competitive speedway twenty-four hour record was created at Los Angeles, where a Fiat covered 1,491 miles.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RECORD.

A record of 10 days 18 hours 12 minutes from New York to San Francisco was made Aug. 8-13, 1910, by L. L. Whitman, driving a four-cylinder Eco, the fastest trip ever made across the continent in a motor car. The record from San Francisco to New York is 15 days 12 hours, made in a Franklin in 1906 by Whitman.

CHICAGO-NEW YORK RECORD.

The record by automobile between Chicago and New York is 39:53:00. It was made by a Franklin twenty-eight horse-power runabout Aug. 21-22, 1907. The route followed was via Elkhardt, Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Newburgh and along the east side of the Hudson to New York. The distance was 1,050 miles. The previous record was 56:58:00, also made by a Franklin, a six-cylinder car.
